FRANCE, ITALY REACH ACCORD; END NAVAL ROW

Both Ready to Sign London Treaty.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 1.—A definitive settlement of the Franco-Italian naval dispute, which crippled the London naval conference and has been the greatest single menace to the peace of the world during the last year, was reached at the Quai d'Orsay this afternoon some three hours after Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, and his colleagues arrived from Rome.

Both of the Mediterranean powers are now ready to add their names to the London treaty.

Before the three-power pact can become a five-power pact, however, the British dominions, Washington, and Tokio must be consulted. The basis on which the accord was reached between France, Italy, and Great Britain necessitates what is described as slight modifications of the London pact.

U. S. Standing Affected.

From hints dropped by Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and Minister of Marine Charles Dumont of France after this afternoon's conference, there is reason to believe that these "modifications" will effect a material change in the standing of the United States navy's relations to those of the other signatories, and may oblige America to readjust her building program.

It is understood that it is really the Washington treaty which must be modified—that is, owing to the French determination to build a 23,000 ton battleship, the capital ship figures allotted at Washington and incorporated in the London pact will have to be reshuffled.

Furthermore, while not the slightest indication has yet been given as to the real technical basis of the accord, M. Dumont and M. Briand made it clear that unofficial figures hitherto published showing France had accepted a cut from 805,000 tons to 610,000 tons were exaggerated, and that the French concessions are really considerably smaller.

Secrecy Hides Details.

The same veil of secrecy which has cloaked the negotiations ever since the British experts arrived in Paris Tuesday night prevailed today. Shortly before 7 o'clock newspaper men waiting in the anteroom at the Quai d'Orsay were informed that an accord had been reached, and that Mr. Henderson would receive the British press while M. Briand talked to the French journalists.

After reading the text of a telegram full of brotherly love sent by Mr. Henderson and M. Briand to Dino Grandi of Italy, the crafty French foreign minister yielded the floor to the white bearded minister of marine, who flatly told newspaper men that they would not get figures from him.

"Giving out figures before they are submitted to the other signatories of the naval pact might be very grave, as certain slight modifications must be made in the general treaty," M. Dumont declared.

Hush News on Figures.

Then, in language worthy of an old seadog, M. Dumont bawled out newspaper men for publishing approximate figures, which, he declared, were false, and which, he added, increased the difficulty of Mr. Henderson's trip to Rome by giving the Italians the impression that French public opinion would accept such low figures.

M. Briand seconded him with a few sardonic cracks in a friendlier tone at the self-appointed naval experts among the press.

In chiding the press he let slip the fact that his own government did not know the figures. So anxious were the British and French diplomats to keep premature news from getting to the wrong quarters — American public opinion—that M. Briand withstood severe grueling from the worried Nationalists, who ordered him to appear before the foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies rather than divulge the secret.

Pass on Results Today.

The French and British cabinets will pass on the work of their foreign ministers tomorrow. Not until after the accord has been approved by the two cabinets will Washington and Tokio receive full information, it is understood.

"A sense of courtesy to the United States makes it necessary to keep the details of the agreement secret for the present," M. Briand said.

Italy, it is generally conceded, was benefited by scaling down the French

EX-CONVICT IS 'FRAT' PLAYBOY BETWEEN JOBS

Identified as Robber in Five Hotels.

Edward [Toddy] Dillon, who was arrested in St. Louis six years ago in connection with the murder of his father and who has served two prison terms for robbery since then, was revealed yesterday as a young man who has been escorting young women of social prominence to fraternity dances and theaters on the proceeds of his Chicago holdups.

Dillon, who is 24 years old, was identified as the robber who has held up five Chicago hotels recently when he was brought to the weekly police showup yesterday after his chance arrest in a theater lobby Saturday night. He later confessed that he was the Toddy Dillon who was arrested for the murder of his father, Dr. William A. Dillon, and that he had served prison terms in Elmira and Sing Sing in New York for robberies.

With Girl at Theater.

Clad in a gray suit, with a carnation in his buttonhole and gray spats on his ankles, George Edward Dillon, as Toddy called himself here, was strolling in the lobby of the Erlanger theater between acts Saturday evening. Leaning on his left arm, the same arm that was shortened just a little when he was shot in one of his robbery escapades of other days, was a young woman.

Her name is being withheld by the police and by Dillon, who said scornfully that he would go the limit in protecting his lady friend from annoyance. But the police, who questioned her, state that she is attending a convent school and met the society man who doubles as a bandit at a fraternity dance four months ago. Dillon told her, she said, that he was the scion of a wealthy family, that he lived at the Blackstone hotel and made frequent airplane trips to the east.

The stroll between acts was interrupted by Police Sergts. Thomas Foley and Stephen Leddy. With them was Al Baker, 1260 North Dearborn street, an insurance broker connected with W. W. Durham, 231 South La Salle street.

Calls Him a Bandit.

"That is the man who took 90 cents from me in a holdup at the DeWitt hotel on Pearson street," said Baker. "Arrest him."

"That is preposterous," replied the suave Dillon. "I don't think I should be arrested, even in Chicago. My name is George Edward Dillon. I am a respectable citizen and a graduate of Yale university. My father is a wealthy oil man."

Mr. Baker, however, insisted that he could not be mistaken, and that Dillon was the man who had taken his 90 cents and $150 from the hotel at 244 East Pearson street on Jan. 22. Sergts. Foley and Leddy, impressed by the gentlemanly bearing of the stroller and by the evident innocence of the young woman, were reluctant, although they complied with Baker's demand.

Keeps Girl's Name Secret.

At the detective bureau Dillon offered a little information in exchange for a promise that the girl would be freed and her name kept from the case.

At yesterday's showup witnesses asserted without hesitancy that he was the man who had committed four other hotel robberies. Bernard Girard pointed to him as the robber who took $50 at the South Shore View hotel, 7100 South Shore drive, on Feb. 9. H. C. Chessman remembered him perfectly at the holdup man who got $28.55 in the Broadview hotel, 5540 Hyde Park boulevard, on Feb. 20.

Michael J. Hursey declared Dillon was the man who escaped with a pistol from the clerk's desk at the Orlando hotel, 70th street and South Shore drive, on Feb. 9, and John M. Hot asserted that he took $21 from the Lincoln Park Arms hotel on Feb. 20.

Freed on Murder Charge.

As the evidence piled up against him the dapper youth, whose raiment showed only a little less resplendent after a night in a detective bureau cell, began to make admissions. He said he was Toddy, the youth who had been accused of killing his father to get the $25,000 insurance the latter had left him. Dr. Dillon, his parent, was found slain on the campus of Washington university in St. Louis. Toddy was freed on that charge.

Next the prisoner, switching from his first half hearted denials, said that he had served time in two New York state prisons. He boasted of his underworld acquaintances.

Apparently Dillon's tastes as a se-

EDNA M. COOPER, MISSING ACTRESS, IS HEARD FROM

Los Angeles, Cal., March 1.—(AP)—The mystery of the disappearance of Edna May Cooper, actress-aviatrix, was deepened today by the receipt of a mysterious telephone call by her mother, Mrs. Mary Cooper.

Mrs. Cooper said a man called her on the phone and told her: "Your daughter has not been kidnaped. She has not been murdered, nor has she committed suicide. She hasn't gone to Honolulu to marry a rich broker. She is a sick girl and is at our home. We are a husband and wife whom you and Edna have known for a long time. She came to us Tuesday, the day she left you, and was extremely ill, but has been recovering gradually.

"In a day or so you will receive more definite word and will be able to see Edna May."

Mrs. Cooper said she did not recognize the voice but said the man spoke convincingly.

Miss Cooper is joint holder with Bobbie Trout of the women's endurance flying record. Her mother said she had not been well since the flight.

12 BANDSMEN AT FETE FOR WALES DIE; SHIP SINKS

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 1.—(AP)—Twelve members of a military band which had been playing at a supper for the prince of Wales drowned when the lighter in which they were returning to Valdivia was rammed and sunk on Lake Llanquihue late last night. Seven members of the band were rescued. The lighter foundered after it was struck by the steamer Chile.

Princes in Argentina.

BARILOCHE, Argentina, March 1.—(AP)—The prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, entered Argentine territory today, reaching Lake Fria at 5:55 p. m. The heir to the British throne and his brother today passed through the "Chilean Switzerland" before touching Argentina. They are en route to Buenos Aires to open the British Trade exposition March 14.

CHORUS GIRLS BADLY BURNED IN MEXICO CITY FIRE

MEXICO CITY, March 2.—(AP)—A number of chorus girls, trapped behind blazing scenery in the "Teatro Principal," in the heart of the city, this morning were badly burned before they were rescued by firemen. The 178 year old building was destroyed. The fire broke out at 1 a. m., when the theater was crowded with a midnight vaudeville audience.

Thirteen persons were seriously injured in the fire. For a time it was believed that some of the chorus girls had perished. The Roberto Soto Vaudeville company was playing in the theater when the fire started, and several of its members were among the injured.

Tearful Tactics Are Wasted on Hard Gunmen

Rex Wright, who conducts a rooming house at 4505 Clifton avenue, was not surprised last evening when two young strangers rang his door bell. Many persons move from one rooming house to another voluntarily on the first of any month and many others have to move or pay the rent. Besides, Sunday is the busy day for inspecting prospective new quarters.

Nor was Mr. Wright surprised when he discovered that one of the strangers wore a mask and that both carried pistols. He had long ago planned what he would do if he were visited by robbers, and as he looked at the matter just as that moment an excellent opportunity had arrived through which he could demonstrate his theories in practice.

His Wife Remains Quiet.

"Be very quiet," he said calmly to his wife, Anna, as the purposeful young men pushed him into the sitting room. "Just leave the situation to me."

Mrs. Wright remained quiet.

"Now," said the masked robber, "hand over your dough."

"With pleasure," replied Mr. Wright.

He tendered the bandit a check for $500.

Explains Business Methods.

"You see," he explained, "I suspected that robbers would be after my hard earned money tonight. So, after all my roomers had paid up for the month—I have good roomers—I took the cash to a friend of mine and he put it in a safe. I took his check for the amount and you are welcome to it."

It might have been a fruitless effort by the robbers if it hadn't been for Mrs. Wright's rings. The unmasked man stripped them from her fingers; two stones valued at $400. The careful Mr. Wright had forgotten about the jewelry, but he was not yet at the end of his resources.

He drew a fountain pen from his pocket and pointed it at the pair. Then he pressed a button.

Then All Are Surprised.

Instead of being a fountain pen filled with ink the instrument was a cartridge of tear gas. As the fumes spread through the room all four began to sneeze.

The ensuing effects were not what the hitherto unsurprised Mr. Wright expected. Instead of fleeing in terror the robbers turned back, bound the landlord and his wife to chairs, and then carefully closed the door as they left. A half hour later the couple quit sneezing long enough to loosen their bonds.

A Chicago Boy Considers the Ting Dynasty

Harley J. Cotten of 4035 South Wells street, boarded a street car early yesterday morning at Wentworth avenue and 43d street. And with him a companion.

Mr. Cotten and his companion had been walking some distance. They would walk a while and then enter a soft drink parlor. Then they would emerge, wiping their lips with the backs of their hands and walk some more. After they had thus walked and stopped in quite a few places they felt quite a lot different.

And they walked quite a lot different. Instead of proceeding in a direct point-to-point manner they would extemporize a left oblique to the curbstone. Arriving there they would pause and sway like two sunflowers in a June breeze.

And Mr. Cotten would say: "Don't push."

And his companion would reply: "Who's pushing?"

And then they would correct their latitude and longitude and reef in for a right oblique to the shop fronts. Thus right and thus left they reached 43d street. They leaned against a lamp post.

Any Post in a Storm.

And Mr. Cotten would say, "Don't push."

And his companion would reply, "Who's pushing?"

Then they would lean against the post some more. Once Mr Cotten leaned away from the post and took a step to regain his balance. One step wasn't quite enough so he took another. And another. And another. Whether by design or not he did this in a circle and so wound up at the post again.

Now the 43d street car drew up. It was just then that Mr. Cotten and his companion leaned away from the post again. They both strove to regain their balance so they each took a step. And another. And another. This time the center of gravity in the persons of Mr. Cotten and his companion seemed perniciously inclined toward the middle of 43d street. And as each step was in swift correction of a disposition to fall into the street they were presently and happily staring into the rear platform of the car.

So Mr. Cotten, viewing life as just one damn thing after another, got aboard. So did his companion.

And Away They Go.

The street car rolled along and Mr. Cotten and his companion sat solemnly interrogating an advertisement in which a portly lady in the costume of a cook extended an invitation to have a can of beans. Then Mr. Cotten, uninterested further in beans, turned his head. His eyes widened in astonishment. This is what he saw:

Sam Low, William John, Kwo Hall, and Quon Courtheld.

All Chinese. All peacefully on the way home and none having the slightest idea that such a person as Harley J. Cotten ever lived. Mr. Cotten pulled himself erect.

"I eat Chinamen," said he.

"Same here," said his companion.

The car was full of passengers. In another instant it was full of action. Mr. Cotten projected himself into the foursome of Chinese as if his whole ancestry had devoted itself to nursing a distaste for oriental culture.

There was a startling staccato of shrieks from as far back as the Ting dynasty as the astounded Chinese youths found themselves, arms, legs, hips, and elbows, involved in a multiplicity of action the like of which hasn't been seen since the battle of Waterloo.

All Becomes Confusion.

Women screamed and dropped their infants, men bawled lustily and dropped their newspapers, the conductor dropped his chewing gum, and the motorman stopped the car and yelled for the police.

The howls of the frightened passengers, the screams of women, and the dynastic chatter of the Chinese attracted a Stock Yards flivver squad. The police hove aboard, and after a vigorous sifting of human particles pried Mr. Cotten loose from three of the Chinese. His companion was separated from the fourth. Mr. Cotten, his companion, and the four Chinese were bundled into the squad car.

In the Stock Yards station the Chinese sat mutely trying to understand. Mr. Cotten gazed drearily at a spot in the floor. Policeman John Brady made a hasty inventory and then turned to Mr. Cotten with a threatening gesture.

"There was six," he said. "Three four Chinks and you and your friend. Where's your friend?"

Mr. Cotten's companion had vanished. Mr. Cotten stifled a yawn and stared benignly at the policeman. Then he said: "He was ashamed."

"Ashamed," echoed Policeman Brady. "Ashamed of what?"

Mr. Cotten grinned modestly. "He trimmed only one Chinaman," he said. "I trimmed three."

And so grinning Mr. Cotten's hat brim slid gently over his brow and he dozed off into a much needed nap.

Bonus and Building Give Impetus.

3 Tribune Stations

The three Public Service offices of THE TRIBUNE, at 1 South Dearborn street, 4152 West Madison street, and 1101 East 63d street, are assisting ex-service men in making their bonus loan applications. The downtown office will be open from 8:30 a. m. to midnight, and the west and south side offices from 8:30 a. m. to 10 p. m. Special staffs are provided to aid bonus loan applicants.

A flood of money in the form of bonus loan checks will be realesed into the Chicago area today. Approximately a quarter of a million dollars will be mailed daily to war veterans from the Chicago office of the veterans' bureau in the coming months. Similar amounts will issue daily from other branches of the bureau in Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and Iowa.

As this rejuvenating stream of ready money continues pouring into the pockets of the veterans, spending by state and federal governments in Chicagoland will begin on a huge scale. A survey yesterday revealed that more than a quarter of a billion dollars will be spent this spring and summer in Illinois and its neighboring states on roads, waterways, buildings and kindred projects.

New Stimulus to Business.

A financial authority likened this pouring of cash into the area to a blood transfusion for an ailing patient. Financial anemia in the middle west will quickly be replaced by healthy prosperity when this mighty stream of spending money begins to circulate, he predicted.

The bonus loans starting today will bring an immediate response in improvement of business conditions, experts said. The loans will be spent, not hoarded as savings, inquiry among the loan applicants indicated.

The program of state and federal governments will put more money into the pockets of thousands of employés for spending purposes.

288 Millions for Spending.

Waterways	$ 9,780,000
Roads	73,000,000
Road issues for improvements	105,391,600
Federal building projects	40,400,000
Veterans bonus loans	60,000,000
Total	$288,580,600

In surveying the spending program of states and the federal government in this area, the expenditures of the government on waterways were first considered.

Under the allotments prepared by army engineers in planning the spending of $22,500,000 appropriated for river and harbor improvements in the emergency construction bill signed last December by President Hoover, a total of $8,632,000 will be devoted to work on the upper Mississippi valley division, which includes the Ohio and Missouri rivers. To this figure must be added $1,157,000 to be devoted to improvements of rivers and harbors in the great lakes region.

$1,200,000 for Illinois Seaway.

These figures include the sum of $1,200,000 to be spent immediately on the Illinois waterway.

The next item on the program was road construction. The total proposed expenditure for highways in Illinois during 1931 is $45,000,000. This figure includes federal and state funds.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has estimated that Indiana has $8,883,000 for immediate expenditure on highways, including state and federal funds; that Michigan has $3,705,168; Wisconsin, $5,182,042, and Iowa, $5,078,168.

Locally, Cook county will soon receive $3,845,557 as its share of the gasoline tax. The county board has already accepted bids totaling $759,000 for immediate road work.

Thirty-one federal building projects are scheduled for Illinois. Fifteen have been authorized at a total cost of $27,955,000. The largest item in this total is the cost of the new Chicago postoffice, $23,675,000. Eleven projects with a total cost of $8,800,000 are planned in Michigan, and twelve projects with a total cost of $2,645,000 are planned in Indiana.

The figure of $195,291,600 in the

Cook county, $2,750,000 for a new nurses' home and highways; City of Chicago, $22,516,600 for street widening, bridges, playgrounds, traffic, and street lights; sanitary district, $42,500,000, mainly for sewage treatment plants; Lincoln park, $9,000,000 for land extensions, boulevards, and bridges; south parks, $28,625,000 for lake front improvements, Fine Arts building, outer drive bridge and boulevards.

Farm relief loan funds have not yet been considered in the tabulation since much of the money has been tied up in stabilization of wheat, cotton, and other commodities. Charity funds, such as the governor's relief fund in Chicago totaling $5,000,000, the social agencies fund of $5,250,000, and other funds were not included.

Loan Applications Pour In.

Needy war veterans again thronged headquarters of the veterans' bureau yesterday, placing their names on application blanks for the bonus loans.

The downtown office of the bureau at 320 South Wells street received more than 1,000 applications and 500 were filed at Hines hospital. The three Public Service offices of THE TRIBUNE provided application blanks for 2,600 veterans.

No checks were sent out yesterday, but today the work of mailing out the checks will begin in earnest, according to Col. Hugh Scott, regional director of the veterans' bureau.

With an augmented force of clerks, it is hoped to mail out about 1,000 checks a day. With the average loan about $250, this would mean a steady stream of funds at the rate of $250,000 daily pouring out into the Chicago district.

There are approximately 357,000 veterans in Illinois, of whom 130,000 are in Cook county, Col. Scott estimated. In the neighboring states of Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa, approximately 950,000 veterans eligible to the bonus loans reside.

200 Bonus Millions to Midwest.

The figure of $60,000,000 listed in the table as to be paid out in bonus loans was the estimate of one official on payments to be made immediately. Payments to veterans in the middle western states will eventually total more than two hundred million dollars, it is believed.

New headquarters of the veterans' bureau will be opened today at 206 West Van Buren street. Larger offices and a staff three times as large as the one swamped by 18,000 eager applicants on Saturday will be on hand.

Col. Scott again issued a plea that only the actually needy come forward at this time to get loans, which may be made up to 50 per cent of the face value of the veterans' adjusted compensation certificates.

"Most of the persons waiting in line are the ones who really need it," he said. "Many are actually hungry and desperate."

TREASURY ACTS TO RAISE BONUS LOAN MILLIONS

Over a Billion for Other Purposes Sought.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—As part of one of the largest financing operations since the war, the treasury department today commenced the raising of funds for loans to veterans on bonus certificates.

OGDEN L. MILLS.
[Harris & Ewing.]

An offering of bonds and certificates of indebtedness aggregating 1 billion 400 millions, of which 300 millions is for bonus loans, was announced by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. In spite of warnings that the financing of the bonus loans might force interest rates upward, the rate fixed on bonds was as low as on any previous long term issue since the war, and the rate on six months certificates was the lowest on record. The aggregate amount also was 200 millions less than Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills recently told the senate finance committee in opposing bonus loan legislation would have to be raised in the March quarterly financing operations.

Three Offerings Made.

The securities offered today, all to be dated March 16, were the following:

A twelve months issue of certificates of indebtedness totaling 600 millions and bearing interest at 2 per cent.

The 3½ per cent interest rate is the same as was applied to the last bonds issued by the treasury, a 20 year security issued in June, 1928. The 1½ per cent interest rate is a reduction from the 1¾ per cent rate applying on six months certificates issued last December. The 1½ per cent rate establishes a new low record for six months certificates, although 90 day treasury bills were recently issued at a lower rate. The 2 per cent rate is a slight increase from the 1¾ per cent rate on twelve month certificates issued in December.

Today's offerings of bonds and certificates of indebtedness represent no increase whatever in the public debt. The aggregate of the half billion of bonds and the 600,000 millions in twelve months certificates of indebtedness will be exactly the amount necessary to refinance 1 billion, 100 millions of 3½ per cent treasury notes, which have been called for redemption on March 15. The maturing 3½ per cent notes will be accepted in payment for these two issues. The treasury will make a saving in interest charges in the refinancing operation.

The 300 millions in six months certificates will furnish cash needed for loans on bonus certificates. In issuing these certificates, the treasury will cancel an equivalent amount of special certificates bearing 4 per cent interest, which are held in the adjusted service certificate fund, which is being accumulated for the eventual retirement of the 20 year bonus certificates. The certificates in this sinking fund, now totaling about 730 millions, are counted as a part of the 16 billion public debt. Their sale or the sale of equivalent securities to the public does not change the amount of the public debt, but merely increases the amount of government securities held by the general public.

Make Profit on Interest.

While from the treasury standpoint, the sale of the bonus sinking fund securities to the public is undesirable in that it increases the amount to be offered at a time when financing operations are necessary in large volume for other purposes, there will be an actual profit on converting the 4 per cent certificates into 1½ per cent certificates.

Treasury officials held the bonus loan money down to 300 millions, with a hope that the amount of loans might not reach a billion dollars, which would be the total if 75 per cent of the veterans took advantage of the new law increasing maximum loans from 22½ to 50 per cent of the face value of the bonus certificates.

It is figured that the 300 millions will be sufficient for loans up to the time of the June quarterly financing operations. If it is not, the treasury can issue 60 or 90 day treasury bills at any time. In June, it is expected that at least 400 millions additional will be needed for bonus loans.

Millions Available Earlier.

The adjusted service certificate fund, now containing about 730 millions in securities, can be supplemented by about $50,000,000 in the government life insurance fund, the new bonus law providing that the loans should be credited to these two funds. Under a provision in the second deficiency act, the annual installment of 112 million dollars which would ordinarily be available for the purchase of securities for the sinking fund on Jan. 1, next, will be available on July 1 of this year. This will boost the funds available for bonus loans up to more than 890 millions. Until the total loans go above that amount there will be no increase in the present public debt.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Mills, in estimating before the senate finance committee that it would be necessary to raise 1 billion, 600 millions in the March financing operations, figured that besides the 1 billion, 100 millions to refund the 3½ per cent notes, 400 millions would be needed for bonus loans and an extra 100 millions to meet current expenditures over and above amounts available from the March income tax and other receipts.

Income Tax Totals Unknown.

As yet, the treasury is in the dark as to how great a shrinkage in revenues there will be in the March income tax payments. The experts are figuring a drop of 100 millions from last March. Secretary Mellon has estimated the probable treasury deficit for the year ending June 30 at 500 millions. A deficit of this amount would mean a net increase during the year of about $60,000,000, as about 440 millions of the debt will be retired through statutory sinking fund operations.

It is probable that the 12 year bond issue would have been considerably greater than 500 millions if the treasury had been certain that the senate in the closing days of the session of congress would pass the bill already approved by the house increasing by 3 billions the authority for the issuance of bonds granted by the second Liberty loan act and also exempting future bond issues from all income taxes.

Treasury officials held that the present short term indebtedness, amounting to about 2 billions, 300 millions, is too large, in view of large refunding operations necessary in two years, when more than 6 billions of securities become due or callable.

VETERANS, BROKE IN PARIS, RUSH TO GET LOANS ON BONUSES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 1.—News of the passage of the bonus loan bill back home precipitated such a rush at the American Legion offices that applications threaten to give out and an order has been rushed to Washington for more.

The bonus loans will rescue many veterans in Paris who are destitute and who are experiencing the humiliation of accepting assistance from the American Aid society. Several who are scheduled for repatriation by the society because of being unable any longer to make a living here have been given a new lease on existence in Paris.

Applications in Paris will not total more than 100. The Legion as well as the Veterans of Foreign Wars has been authorized to swear in applicants, thus avoiding a visit to the American consulate.

RAID EVIDENCE AWAITS POLICE JURORS TODAY

Expect School Rum Story from South Side.

When the special police grand jury investigating charges of police graft and corruption meets today, after a recess since Feb. 18, it will hear evidence obtained by detectives from the state's attorney's office in new weekend raids on south side booze, gambling, and vice dens.

The newest sally by the investigators was staged early yesterday on the Hotel Wychmere, 121 East 18th street, in the South State street police district, less than twenty hours after they had struck four times in the Woodlawn police district. In the latter instances they made a triple raid Saturday on a meat market, a vegetable store, and an alcohol cutting plant, all alleged to be operating as a booze unit. In another instance they made a single sortie on a handbook.

Five Are Arrested.

In the raid on the Wychmere hotel Sergt. Robert Bennett, attached to the racket branch of the state's attorney's office, arrested Frank Robert, the clerk; Virgil Shepherd, colored porter; Kitty Foster and Irene Barrett, alleged inmates, and Walter Luegge, 2246 North Racine avenue, who was described as a guest.

Evidence in these arrests may be submitted to the grand jury today, it is said, along with information exposing the selling of gin and other intoxicants to high school students. One of the probable witnesses today is Don Teeling, 20 years old, son of Lieut. George Teeling of the Woodlawn station, who was taken into custody Saturday in the triple raid. The speakeasy and meat-vegetable stores were operated by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kahn at 1504 and 1507 East 63d street, and the cutting plant was at 6327 Harper avenue. The Kahns were arrested.

Say Parents Complained.

The raid was prompted, it was said, by complaints from parents that their children, attending the Hyde Park High school, were being sold gin. One phase of the sale of liquor to minors was revealed Saturday morning in another case when Monica Henderson, 13 years old, a runaway student of St. Patrick's academy, Momence, Ill., told Judge Howard Hayes in the Grand Crossing court of a gay visit to a speakeasy apartment frequented by high school students.

Officials in charge of the grand jury investigation were silent last night on what might occur today. They are Assistant State's Attorney Charles Mueller and Charles Lounsbury. "I do not know what the jury will do," said Mueller. "We are to meet tomorrow after a recess of almost two weeks. What is to be done is entirely up to the jurors themselves."

Expect South Side Evidence.

However, it was believed last night that the jurors will take up their investigation of conditions generally on the south side, particularly in the Englewood district, which is commanded by Capt. Michael W. Lee. The jury, described as a militant body, has already delivered a demand on Acting Superintendent John H. Alcock, to suspend seven policemen in Capt. Lee's district for corruption. Alcock has made charges against the policemen, but he refused to suspend them.

The men whose suspensions were asked are Sergt. John J. Ferry, said to have posed around as "the captain's man"; his partner, Policeman Fred B. Kelly, and Policemen Joseph O'Brien, Ira L. O'Hara, Patrick J. Nolan, Owen Small, and Louis Starr. All have appeared before the grand jury, and all have refused to sign immunity waivers and to testify.

Accused by Booze Sellers.

They were called for questioning in connection with charges by speakeasy and handbook owners that they paid protection money to police. Capt. Lee, who was interrogated outside of the grand jury rooms by Mueller and Lounsbury, asserted he believed his district clean, and that he knew of no graft or protection given by his men.

Detective Robert Bennett and Arthur Wachholz, who made the triple raid Saturday evening, said their evidence would be turned over to the federal authorities.

Dies After Booze Party.

As authorities continued their inquiry into booze conditions, especially those covering the sale of illicit drinks to minors, the coroner's office received a report of the sudden death of Richard Harter, 22 years old, 1332 North Dearborn parkway, college graduate, as the supposed result of a drinking party in a near north side studio.

Harter collapsed and died while in the apartment of Ralph Locke, Stanley McKay, and John Carpenter at 148 West Goethe street early yesterday. Investigation disclosed the four men had drunk some gin, a quantity of which was confiscated by Hudson avenue police for examination. A preliminary examination by Dr. Samuel Levinson, coroner's physician, revealed no trace of liquor poisoning. In addition Harter's companions felt no ill effects from their indulgence.

Young Harter was graduated from Carthage college at Carthage, Ill., and was the son of Edgar M. Harter, a wealthy farmer living near Carthage. Harter was employed by a chemical company since his graduation last June.

Another booze death under investigation is that of David Meyers, 75 years old, 7607 Champlain avenue, assistant superintendent of the Illinois Steel mills. Wood alcohol, contained in a glass of brandy, caused his death. Treff Cota, 7310 Langley avenue, his friend, who gave him the drink, was arrested later and released on $1,000 bond.

STATE SEEKING 2 WITNESSES IN KIRKLAND CASE

Prosecution Planning to Rest Today.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Valparaiso, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Prosecutor John Underwood had investigators working today in a last minute effort to find two "lost" witnesses to testify tomorrow against Virgil Kirkland, on trial for the murder of Arlene Draves.

PROSECUTOR JOHN UNDERWOOD.

Ever since the gang rape and death of Arlene during a drunken revel last Nov. 29, the shocked community has been whispering a story that Kirkland, in a boastful moment prior to the fatal party, had told friends that "if Babe doesn't come across with me, I'll fix her so that no one else will ever have her."

Learning of the story when he first began preparing the state's case, Mr. Underwood made repeated efforts to trace it down. These efforts were futile, he said today.

Companions Questioned.

"As we got it, Kirkland made the threat against Arlene in conversation with a couple of his old high school chums about the time he first began keeping company with her," Mr. Underwood explained. "The Gary police questioned a number of Kirkland's supposed confidants. Whether they denied it to avoid testifying, we don't know. It's possible that we didn't question the right boys. That's what we are trying to find out today."

The prosecutor indicated he had small hopes of the lost witnesses being found. In the event the hunt is unsuccessful, he said, the state would call its last two witnesses tomorrow morning with the expectation of resting the case by noon.

The last witnesses for the state probably will be Dr. G. H. Stoner, one of Valparaiso's oldest and most prominent physicians, and Policeman Ellis Thomas of Gary.

To Testify as Expert.

Qualifying Dr. Stoner as a medical expert, the state expects his testimony to add weight and authority to that given earlier by Dr. J. B. Burcham of Gary. Dr. Burcham, the Lake county coroner's physician, who performed an autopsy on Arlene's body, diagnosed her death as due to a combination of brain concussions and internal hemorrhages, superinduced by the shock of repeated ravishment.

By use of hypothetical questions on cross-examination, Attorney Ronald Oldham of defense counsel won from Dr. Burcham a qualified admission that it was possible for Arlene to have died of brain concussion alone.

Since the defense contends that Arlene suffered the brain injury in an accidental fall, and further avers that she could, in fact, have died only of that injury, Dr. Burcham's testimony became, from a legal standpoint, the crux of the case.

Hope to Strengthen Case.

The state, Mr. Underwood said, will put to Dr. Stoner the same hypothetical question asked of Dr. Burcham, in the autopsy. The prosecuter indicated that Dr. Stoner's testimony will strengthen the state's contention that, had not the girl been ravished, she would be alive today.

Policeman Thomas is being called to corroborate certain details of the story of the state's star witness, Victoria Leonard, who swore she saw Kirkland come into a Gary restaurant from a parked car with blood on his knuckles and heard him say to a companion, "Boy, I gave her a good one that time—now's your chance."

Should the physician and policeman finish by noon, Defense Attorneys Oscar B. Thiel, Ronald Oldham, Barratt O'Hara and John Crumpacker probably will spend the rest of the day in argument before Attorney Crumpacker's father, Judge Grant Crumpacker, asking a directed verdict of acquittal.

Incidentally the sight of an attorney pleading a case before his own father has occasioned no comment here, where the Crumpackers have been for generations one of the most esteemed families of the community.

State Case to Be Attacked.

The directed verdict plea, Attorney Thiel said, will be based on the contention that the state has at most merely established Arlene's death, but has failed to link Kirkland with a single contributory act of violence.

Unless the defense strategy is altered, Kirkland, himself, will follow Dr. Harger on the stand. The young defendant is expected to confine his testimony to events immediately preceding and during the party.

Kirkland, according to Attorney Thiel, will admit having had relations with Arlene that night, but will testify that she encouraged him and swear the relations were mutually voluntary.

A NIGHT LETTER from Ring Lardner

East Hampton, N. Y., March 1.—[Special.]—Landlords of the various state insane asylums are wishing with all their hearts that the inmates of their institutions would follow the example of convicts and engineer a series of jail breaks at this time. On the contrary, the admittance offices of the bug houses are flooded these days with requests for rooms without bath in the violent wards. Most of these cases were compos mentis until they took a long, lingering look at their federal income tax blanks.

RUSSIA STARTS TRIAL OF 14 FOR COUNTER REVOLT

Men Holding High State Offices Accused.

MOSCOW, March 1.—(AP)—The second big counter revolutionary trial in the last few months opened this evening in the hall of columns before a reasonably crowded house, but the enthusiasm attending last December was notably lacking.

N. B. KRILENKO. [Acme Photo.]

All the acters were present, including fourteen gloomy and mostly bewhispered defendants; five judges, one of them a woman; the fiery prosecutor, N. B. Krilenko, and two defense counsels.

The trial opened at about 6:20 p. m. when the five judges took their seats and called on the defendants to give their names, ages, class standing and so on. After the lengthy indictments were read each defendant stepped forward and pleaded guilty. Court then adjourned until tomorrow.

Defendants Are Men of Note.

Vladimir Groman, a noted economist.
Nicholas Sukhanov, an economist.
Isaac Rubin, a professor of political economy.
Michael Yakubovich, former assistant chief of the supplies section of the trade commissariat.
Alexander Finn-Enotayevsky, professor of political economy.
Ivan Petunin of the managing board of the central co-operatives.
Boris Berlatsky of the State bank.
Vladmir Skov, journalist.
Moses Teitelbaum of the trade commissariat.
Vasily Shey, manager of the State bank.

Some Have Bolshevik Whiskers.

Most of the defendants are obviously of the intelligentsia, although some wear whiskers of such a pronounced bolshevik type they resembled an American cartoon of a typical communist.

As to the others connected with the trial, Krilenko wore the same "shooting clothes" as in the previous trial.

SOVIETS CLEANSE PUBLIC OFFICES; 138,000 OUSTED

MOSCOW, March 1.—(AP)—Despite the serious shortage of workers and charges of forced labor, authorities have announced that through a special "cleansing" process some 138,000 government public employés in the soviet union have been dismissed from service. It was stated that more than 123,000 persons have been thoroughly examined and "cleansed." Numerous others were transferred to different jobs, for which they were thought better fitted, and many were demoted for lack of skill. A large percentage were dismissed outright.

The principal causes of the dismissals were described as "distortion of the government policy, bureaucratism, and incompetence."

The official statement said "incurable bureaucrats, embezzlers of government funds, ex-czarists, landlords, former gendarmerie officers, ex-police officials, ecclesiastical servants, and other inveterate enemies of the soviet system were dismissed under the first category." These workers cannot be reemployed in government offices, but they may engage in other occupations.

Patriotic Societies Ask Ban on Russian Products

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(AP)—An embargo against Russian products was urged today in a letter to President Hoover by John B. Trevor of New York, chairman of the American coalition of patriotic societies. Trevor enclosed a resolution favoring an embargo he said had been adopted by delegates from 28 societies.

Youth Sentenced to Army, but Army Won't Admit Him

Baltimore, Md., March 1.—(AP)—The 3d corps army headquarters has refused to accept the enlistment of a Somerset, Pa., youth, ordered by a jurist to "join the army and learn some discipline." He had stolen an automobile. Orders to block the enlistment were sent into three states today from corps headquarters here. The army pointed to its "high standards of character" and said conviction of a crime is a bar against admission. Unless the youth succeeds in entering the army or navy in three months he faces a jail sentence, the judge said.

Cook county, $2,750,000 for a new nurses' home and highways; City of Chicago, $22,516,600 for street widening, bridges, playgrounds, traffic, and street lights; sanitary district, $42,500,000, mainly for sewage treatment plants; Lincoln park, $9,000,000 for land extensions, boulevards, and bridges; south parks, $28,625,000 for lake front improvements, Fine Arts building, outer drive bridge and boulevards.

Farm relief loan funds have not yet been considered in the tabulation since much of the money has been tied up in stabilization of wheat, cotton, and other commodities. Charity funds, such as the governor's relief fund in Chicago totaling $5,000,000, the social agencies fund of $5,250,000, and other funds were not included.

Loan Applications Pour In.

Needy war veterans again thronged headquarters of the veterans' bureau yesterday, placing their names on application blanks for the bonus loans.

The downtown office of the bureau at 330 South Wells street received more than 1,000 applications and 500 were filed at Hines hospital. The three Public Service offices of THE TRIBUNE provided application blanks for 2,600 veterans.

No checks were sent out yesterday, but today the work of mailing out the checks will begin in earnest, according to Col. Hugh Scott, regional director of the veterans' bureau.

With an augmented force of clerks, it is hoped to mail out about 1,000 checks a day. With the average loan about $250, this would mean a steady stream of funds at the rate of $250,000 daily pouring out into the Chicago district.

There are approximately 357,000 veterans in Illinois, of whom 130,000 are in Cook county, Col. Scott estimated. In the neighboring states of Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa, approximately 950,000 veterans eligible to the bonus loans reside.

200 Bonus Millions to Midwest.

The figure of $60,000,000 listed in the table as to be paid out in bonus loans was the estimate of one official on payments to be made immediately. Payments to veterans in the middle western states will eventually total more than two hundred million dollars, it is believed.

New headquarters of the veterans' bureau will be opened today at 206 West Van Buren street. Larger offices and a staff three times as large as the one swamped by 18,000 eager applicants on Saturday will be on hand.

Col. Scott again issued a plea that only the actually needy come forward at this time to get loans, which may be made up to 50 per cent of the face value of the veterans' adjusted compensation certificates.

"Most of the persons waiting in line are the ones who really need it," he said. "Many are actually hungry and desperate."

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—As part of one of the largest financing operations since the war, the treasury department today commenced the raising of funds for loans to veterans on bonus certificates.

OGDEN L. MILLS. [Harris & Ewing.]

An offering of bonds and certificates of indebtedness aggregating 1 billion 400 millions, of which 300 millions is for bonus loans, was announced by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. In spite of warnings that the financing of the bonus loans might force interest rates upward, the rate fixed on bonds was as low as on any previous long term issue since the war, and the rate on six months certificates was the lowest on record. The aggregate amount also was 200 millions less than Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills recently told the senate finance committee in opposing bonus loan legislation would have to be raised in the March quarterly financing operations.

Three Offerings Made.

The securities offered today, all to be dated March 16, were the following:

A twelve months issue of certificates of indebtedness totaling 600 millions and bearing interest at 2 per cent.

The 3½ per cent interest rate is the same as was applied to the last bonds issued by the treasury, a 20 year security issued in June, 1928. The 1½ per cent interest rate is a reduction from the 1¾ per cent rate applying on six months certificates issued last December. The 1½ per cent rate establishes a new low record for six months certificates, although 90 day treasury bills were recently issued at a lower rate. The 2 per cent rate is a slight increase from the 1¾ per cent rate on twelve month certificates issued in December.

Today's offerings of bonds and certificates of indebtedness represent no increase whatever in the public debt. The aggregate of the half billion of bonds and the 600,000 millions in twelve months certificates of indebtedness will be exactly the amount necessary to refinance 1 billion, 100 millions of 3½ per cent treasury notes, which have been called for redemption on March 15. The maturing 3½ per cent notes will be accepted in payment for these two issues. The treasury will make a saving in interest charges in the refinancing operation.

The 300 millions in six months certificates will furnish cash needed for loans on bonus certificates. In issuing these certificates, the treasury will cancel an equivalent amount of special certificates bearing 4 per cent interest, which are held in the adjusted service certificate fund, which is being accumulated for the eventual retirement of the 20 year bonus certificates. The certificates in this sinking fund, now totaling about 730 millions, are counted as a part of the 16 billion public debt. Their sale or the sale of equivalent securities to the public does not change the amount of the public debt, but merely increases the amount of government securities held by the general public.

Make Profit on Interest.

While from the treasury standpoint, the sale of the bonus sinking fund securities to the public is undesirable in that it increases the amount to be offered at a time when financing operations are necessary in large volume for other purposes, there will be an actual profit on converting the 4 per cent certificates into 1½ per cent certificates.

Treasury officials held the bonus loan money down to 300 millions, with a hope that the amount of loans might not reach a billion dollars, which would be the total if 75 per cent of the veterans took advantage of the new law increasing maximum loans from 22½ to 50 per cent of the face value of the bonus certificates.

It is figured that the 300 millions will be sufficient for loans up to the time of the June quarterly financing operations. If it is not, the treasury can issue 60 or 90 day treasury bills at any time. In June, it is expected that at least 400 millions additional will be needed for bonus loans.

Millions Available Earlier.

The adjusted service certificate fund, now containing about 730 millions in securities, can be supplemented by about $50,000,000 in the government life insurance fund, the new bonus law providing that the loans should be credited to these two funds. Under a provision in the second deficiency act, the annual installment of 112 million dollars which would ordinarily be available for the purchase of securities for the sinking fund on Jan. 1, next, will be available on July 1 of this year. This will boost the funds available for bonus loans up to more than $90 millions. Until the total loans go above that amount there will be no increase in the present public debt.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Mills, in estimating before the senate finance committee that it would be necessary to raise 1 billion, 600 millions in the March financing operations, figured that besides the 1 billion, 100 millions to refund the 3½ per cent notes, 400 millions would be needed for bonus loans and an extra 100 millions to meet current expenditures over and above amounts available from the March income tax and other receipts.

Income Tax Totals Unknown.

As yet, the treasury is in the dark as to how great a shrinkage in revenues there will be in the March income tax payments. The experts are figuring a drop of 100 millions from last March. Secretary Mellon has estimated the probable treasury deficit for the year ending June 30 at 500 millions. A deficit of this amount would mean a net increase during the year of about $60,000,000, as about 440 millions of the debt will be retired through statutory sinking fund operations.

It is probable that the 12 year bond issue would have been considerably greater than 500 millions if the treasury had been certain that the senate in the closing days of the session of congress would pass the bill already approved by the house increasing by 8 billions the authority for the issuance of bonds granted by the second Liberty loan act and also exempting future bond issues from all income taxes.

Treasury officials held that the present short term indebtedness, amounting to about 2 billions, 300 millions, is too large, in view of large refunding operations necessary in two years, when more than 6 billions of securities become due or callable.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 1.—News of the passage of the bonus loan bill back home precipitated such a rush at the American Legion offices that applications threaten to give out and an order has been rushed to Washington for more.

The bonus loans will rescue many veterans in Paris who are destitute and who are experiencing the humiliation of accepting assistance from the American Aid society. Several who are scheduled for repatriation by the society because of being unable any longer to make a living here have been given a new lease on existence in Paris.

Applications in Paris will not total more than 100. The Legion as well as the Veterans of Foreign Wars has been authorized to swear in applicants, thus avoiding a visit to the American consulate.

RAID EVIDENCE AWAITS POLICE JURORS TODAY

Expect School Rum Story from South Side.

When the special police grand jury investigating charges of police graft and corruption meets today, after a recess since Feb. 18, it will hear evidence obtained by detectives from the state's attorney's office in new weekend raids on south side booze, gambling, and vice dens.

The newest sally by the investigators was staged early yesterday on the Hotel Wychmere, 121 East 18th street, in the South State street police district, less than twenty hours after they had struck four times in the Woodlawn police district. In the latter instances they made a triple raid Saturday on a meat market, a vegetable store, and an alcohol cutting plant, all alleged to be operating as a booze unit. In another instance they made a single sortie on a handbook.

Five Are Arrested.

In the raid on the Wychmere hotel Sergt. Robert Bennett, attached to the racket branch of the state's attorney's office, arrested Frank Robert, the clerk; Virgil Shepherd, colored porter; Kitty Foster and Irene Barrett, alleged inmates, and Walter Luegge, 2246 North Racine avenue, who was described as a guest.

Evidence in these arrests may be submitted to the grand jury today, it is said, along with information exposing the selling of gin and other intoxicants to high school students. One of the probable witnesses today is Don Teeling, 20 years old, son of Lieut. George Teeling of the Woodlawn station, who was taken into custody Saturday in the triple raid. The speakeasy and meat-vegetable stores were operated by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kahn at 1504 and 1507 East 63d street, and the cutting plant was at 6327 Harper avenue. The Kahns were arrested.

Say Parents Complained.

The raid was prompted, it was said, by complaints from parents that their children, attending the Hyde Park High school, were being sold gin. One phase of the sale of liquor to minors was revealed Saturday morning in another case when Monica Henderson, 13 years old, a runaway student of St. Patrick's academy, Momence, Ill., told Judge Howard Hayes in the Grand Crossing court of a gay visit to a speakeasy apartment frequented by high school students.

Officials in charge of the grand jury investigation were silent last night on what might occur today. They are Assistant State's Attorney Charles Mueller and Charles Lounsbury. "I do not know what the jury will do," said Mueller. "We are to meet tomorrow after a recess of almost two weeks. What is to be done is entirely up to the jurors themselves."

Expect South Side Evidence.

However, it was believed last night that the jurors will take up their investigation of conditions generally on the south side, particularly in the Englewood district, which is commanded by Capt. Michael W. Lee. The jury, described as a militant body, has already delivered a demand on Acting Superintendent John H. Alcock, to suspend seven policemen in Capt. Lee's district for corruption. Alcock has made charges against the policemen, but he refused to suspend them.

The men whose suspensions were asked are Sergt. John J. Ferry, said to have posed around as "the captain's man"; his partner, Policeman Fred B. Kelly, and Policemen Joseph O'Brien, Ira L. O'Hara, Patrick J. Nolan, Owen Small, and Louis Starr. All have appeared before the grand jury, and all have refused to sign immunity waivers and to testify.

Accused by Booze Sellers.

They were called for questioning in connection with charges by speakeasy and handbook owners that they paid protection money to police. Capt. Lee, who was interrogated outside of the grand jury rooms by Mueller and Lounsbury, asserted he believed his district clean, and that he knew of no graft or protection given by his men.

Detective Robert Bennett and Arthur Wachholz, who made the triple raid Saturday evening, said their evidence would be turned over to the federal authorities.

Dies After Booze Party.

As authorities continued their inquiry into booze conditions, especially those covering the sale of illicit drinks to minors, the coroner's office received a report of the sudden death of Richard Harter, 22 years old, 1332 North Dearborn parkway, college graduate, as the supposed result of a drinking party in a near north side studio.

Harter collapsed and died while in the apartment of Ralph Locke, Stanley McKay, and John Carpenter at 148 West Goethe street early yesterday. Investigation disclosed the four men had drunk some gin, a quantity of which was confiscated by Hudson avenue police for examination. A preliminary examination by Dr. Samuel Levinson, coroner's physician, revealed no trace of liquor poisoning. In addition Harter's companions felt no ill effects from their indulgence.

Young Harter was graduated from Carthage college at Carthage, Ill., and was the son of Edgar M. Harter, a wealthy farmer living near Carthage. Harter was employed by a chemical company since his graduation last June.

Another booze death under investigation is that of David Meyers, 75 years old, 7607 Champlain avenue, assistant superintendent of the Illinois Steel mills. Wood alcohol, contained in a glass of brandy, caused his death. Treff Cota, 7810 Langley avenue, his friend, who gave him the drink, was arrested later and released on $1,000 bond.

STATE SEEKING 2 WITNESSES IN KIRKLAND CASE

Prosecution Planning to Rest Today.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Valparaiso, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Prosecutor John Underwood had investigators working today in a last minute effort to find two "lost" witnesses to testify tomorrow against Virgil Kirkland, on trial for the murder of Arlene Draves.

PROSECUTOR JOHN UNDERWOOD

Ever since the gang rape and death of Arlene during a drunken revel last Nov. 29, the shocked community has been whispering a story that Kirkland, in a boastful moment prior to the fatal party, had told friends that "if Babe doesn't come across with me, I'll fix her so that no one else will ever have her."

Learning of the story when he first began preparing the state's case, Mr. Underwood made repeated efforts to trace it down. These efforts were futile, he said today.

Companions Questioned.

"As we got it, Kirkland made the threat against Arlene in conversation with a couple of his old high school chums about the time he first began keeping company with her," Mr. Underwood explained. "The Gary police questioned a number of Kirkland's supposed confidants. Whether they denied it to avoid testifying, we don't know. It's possible that we didn't question the right boys. That's what we are trying to find out today."

The prosecutor indicated he had small hopes of the lost witnesses being found. In the event the hunt is unsuccessful, he said, the state would call its last two witnesses tomorrow morning with the expectation of resting the case by noon.

The last witnesses for the state probably will be Dr. G. H. Stoner, one of Valparaiso's oldest and most prominent physicians, and Policeman Ellis Thomas of Gary.

To Testify as Expert.

Qualifying Dr. Stoner as a medical expert, the state expects his testimony to add weight and authority to that given earlier by Dr. J. B. Burcham of Gary. Dr. Burcham, the Lake county coroner's physician, who performed an autopsy on Arlene's body, diagnosed her death as due to a combination of brain concussions and internal hemorrhages, superinduced by the shock of repeated ravishment.

By use of hypothetical questions on cross-examination, Attorney Ronald Oldham of defense counsel won from Dr. Burcham a qualified admission that it was possible for Arlene to have died of brain concussion alone.

Since the defense contends that Arlene suffered the brain injury in an accidental fall, and further avers that she could, in fact, have died only of that injury, Dr. Burcham's testimony became, from a legal standpoint, the crux of the case.

Hope to Strengthen Case.

The state, Mr. Underwood said, will put to Dr. Stoner the same hypothetical question asked of Dr. Burcham, in the autopsy. The prosecutor indicated that Dr. Stoner's testimony will strengthen the state's contention that, had not the girl been ravished, she would be alive today.

Policeman Thomas is being called to corroborate certain details of the story of the state's star witness, Victoria Leonard, who swore she saw Kirkland come into a Gary restaurant from a parked car with blood on his knuckles and heard him say to a companion, "Boy, I gave her a good one that time—now's your chance."

Should the physician and policeman finish by noon, Defense Attorneys Oscar B. Thiel, Ronald Oldham, Barratt O'Hara and John Crumpacker probably will spend the rest of the day in argument before Attorney Crumpacker's father, Judge Grant Crumpacker, asking a directed verdict of acquittal.

Incidentally the sight of an attorney pleading a case before his own father has occasioned no comment here, where the Crumpackers have been for generations one of the most esteemed families of the community.

State Case to Be Attacked.

The directed verdict plea, Attorney Thiel said, will be based on the contention that the state has at most merely established Arlene's death, but has failed to link Kirkland with a single contributory act of violence.

Unless the defense strategy is altered, Kirkland, himself, will follow Dr. Harger on the stand. The young defendant is expected to confine his testimony to events immediately preceding and during the party.

Kirkland, according to Attorney Thiel, will admit having had relations with Arlene that night, but will testify that she encouraged him and swear the relations were mutually voluntary.

A Night Letter from Ring Lardner

East Hampton, N. Y., March 1.—[Special.]—Landlords of the various state insane asylums are wishing with all their hearts that the inmates of their institutions would follow the example of convicts and engineer a series of jail breaks at this time. On the contrary, the admittance offices of the bug houses are flooded these days with requests for rooms without bath in the violent wards. Most of these cases were compos mentis until they took a long, lingering look at their federal income tax blanks.

RUSSIA STARTS TRIAL OF 14 FOR COUNTER REVOLT

Men Holding High State Offices Accused.

MOSCOW, March 1.—(AP)—The second big counter revolutionary trial in the last few months opened this evening in the hall of columns before a reasonably crowded house, but the enthusiasm attending last December was notably lacking.

N. B. KRILENKO. (Asme Photo.)

All the actors were present, including fourteen gloomy and mostly bewhispered defendants; five judges, one of them a woman; the fiery prosecutor, N. B. Krilenko, and two defense counsels.

The trial opened at about 6:20 p. m. when the five judges took their seats and called on the defendants to give their names, ages, class standing and so on. After the lengthy indictments were read each defendant stepped forward and pleaded guilty. Court then adjourned until tomorrow.

Defendants Are Men of Note.

The defendants are:

Vladimir Groman, a noted economist.
Nicholas Sukhanov, an economist.
Isaac Rubin, a professor of political economy.
Michael Yakubovich, former assistant chief of the supplies section of the trade commissariat.
Alexander Finn-Enotayevsky, professor of political economy.
Ivan Petunin of the managing board of the central co-operatives.
Boris Berlatsky of the State bank.
Vladmir Skev, journalist.
Moses Teitelbaum of the trade commissariat.
Vasily Shev, manager of the State bank.

Some Have Bolshevik Whiskers.

Most of the defendants are obviously of the intelligentsia, although some wear whiskers of such a pronounced bolshevik type they resembled an American cartoon of a typical communist.

As to the others connected with the trial, Krilenko wore the same "shooting clothes" as in the previous trial.

SOVIETS CLEANSE PUBLIC OFFICES; 138,000 OUSTED

MOSCOW, March 1.—(AP)—Despite the serious shortage of workers and charges of forced labor, authorities have announced that through a special "cleansing" process some 138,000 government public employes in the soviet union have been dismissed from service. It was stated that more than 123,000 persons have been thoroughly examined and "cleansed." Numerous others were transferred to different jobs, for which they were thought better fitted, and many were demoted for lack of skill. A large percentage were dismissed outright.

The principal causes of the dismissals were described as "distortion of the government policy, bureaucratism, and incompetence."

The official statement said "incurable bureaucrats, embezzlers of government funds, ex-czarists, landlords, former gendarmerie officers, ex-police officials, ecclesiastical servants, and other inveterate enemies of the soviet system were dismissed under the first category." These workers cannot be reemployed in government offices, but they may engage in other occupations.

Patriotic Societies Ask Ban on Russian Products

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(AP)—An embargo against Russian products was urged today in a letter to President Hoover by John B. Trevor of New York, chairman of the American coalition of patriotic societies. Trevor enclosed a resolution favoring an embargo he said had been adopted by delegates from 15 societies.

Youth Sentenced to Army, but Army Won't Admit Him

Baltimore, Md., March 1.—(AP)—The 3d corps army headquarters has refused to accept the enlistment of a Somerset, Pa., youth, ordered by a jurist to "join the army and learn some discipline." He had stolen an automobile. Orders to block the enlistment were sent into three states today from corps headquarters here. The army pointed to its "high standards of character" and said conviction of a crime is a bar against admission. Unless the youth succeeds in entering the army or navy in three months he faces a jail sentence, the judge said.

ADEQUATE NAVY TO BE ASKED OF NEXT CONGRESS

No Advantage Gained by Curtailed Program.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—A movement to ask the next congress to approve a five or ten year naval construction program, involving the expenditure of from half a billion to a billion dollars on new warships, is gaining momentum among navy leaders in the house and senate, as well as among naval officers.

ADMIRAL PRATT. [U. & U. Photo.]

The action of the present congress in scrapping the navy's new construction bill submitted last December by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams as the first installment of ten year program to build up to the maximum tonnage levels of the London naval treaty is largely responsible for the growth of sentiment in favor of asking for a much larger and more comprehensive program when the 72d congress meets in December.

Size of Program Not Vital.

In the opinion of Chairmen Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] of the senate naval affairs committee and Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] of the house naval committee, it should be no more difficult to obtain approval next year of an adequate program as it would of a small one. Both pointed to the failure of the navy's small program this year as disclosing that apparently it is just as hard to get a little program to a vote in congress as a large one.

Discussing the naval situation in the light of the failure of the $74,000,000 program, Chairman Hale said that next year he would work for the adoption of a comprehensive program designed to supply the ships necessary to give this country a London treaty navy. While Mr. Hale declined to state just how big a program he favored, it was learned that he has advised friends that he expects the navy will ask nert year for approval of a program looking toward the expenditure of a billion dollars over a ten year period.

"There is no use to ask for a small program," Senator Hale said. "We ought to ask for the ships we are going to need to obtain parity."

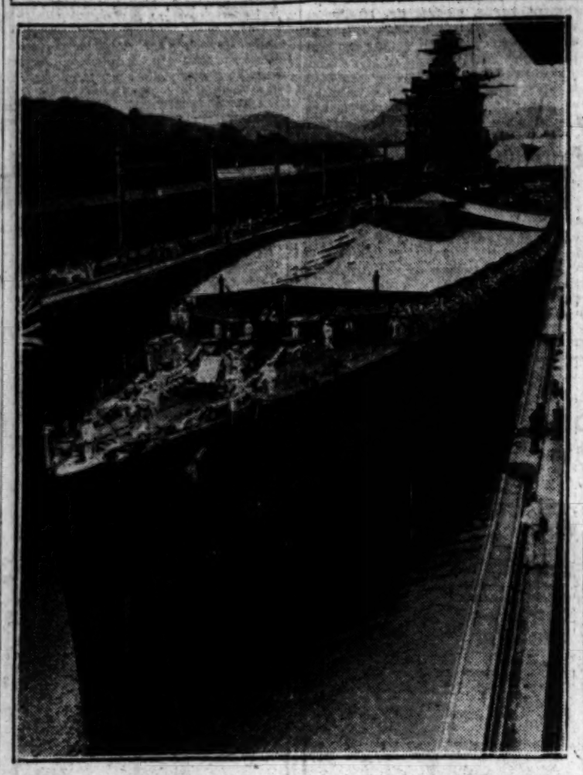
Up to Democrats.

Regardless of the size of the administration program decided upon it will be up to the next congress to decide whether this country is to adopt a policy of building up to London navy treaty strength. This means that a congress with a larger percentage of Democrats than any that has met since the Wilson administration will model the navy of the immediate future.

The fact that Senator Claude A. Swanson [Dem., Va.], ranking member of the senate naval committee, and Representative Carl Vinson [Dem., Ga.], ranking minority member of the house committee, are strongly in favor of adoption of a more comprehensive plan for building up the fleet than the one submitted this year is partly responsible for the movement to make a fight for a treaty program in the next congress.

The general board of the navy will begin studying the navy situation in the light of the action of this congress and the treaty limitations as soon as Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, returns to Washington.

Giant Warship Taxes Canal Capacity



There was only a scant foot clearance on either side when H. M. S. Nelson of the British navy negotiated the difficult passage of the Panama canal. This picture shows the Nelson being lowered into the Miraflores lock, the first one on the canal. [Acme-P. & A. Photo.]

Film Theaters Report Gain in Business Since October

While several hundred couples were dancing in the ballroom on the floor above, three gunmen last night invaded the main floor entrance of the Casino Moderne dance hall, formerly Cocoanut Grove, at 913 East 63d street, held up two girl cashiers, and escaped with $600 in receipts.

The girls, Marge Ford, 20 years old, of 6527 Kimbark avenue, and Dolores Wettling, also 20, of 8218 Loomis street, were alone in the cashier's cage when the trio appeared. Two flanked themselves on either side of the cage as the leader stepped to the front and thrust a pistol through the window. "If you scream, you'll be shot," he warned the girls.

Then the leader divided the loot with his companions on the spot, then they walked away.

FRANCE, ITALY REACH ACCORD; END NAVAL ROW

Both Are Ready to Sign London Treaty.

tonnage claims, but what inducement England offered to France is only a guess. Guesses range from a vague promise of support at the forth coming disarmament conference to a specific agreement to enforce neutrality in the North Sea.

The details of the accord will be published simultaneously in the countries involved, probably on Wednesday.

The official communique on the naval results said:

"Henderson and Alexander made Briand and Dumont acquainted with the result of conversations they had had in Rome. After their conference both ministers of foreign affairs sent their Italian colleague the following telegram:

"'We are happy to inform you that we are entirely in accord with you upon arrangements negotiated in Rome for settlement of questions concerning limitation of naval armaments left pending by the treaty in London; we are prepared to recommend it to approbation of our governments and other governments.

"'We wish to express our deep appreciation of the friendly disposition and spirit of conciliation that the Italian government has not ceased to show during the entire course of these negotiations, and more especially during the latest discussions in Rome, where it made such a loyal effort to facilitate settlement of all divergent opinions between us.

Visions Peace Strengthened.

"'We are convinced that the accord realized between representatives of our three countries will greatly contribute to the general progress of the work of consolidating the peace of the world. It is our sincere desire to neglect nothing to utilize to the profit of this work or benefits which may be derived from the atmosphere and confidence and friendship resulting from the happy event for which we congratulate ourselves and you.

"(Signed) Arthur Henderson and Aristide Briand."

NAVY OF PERU SEIZES POWER; OUSTS PRESIDENT

Junta Picks Chief Justice as New Leader.

BY C. N. GRIFFIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

LIMA, Peru, March 1.—Provisional President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, a lieutenant colonel in the army until he seized the government of Peru last August, was forced to resign today by the navy. Within the space of a few hours he and his cabinet turned over the reins to a new junta, which at once moved to end the military revolt in north and south Peru.

The new government is headed by Richard Leoncio Elias, chief justice of the Supreme court, as provisional president. Its other members are Capt. Alexandre G. Vinces, commander-in-chief of the navy, and Col. Manuel Ruiz Bravo, chief of the army general staff.

Sanchez Cerro's ouster followed the publication of an ultimatum by the navy calling upon him to resign at once in the morning papers. Oddly the manifesto was dated Feb. 27. The ultimatum declared that the navy had held up ships loaded with government troops to attack the northern and southern rebels. It was signed by Capt. Vinces, one of the members of the new junta.

President Leaves Palace.

After the ultimatum appeared in the press Sanchez Cerro immediately called leaders of national life, including army and navy officers and civilians, to meet with him at the palace at 3 o'clock. The meeting opened with Msgr. Holguin, Roman Catholic bishop at Arequipa, as the presiding officer. About 100 persons were present.

Sanchez Cerro announced his resignation. He left the palace and took refuge in the Paraguayan legation, which occupies a suite in the Bolivar hotel.

After the retiring president had gone into seclusion at his hotel, crowds gathered in the street beneath his suite and cheered him. They urged him to come out and speak but he refused.

Move to End Revolt.

In the meantime, the new junta rushed messages to military chieftains of both the loyal and rebel forces in the north and south to meet aboard the cruiser Grau to confer on the situation in an effort to end the civil war.

The developments threw Lima and the nearby port of Callao into a turmoil. Naval vessels, anchored off San Lorenzo, the political prison island, kept up steam all day and the army transports, loaded with 2,500 soldiers, which had left yesterday for the south, were halted and forced to return to the harbor.

In power little more than six months, Sanchez Cerro's resignation was brought about by events of only a little more than a few weeks.

Troops at Callao revolted Feb. 20, but were quickly suppressed. On the same day, the garrison at Arequipa in the south rose against the provisional president. A few days later the revolution had spread to the north and the fiery Sanchez Cerro dispatched troops to quell the uprisings. The only battle of the uprising was fought in the north, where four rebel soldiers were slain and the loyal divisional commander of Piura was captured.

Sanchez Cerro rode into power on the wings of an airplane from Arequipa, when the army and navy overthrew President Augusto B. Leguia and called upon the little colonel to help form a new government. Lima received the southern soldier with wild acclaim, and he was soon installed as the new president.

Leguia was sent to prison, where he remains.

But Sanchez Cerro's "iron fisted" rule annoyed the Peruvian army. His own garrison in Arequipa insisted that he had not kept his pledge to call elections and that he had violated the principles of his coup d'etat by becoming a candidate for the presidency himself. Sanchez Cerro withdrew his candidacy, but the feeling against him had grown too strong.

STUDENTS SCALE MT. WASHINGTON DURING STORM

Hanover, N. H., March 1.—(AP)—News was received here today that a party of 20 Dartmouth seniors succeeded in reaching the summit of Mount Washington yesterday under the most severe conditions ever encountered on the annual trip.

A heavy wind whipped the snow about the students and made the going almost impossible. Jack Cunningham of Springfield, O., and John Martin of Grand Rapids, Mich., were blown off the trail, but succeeded in getting back with their comrades.

When the group reached the summit after six hours, they found two men who had been confined to the summit camp for two days because of the high wind.

HENRY COOPER, DEAN OF HOUSE, IS DEAD AT 80

Wisconsin Representative Served 36 Years.

Oldest house member in point of service, the 80 year old Republican Progressive died at his hotel here early today as he rounded out 36 years of service and planned to take his seat in the coming congress.

The tall, upright, white haired and bearded "dean of the house," as he was termed by his colleagues, attended a prolonged and heated house session last night and retired late, complaining of feeling ill. Death came a few hours later with his wife at his bedside.

Injured by Fall.

Representative Cooper had suffered injuries from a fall at his home in Racine last summer and his health had been none too good since. He had also been concerned over the health of his wife, who recently underwent a serious operation. His death was attributed to acute indigestion.

The Wisconsin member represented the First district. He entered the house with the 53d congress in 1893. For one term, his service was broken. He was defeated for reëlection to the 60th congress because he voted against entering the world war along with 50 others.

Throughout his career he was an ardent supporter of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. In 1923 the La Follette group delayed three days the election of Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts as speaker by urging the selection of Cooper.

Backed La Follette Planks.

At the 1924 Republican convention in Cleveland he sponsored several planks of the La Follette group for the party platform. Later he aided La Follette in his presidential campaign.

Cooper was with Theodore Roosevelt in Milwaukee in 1912 when an attempt was made to assassinate the former President, then running for another term.

Always fearless and militant, he was looked upon as the leader of the northwestern group for many years. He was ranking member of the foreign affairs committee until removed for his clashes with Republican regulars in 1923 and 1924.

Declares Self on War.

When the country was on the verge of war in 1917, Cooper said:

"I assume that the war is to come. When it comes we will be united in support of the government. I shall do all that I can to help achieve victory for our country."

Although he later voted against war with Germany, he approved the war with Austria-Hungary. He claimed his defeat in 1918 was due to attacks by his opponent on his votes on various war measures.

Attended Northwestern.

Cooper was born at Walworth, Wis., Sept. 8, 1850. He was graduated from Northwestern university and attended Union College of Law at Chicago. He began the practice of law in Racine, where he made his home, in 1875. He served in the Wisconsin senate and was a delegate to the Republican national convention in 1884. For a time he served as district attorney for Racine county.

Speaker Longworth plans to appoint a house committee tomorrow to accompany the body to Racine, where it will lie in state. The funeral party will leave Wednesday afternoon and the house will recess tomorrow out of respect to the veteran legislator.

The death of Representative Cooper was the first in the Republican ranks for the next house. Already two deaths have occurred in the Democratic forces, but the vacancies have been filled through special elections.

The lineup for the next house now stands: Republicans, 217, with one vacancy; Democrats, 216, and Farmer-Labor, 1.

Organization of the house in the 72d congress next December will depend largely on the number of deaths and other vacancies that may occur.

March Comes in Like Feeble Lion

Four young women who have heard a lot about how "March came in as a lion" are thinking there isn't anything so formidable about the weather, even though the mercury went below the freezing point, as they glance at one of the great bronze figures that guard the Art institute.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mother Loses Life Trying to Save Son from Flames

Iowa City, Ia., March 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Henry Gray, 45, lost her life in attempting to save her son, William, 9, from their burning home early today.

ROBIN ARRIVES IN CITY; CHILL START ON MARCH

At least one chilly robin was seen in Chicago yesterday. Mrs. Albert Greenenwald, 5651 Ozark avenue, reported him hopping about in her front yard. But wiser folk than robins who could be in the southland were telling themselves through the day that it was fortunate March would be out like a woolly sheep when it came in like a lion. Certainly the first spring month roared in like a husky leonine cub.

The government forecast last night indicated that the rule of the March lion would be a short one. The prediction calls for fair weather today and slowly rising temperatures. And the blustering winds will give way to a more gentle type, according to the forecast. The low temperature yesterday was 29 at 10 a. m., and the mercury clung to the lower thirties throughout the day.

YOUTH WHO SHOT PRESIDENT RUBIO GIVEN 20 YEARS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, March 1.—Daniel Flores, the youth who attempted to assassinate President Ortiz Rubio, must spend approximately twenty years in confinement, probably in the penal settlement on the Tres Marias islands in the Pacific ocean. Formal sentence was passed last night by the judge of court of the second federal district.

According to Mexican law, Flores will be officially advised of his sentence tomorrow, and he will have five days in which to appeal for mitigation of sentence. His counsel is expected to take such action.

On Feb. 5, last year, the presidential inauguration ceremonies were drawing to a close, Ortiz Rubio having just taken the oath of office, when Flores approached the presidential automobile as it was leaving the national palace and fired five shots into the tonneau. Ortiz Rubio was wounded in the jaw.

BRITAIN SOOTHES GANDHI; AGREE ON NEW PEACE TALK

Viceroy Pledges to Ease Demands on Indians.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW DELHI, March 1.—Desperate eleventh hour efforts to avert a final breakup, and definite gestures toward a compromise at the last minute by both the British and all-India National congress members resulted in a prolongation of the peace talks tonight.

Viceroy Lord Irwin was reported to have been in a more conciliatory nature regarding certain demands of Mahatma Gandhi when he conferred with the "holy man" for three and a half hours this afternoon in the viceregal lodge. Gandhi left at 6 o'clock in order to lead the usual evening prayers. He returned to see the viceroy at 9 o'clock tonight and spent three more hours in conversation with Lord Irwin.

He refused to reveal what had occurred when he emerged other than to indicate the negotiations would be resumed Tuesday.

Agrees to Postpone Talks.

Tomorrow Gandhi will observe his 24 hours of silence, and the viceroy, in deference to the Indian's leader's vow, agreed to postpone the talks.

The turn of events today provoked surprise in all quarters, and members of the Nationalist "war council," who had reserved seats on trains last night following the word that all possibility for peace had gone, canceled them this afternoon when Gandhi brought back word that the viceroy was at least conciliatory enough to warrant further conversations.

Gandhi and the viceroy are reported to have discussed a compromise formula, which grants the Nationalists most of their demands in return for calling off the civil disobedience revolt and joining the round table conference to draw up a constitutional government.

Offer Soothes Gandhi.

The compromise offer was attractive enough to induce Gandhi to continue discussions.

After prayers tonight he presented details to the surprised members of the "war council" who agreed to remain in New Delhi until after Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Lord Irwin convoked an emergency meeting of his executive council, composed mostly of civil service bureaucrats who have spent most of their lives in India. They firmly opposed any further capitulation to the Nationalists. It adjourned at 9 when Gandhi arrived, as the Nationalist leader stipulated that his conversations with the viceroy should be strictly private. The council is reported to be divided, although a majority is against the viceroy's weakening to appease the Nationalists.

WELCOME NEW POLISH CONSUL TO CHICAGO POST

W. Zbyszewski, newly appointed Polish consul general to Chicago, was welcomed by a delegation of several hundred Americans of Polish descent when he arrived last night at the La Salle street station.

Consul Zbyszewski was a captain in the Polish army during his country's battles with the bolsheviki. Two years ago, as consul general in Jerusalem, he was wounded during an Arab uprising when he attempted to protect Jewish residents.

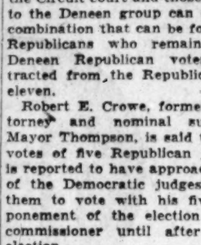
JUDGES EXPECTED TO RENAME BAIN ON PARK BOARD

Bundesen Ready to Decide on Mayoralty Race.

A. J. Cermak, Democratic candidate for mayor and also chairman of his party's county central committee, was reported yesterday as refusing to interfere in the election of a south park commissioner. This is expected to result today in the reelection of John Bain, Deneen Republican, who has served fifteen years.



JOHN BAIN.

Bain's reelection appeared certain because the nine Democratic judges of the Circuit court and those who adhere to the Deneen group can outvote any combination that can be formed of the Republicans who remain after the Deneen Republican votes are subtracted from the Republican total of eleven.

Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney and nominal supporter of Mayor Thompson, is said to claim the votes of five Republican judges. He is reported to have approached several of the Democratic judges and asked them to vote with his five for postponement of the election of a park commissioner until after the April election.

Bundesen to Decide Today.

Coroner H. N. Bundesen is expected to announce today whether he will be a candidate for mayor.

"There are many citizens growing enthusiastic over my candidacy and I appreciate their efforts," he said. "However, if I enter the race I will make the announcement personally. No one is authorized to speak for me."

This announcement of the coroner was taken as a comment upon the activities of some of the men who are posing as spokesman for him. This group includes Clifford G. Roe, an attorney who has had connections with the Crowe and the Thompson wings of the Republican party; A. F. Lorenzen, who was a reserve militia officer during the war; John J. McNeill, a west side undertaker, and others.

Roe was the one who filed Bundesen's petition prematurely. Lorenzen yesterday named himself, Roe, Jacob M. Loeb, former president of the board of education; Dr. Louis L. Schmidt and Maurice Rothschild, investment broker, as the real "Bundesen advisory board."

Cermak Rally Today.

The first roundup of Republican and independent leaders for Cermak, Democratic candidate for mayor, will take place at noon today in the rooms of the Steuben club at a luncheon at which the candidates will be present and at which Judge Henry Horner and Francis X. Busch are announced as the principal speakers. The day has been designated as "Republican day" by Clayton F. Smith, chairman of the managing committee of the Democratic party, and all of the ward leaders have been invited to bring Republicans as their guests.

Mayor Thompson yesterday was at Mount Clemens, Mich., where he will rest for several days. Several of his political friends went to the resort to visit him.

COURTLAND DINES, PAL OF ACTRESSES, PSYCHOPATHIC CASE

Denver, Colo., March 1.—[Special.]—The gay and many times hectic career of Courtland Dines, one time favored friend of Edna Purviance and the late Mabel Normand, has ended.

A petition alleging he is "incapable of taking care of his property" was filed in County court here this week, and tonight Dines, wealthy clubman and social favorite, is confined in the Colorado Springs, Colo., psychopathic hospital.

Eugene Dines, his brother, filed the petition. The commitment was signed by County Judge George Luxford, and a few minutes later Dines was taken into custody at the Brown Palace hotel.

Courtland Dines first came into national prominence when Mabel Normand's chauffeur shot him through the chest while he, Mabel, and Edna Purviance were engaged in a New Year celebration at Hollywood in January, 1924.

For a time it was feared he would die as pneumonia complicated Dines' condition. He recovered and returned to Denver, later marrying a society girl here, who since has divorced him.

Only a few days ago Dines was released from a local hospital where he had been a patient since Feb. 12. While at the Tabernash, Colo., ranch of W. R. Freeman, president of the Denver and Salt Lake railway [the Moffatt road], he fell against a stairway and fractured his left shoulder. The accident occurred while he was in the throes of a convulsion brought on by a kidney ailment.

Dines is a son of the late Tyson Dines, once president of the Midwest Refining company, now a unit of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. His father was a pioneer citizen here.

VETERAN LIFE SAVER FIGHTS TO SAVE SON; FAILS

BLYTH, Northumberland, England, March 1.—(AP)—Fred Dennis has helped to save many persons from the boisterous waters of the North sea as a member of the Blyth Life Saving company, but today he was called on to save his own son—and couldn't.

Despite rough weather this morning Fred Dennis Jr., 17; Robert Turpin, George Wallace, and Capt. Pike set out in a fishing boat. Coast guards saw the boat sink and notified the life saving company which, including the elder Dennis, hastened to the shore.

Capt. Pike held on to a spar and drifted ashore, but the other three were helpless 150 yards out. All drowned.

British Columbia Gold Strike Starts Stampede

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 1.—(AP)—A promising gold strike between Stoddart and Seymour creek, about 150 miles north of Vancouver, today caused an old time stampede. Fred Guder, a prospector, is said to have discovered the gold.

$200,000 STOCK OF PRE-VOLSTEAD LIQUOR SEIZED

Philadelphia, Pa., March 1.—(AP)—The "mystery squad" of Director of Public Safety Schofield continued its mopping up activities today by raiding the home of Daniel Dever, 80, who amassed a fortune in the wholesale liquor business prior to the enactment of the eighteenth amendment.

Rare old liquors and wines, valued by police at $200,000, were seized at the Dever home.

The seizure came almost on the heels of two spectacular raids last week at the old and aristocratic Philadelphia club and the Manufacturers' club. In those raids scores of members' lockers were opened and liquors confiscated.

At today's raid Dever was arrested on a charge of possession and released in $1,500 bail.

FLOPHOUSE VOTE PADDING IN 1ST WARD REVEALED

Discrepancies Found in Precinct Poll Lists.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The First ward, with its "flops," lodging houses, rooming places and hotels, now has more registered voters, in proportion to population, than it has had in thirty years.

The official records of the election commissioners contain evidence that these lists have been padded, and therefore unqualified persons voted in the recent mayoralty primary.

The Fifteenth precinct of the ward is bounded by Eighteenth and Cullerton streets, Michigan boulevard and the lake. The poll list shows there are 37 places of residence in the precinct and 35 of these are lodging houses.

A Discrepancy Noted.

Several of these habitations have been investigated. One is at 1823 South Michigan boulevard. The proprietor of that place filed an affidavit with the election board on Jan. 27 in which he said that the "actual bona fide residents and lodgers" of that place were three men and two women, a total of five.

The poll list shows twice as many men registered as voters from that address as the lodging house owner said lived there. The poll list shows that the following registered as voters from that number: Mrs. Ada Vaughn, Athanasia Bebis, C. F. Ellithrop, Jack Purtell, William W. Black, Thomas Britt, and James Blackburn.

From 1304 Indiana avenue 51 names appear on the list of registered voters. The proprietor of the lodging house at that address made an affidavit, on file in the election commissioners' office, that 47 lived at that address. Of these, 41 were men, yet there are 43 men on the poll list.

Five Residents; 15 Registered.

At 1340 Indiana avenue the lodging house keeper swore that three men and two women were the only bona fide residents of his establishment. The following were registered from that address on the poll books: George Bailey, Arthur Wiley, John Bolton, Lewis Rivara, Arthur J. McAllenman, Mrs. Edith Bolton, Mrs. Adele Rivara, Mrs. Alice Ranfield, Irving Black, Phil Hall, John Jordan, Harold Jost, Fred Kurth, Charles Boyer, and Mrs. Bessie Whitney.

The lodging house owner at 1838 Indiana avenue reported under oath eight men. From this address six were registered, two of whom were women.

At 1342 Indiana avenue the lodging house reported seven persons, six men and one woman. The list of registered voters showed nine men and two women.

Other Variations Found.

The proprietor of the lodging house at 1340 Calumet avenue swore seven men and four women resided at his place. The list of registered voters from this address shows fourteen men and five women.

At 1911 South Michigan boulevard four residents were reported to the election board. The poll book, however, shows eight registered from this address.

The owner of the Wychmere hotel at 125 East 18th street reported under oath 69 men and 24 women residents, a total of 93. From this address 103 were registered, of whom 71 were men and 31 were women.

Ward Won by Thompson.

The First ward is one of the wards where Mayor Thompson was given a substantial majority in last Tuesday's primary. He received 4,486 votes, as compared with 1,028 for Judge Lyle, 668 for Ald. Albert, and 139 for George K. Schmidt. Of the 6,341 Republican votes Thompson obtained more than 71 per cent.

It has been charged for years that the First ward votes were controllable. Many of the voters live in lodging houses where the ren is cheap.

In the 14th Precinct.

In the 14th precinct of the First ward there is a lodging house at 1304 South Wabash avenue. Its owner made an affidavit to the election board that fifteen men and eight women live there, a total of 23. On the poll list, however, there are 24 registered from this address. Twenty-three of the 24 are men, eight more than the proprietor said lived there.

From 1832 South Wabash avenue 21 men were registered as voters. The owner swore that only 19 lived at that address.

At 1823 South Wabash avenue the lodging house affidavit said there were 28 bona fide men residents and four women. That is a total of 42 and 42 registered as voters, but the women voters numbered five instead of four.

Three Fail to Register.

The lodging house at 75 East 18th street, in the 14th precinct, reported 78 residents, of whom 65 were men and 13 were women. Only 75 registered for voting purposes. The three who did not do so were women.

In the 11th precinct a lodging house at 1619 Prairie avenue reported 12 residents 28 days before the primary. Fifteen are registered as voters from that address.

In this same precinct the lodging house at 1611 South Wabash avenue reported seven residents, four men and three women. The poll list shows 18 voters from that address, thirteen men and five women.

In the twelfth precinct a lodging house at 1601 State street reported 126 residents. Of these 98 registered as voters.

Higher Score for the 10th.

On a percentage basis the 10th precinct did better, although the volume was smaller. Of the 24 men in the lodging house at 1314 South Wabash avenue, 23 were placed upon the voters' list.

While there were only three men reported as living in the lodging house at 1232 South Wabash avenue, the precinct captain succeeded in getting four registered from this address. Of the four women in the lodging house at 1308 Wabash avenue all were registered.

In the 16th precinct a lodging house at 213 East 20th street reported nine residents. On the poll book there are 10 from this address.

At 537 South Clark street, in the 4th precinct, were 67 actual residents, according to the affidavit of the lodging house proprietor. There are 71 on the voters' list from this address.

In this same precinct the lodging house owner at 544 South State street submitted to the election commissioners the names of 16 residents, and swore that was all. But on the voters' list are 22 from this address.

At the "Fair City."

"Fair City" is the name of a rooming house at 502 South Clark street. Its proprietor by affidavit said his place had 93 residents. The poll book shows 132 registered as voters from that address.

At 334 South Clark street fifteen men and one woman were reported as residents. The names of sixteen men and three women are on the poll list from this place.

There will be another opportunity to register on March 10.

Want to Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young. To do this you must watch your liver and bowels. There's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you 90 per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

'TODDY' DILLON IS REVEALED AS HOTEL BANDIT

cial lion kept him close to the cloth in spite of his frequent robberies. In his room at 4864 North Ashland avenue the police found a bank book showing that he had just $20 on deposit in the Lamont National bank. There were two pistols in the room.

Freed on Gun Charge.

On Jan. 12 he had been arrested, Sergt. Ernest Sloey, finding him with one of his guns concealed on his person, led him to a police station. Before Judge Frank M. Padden the following day he told his favorite story, that he was the son of wealthy parents, and the judge released him, holding that the policeman had no right to search him without a warrant.

The strange pattern of life of Edward George Dillon was not even yet complete. Investigation disclosed that he had been toiling honestly by day in a gasoline station at Clark street and Wacker drive, filling tanks and testing oil and taking such tips as were given him.

Another ordeal awaits this Chesterfield of bandits today. Forty more victims of hotel robberies are to view him.

Known as Flaming Youth.

Dillon established his reputation both socially and criminally before he was 20 years old. In 1924 he entered the University of Kansas at Lawrence. He was noted there as the foremost of flaming youth. One of his exploits was to send twenty-four dozen roses to a sorority house as a gift to one co-ed, Agnes Robertson, whom he admired.

He remained as a student only until March, 1925, when the university authorities discovered that he had forged his entrance credits and expelled him. But for the next year or two "Edward G. Dillon III, from the east," as he called himself, was a tradition about the Kansas Sigma Chi house, where he had made his home as a pledge.

Even before his collegiate career began, Dillon had been arrested for robbery after his chum, George Wesley Barnett, had been killed in a holdup in St. Louis. This allegation, like the murder of Dr. Dillon, was never carried to court.

POOR WAR WIDOW MOTHER OF FOUR, INHERITS $250,000

BROMLEY, Kent, England, March 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Sarah Planner, a poor war widow with four children, was informed today she has inherited $250,000 from the estate of James Hamilton, a great-uncle, who emigrated from Scotland to the United States. He died there last year, after amassing a fortune.

Mrs. Planner's information came from other relatives in Scotland. They said she was entitled to one-fourth of the estate, which was valued at $1,000,000. Hamilton was reported to have a sister living on Montana.

"I can hardly believe it is true," Mrs. Hamilton said today. "Life has been a hard struggle since my husband died, and this will change my whole outlook." It was not known here in what place Hamilton died.

URUGUAY CHEERS INAUGURATION OF NEW PRESIDENT

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, March 1.—(AP)—Dr. Gabriel Terra today was inaugurated president of Uruguay for a four year term. There was no sign in this city of the revolution which had been predicted would accompany the inauguration, and the capital showed enthusiasm over the induction of the successor to former President Juan Campisteguy.

The ceremonies were somewhat restrained, owing to the death of the wife of the retiring president last week. With Dr. Terra were inaugurated Juan Pedro Fabini, Tomas Berretta, and Dr. Alfredo Garcia as members of the national administrative council.

The new president is 57 years old and a lawyer by profession. He expressed great interest in the United States and sent the following greeting just before his inauguration:

"The people of the United States inspired our first constitution and were the first in the world to recognize Uruguayan independence. I send my most cordial greetings to them."

Five Sandino Rebels Slain in Clash with Guards

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 1.—(AP)—Five Sandinistas were killed and twenty wounded in a clash with Nicaraguan national guardsmen early today at the town of Daraili. The defending forces were five national guardsmen and ten civil guards. Three of the latter were wounded. The attacking forces were estimated at 200. They were well armed with machine guns, rifles, and grenades.

Milk dishes that men like

TAKE note of what appears on the menu, day after day, in restaurants and clubs that cater to men.

Serve these same dishes at home and watch your husband beam approval. Favorite desserts with men . . . are Rice pudding—yellow with eggs, chock full of raisins, served with thick cream . . . Apple dumplings—flaky biscuit crust wrapped around a fragrant cinnamon apple . . . Tapioca pudding—golden custard of transparent globules of goodness, covered with a 2-inch meringue browned to a nicety.

Men consider oyster stew and clam chowder a real meal. Au gratin and escalloped potatoes, macaroni and cheese, veal chops baked in cream, pork chops and milk gravy, fried salt pork with cream gravy are a hungry man's idea of good eats. Masculine preference for waffles, popovers and muffins amounts to a tradition.

Another Men's Favorite, is this Special Milk for Drinking

More and more men are drinking milk with lunch.

There are two reasons. They like milk . . . and they know milk helps to keep fit without getting fat.

They would enjoy drinking more milk at home, too.

We make a special milk for drinking . . . "Selected" Milk Famous for its "Sweet Natural Taste" due to the extra precaution taken in production, bottling and delivery.

Regular milk drinking makes husbands better nourished and better natured.

Milk dishes are economical —men like that too

The food bill goes down when a quart of milk is used for each member of the family. The milk supplies practically a fourth of the day's food needs.

Recipes for the dishes mentioned above and many others—in which milk is an essential ingredient—are found in all cook books. Serve them often . . . please your husband and the children . . . protect their health . . . and hold down eating costs.

Why not have the convenience of regular milk delivery at your door each day? Speak to your neighborhood Borden milkman . . . or phone Franklin 3110.

'JACK THE RIPPER' MUST FACE TRIAL FOR 13 MURDERS

Killer Kept City in Terror for Many Years.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 1.—Germany's Jack the Ripper, Peter Kuerten, who for months held the city of Duesseldorf in terror and suspense with a series of atrocious murders, will go on trial within a few days. Evidence accumulated against him has led to his indictment for murder in thirteen cases. In thirty-five cases he is charged with rape and attempted murder. Numerous cases of arson against him have been dropped because of their comparative insignificance.

For cunning in planning and executing his crimes, for brutality, cold bloodedness and cynicism, Kuerten is said by police to have hardly a counterpart in the history of crime. For years he baffled the entire police force of Duesseldorf, and it was only by a lucky chance that he was finally arrested.

Began Career in 1904.

According to his own confession, he started his murder career as far back as 1904. So far he did go in his contempt for the police, that in several cases he sent postcards to a Duesseldorf newspaper, giving details of an accomplished murder or announcing an intended one. One of these cards led to the discovery of the body of a little girl whom Kuerten had murdered. The body was found on the exact spot indicated on the card written by the murderer.

In most cases, he either knifed or choked his victims to death. In a few cases he used a hammer—once even a pair of scissors. Small children, men and women of all ages are among his victims.

Shows No Remorse.

Throughout the investigations, the murderer showed not the slightest trace of remorse. With apparent satisfaction and with the utmost complacency, he relates to the police the minutest details of his crimes. Medical experts who have watched him closely while in jail declare him fully responsible.

ARREST THIRD OFFICIAL IN PLOT TO KILL MACHADO

[Copyright: 1931: by the New York Times.]

HAVANA, March 1.—Paul Martin, another high official of the former municipality of Havana, was arrested tonight by secret service men charged with implicity in a plot to assassinate President Machado last Monday morning by bombing the palace. Martin, together with Francisco Diaz, is charged by Private Camilo Perez with giving him a bomb to plant in the presidential palace. Diaz, former chief of the municipal pound; Martin, and Commander Manuel Espinosa are the only ones arrested yet, according to Col. Erasmo Belgado, chief of the investigation.

Admirals Will Decide Who Won "Panama War" Today

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA, Canal Zone, March 1.—Nearly a score of admirals will gather aboard the flagship Texas tomorrow morning for the critique of the recent sham battle in Isthmian Pacific waters. Admiral J. V. Chase, commander in chief of the fleet, and the umpires will lay upon the table their decisions and Vice Admiral A. L. Willard, commanding the defending force, and Admiral F. H. Schofield, in command of the attacking battle fleet, will give their views and state their cases in any part of the problem which has been given against them.

As the presence of Assistant Secretary of the Navy David S. Ingalls, in charge of aviation, intimated, this, the first of the winter maneuver problems, was a question of the value of the plane carrier and the dirigible in time of war. Three units of this branch of the service, the carriers Lexington and Saratoga and the dirigible Los Angeles, were placed with the defenders of the canal, the American side in the case of an actual struggle.

Attacking Fleet Strengthened.

The attackers, the United States battle fleet in the Pacific, were given division five, the new big cruiser division of the navy. This somewhat balanced things and clearly made it a problem of air defense against a superior water force attacking from a home base thousands of miles away.

The projected Nicaraguan canal was also included in the problem, but on the second day of the battle the "enemy" landed its forces on the Nicaraguan coast and would probably have made short work of any canal in that neighborhood. There was no force to impede its progress. The Los Angeles, the "eyes" of the defenders, had been attacked and "destroyed."

Admiral Chase and Assistant Naval Secretary Ingalls both said that "the Los Angeles had rendered valuable service to the defending fleet as a scouting unit until destroyed."

Planes Sink Warships.

The canal has no submarine base on the Pacific side, nor is there either an army or navy air station. One of the major problems of the maneuvers was to decide the value of the carriers Lexington and Saratoga in such a situation.

It is known, however, that the carrier Lexington did good work in the "battle." Thirty airplanes were let loose from her flying deck and after a flight of eighty miles across the Pacific waters looking for the enemy, made almost vertical dives upon seventeen ships before the latter could unloose their anti-aircraft guns. It is believed that under actual war conditions this would have meant the destruction of several cruisers and battleships.

Early this week the fleet will put out again for further tactical exercises.

POLICEMAN SHOT IN BATTLE WITH HOTEL ROBBER

Policeman George Lavin of the Hyde Park station was wounded early this morning when he fought a pistol battle with a man supposed to have been the robber who a few minutes before had held up Henry W. Gasbe, clerk in the Mayfair hotel, 5456 Hyde Park boulevard, and robbed him of $12. Gasbe fired one shot at the robber as he fled.

Lavin was making a report over the police box at 56th street and Hyde Park boulevard, when suddenly the man appeared and fired six shots at him, one bullet, striking him in the foot. The man fled into the Gateway garage, 5630 Stony Island avenue, with Lavin in pursuit, despite his wound, and firing as he ran. Police squads under Sergt. John F. O'Connell surrounded the garage, but were unable to find the fugitive. Lavin was taken to the Illinois Central hospital. Residents of both the Mayfair and the Windermere hotels, the latter at 1642 East 56th street, were aroused by the pistol battle.

MRS. BENNETT TO TESTIFY IN MURDER TRIAL

Kansas City, Mo., March 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, charged with slaying her husband after a bridge game quarrel, is expected to take the stand at her trial tomorrow to tell her version of events in a fashionable south side apartment here on a Sunday night in September, 1929.

The trial in Criminal court has progressed for a week. After the state rested yesterday, the defense counsel, headed by former U. S. Senator James A. Reed, called several character witnesses who described Mrs. Bennett as a devoted wife. The testimony apparently prepared the way for an early appearance on the stand of the defendant, widow of John G. Bennett, wealthy perfume salesman.

TROTZKY'S VILLA BURNS; DATA FOR BOOK DESTROYED

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 1.—(AP)—The villa occupied by Leon Trotzky on Prinkipo island in the sea of Marmora burned to the ground today. The exiled soviet leader, who has been ill with malaria, and his wife, who also has been ill, were uninjured, but their private possessions were destroyed.

Trotzky was not even able to save a suit of clothes, but he did rescue valuable letters from Lenin, with whom he was associated in the early days of the soviet union. Material for a forthcoming book on contemporary political figures was lost, but he saved the manuscript of a history of the Russian revolution, which is about to be published.

The fire was started by a faulty stove in a bathroom on the lower floor of the villa. Turkish firemen were hampered by a lack of water.

HUNDREDS SEE PILOT LAND ON EVANSTON STREET

Wellington Quirk, 319 Dempster street, Evanston, was flying his cabin plane with two passengers over the western part of the suburb yesterday when his motor developed trouble. Hundreds of Sunday afternoon motorists gasped as they saw his plane swoop down towards Dempster street, a heavily traveled thoroughfare. The plane skimmed on across Dempster and settled down in Hartray avenue, which was clear of traffic.

Quirk straightened out his trouble and he and his two passengers pushed the plane into an adjoining field and took off again.

Minnesota and Ontario Paper Co. Will Carry On

Minneapolis, March 1.—(AP)—Operations of the Minnesota and Ontario Paper company, placed in voluntary receivership in federal court here yesterday, will be continued without interruption, Edward W. Backus, president, and co-receiver, said tonight.

HIGHWAYS FOR A NEW ERA.

For new road construction and improvements in Illinois about 368 million dollars will be available during the next ten years, according to State Highway Engineer Sheets. On the assumption that the highway revenue of the state will remain undisturbed this should give to Illinois an efficient highway system. It will give an efficient system if progressive policy and planning is adhered to.

The first need of our road system is an efficient junction between the great metropolitan area and the surrounding territory, and this need will remain no doubt during all of the ten years. Illinois is in effect two states. Chicago is one of them. The territory in Illinois and that in Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan within a radius of 150 miles is the other. A road policy and a highway system can be used as an obstruction and a means of insulating these two areas from each other. It can be used, on the other hand, as an agency for the fusion and intercorrelation of the metropolitan area with the surrounding territory. Socially and commercially this junction of Chicago with the rest of Illinois and with other states is of highest importance not only to the city but to the entire state of Illinois.

In 1931 more than 45 million dollars will be spent on Illinois roads. Of this about thirteen million will go to the metropolitan area. The city needs more, but thirteen million will relieve some of the congestion. More through routes are needed. More grade separations and more wide roads are essential. If the present revenue continues there will be no lack of money. A large part of the money should be used not merely in extending the present roads. It should be used in new road projects designed especially for handling a large number of cars at high speeds. Through roads that go round the towns and villages rather than across their main streets, wide roads, double decked roads, roads with separated crossings, belong to the new plan. A new era of highway transportation should be planned definitely and given full expression by means of that 368 million dollars.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE? THE POOR NAVY!

Prudent Americans will learn with apprehension that upon certain contingencies Great Britain may call another naval round table. It is a question how many more conferences the navy of the United States can survive. A conference is worse than a battle. What the negotiators do not surrender across the table the American pacifists take out of the treaty after it is signed and ratified. The representatives of other countries at the next conference will ask why anything should be conceded the United States when it is certain it will not be granted at home. The question will be hard to answer.

Congressman Britten, chairman of the naval affairs committee, has succeeded in the house in passing the appropriation for the modernization of outranged battleships, a major achievement. The temper of congress toward the navy being considered. The fleet maneuvers at Panama confirmed the admirals in their opinion of the battleship as the core of the fleet, and upon their reports Mr. Britten carried the day. Otherwise the legislation to meet the terms of the second naval agreement is in a bad way. Its supporters are not yet hopeless, although they have reason to be. They may be glad to get a virtually hollow compromise as better than nothing, even the passage of the construction authorization bill without an appropriation.

If they can go further and get an authority for the secretary of the navy to use his discretion in building the type of vessel for which he thinks there is the greatest urgency by the use of funds already appropriated, they may have done everything possible against the opposition of the pacifists.

The United States may enter another naval conference as a country which does not want a navy and be handed a treaty giving it what it wants—nothing.

CALIFORNIA: THAT'S ALL.

California, having raided the federal treasury for a couple of hundred million dollars for Boulder dam, is out for more. A delegation of native sons has called upon Mr. Hoover with the modest request for another $160,000,000, this time for water conservation projects in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys. Let it be understood at once that the money is not to be a gift; it is merely a loan, to be repaid in a couple of generations at particularly favorable interest rates.

The delegation was headed by Walter Garrison, California's state director of public works. If Mr. Garrison suffered any embarrassments, the fact is not recorded. He knew what he wanted and he spoke up for it like a man.

Mr. Hoover may look forward confidently to the arrival of a delegation headed by California's state director of education asking the federal treasury to support California's schools, and to the visit of another delegation asking money to maintain the state's admirable prisons and insane asylums. Previous delegations have obtained loans from the government to finance the California grape growers in their flirtation with the prohibition law, and after that nothing in the way of go-getting can be regarded as astonishing.

It would save a lot of time, trouble, and train fares if Mr. Mellon would transfer his treasury department to the land of eternal sunshine. The money of eastern taxpayers has to be shipped out there anyway. Why delay the process?

CAPONE TO JAIL.

Al Capone, sentenced to six months in jail by Federal Judge Wilkerson for contempt of court, had taken a casual but characteristic attitude toward judicial process. He did not want to obey a summons, being in Florida. He was well advised legally that he could not ignore it and badly advised that it could be fixed by a false affidavit. Capone's experience and his ideas of government gave him justification for believing that it could be fixed, but he was dealing with the wrong court.

He had learned from his operations in Chicago that he was a part of government under reciprocating arrangements in which for value received he conducted certain enterprises requiring political protection and occasional murder. His experience in Philadelphia, where he went to jail for a year for carrying a gun, would not destroy his confidence in the general dependability of the system. That was a jam in which he was careless in unorganized territory. It was an exceptional event.

The sentence which has been imposed is not relevant to any of the major facts of his career, but it is to the general plan of government in which he has operated. The scheme of protection has broken down in one spot with him as it has of late broken down in the case of other gangsters. Ralph Capone has been sentenced to three years in prison, Frank Nitti to eighteen months, Druggan and Lake are to be sentenced on pleas of guilty, and of the three Guziks, a protected family of gangsters and fat vice mongers, one has been sentenced to five years, one is indicted and one is to be indicted. Furthermore, under the direction of Secretary of Labor Doak, the immigration officials are combing out the deportables. Mops Volpe of the Capone gang will thus leave the country.

These are all new and, to the gangsters and politicians associated with them, startling developments of the last six months. If the law's approach has not been a direct attack upon the gravest crimes of the outlaws [they are still dug in there] it is nevertheless the first real breach which has been made in their protections.

PAYING THE PIPER.

While our public expenditures mount rapidly and our disposition to put upon the central government multiplying charges and responsibilities grows apace we might profitably consider the present crisis in British public finance. There is a royal commission on unemployment insurance which has been examining conditions and the treasury has just issued a memorandum upon some of its findings. One of the conclusions is that "continued state borrowing on the present vast scale without adequate provision for repayment by the fund would quickly call in question the stability of the British financial system." The debt is growing at the rate of about a million pounds sterling a week and the government actuary makes drastic suggestions for restoring the fund's solvency, suggestions which it will not be easy for a political agency to adopt.

In 1928 the cost of unemployment insurance to the exchequer was £11,750,000, the next year it was £19,410,000, and it is estimated the cost last year would reach £37,000,000. It is expected the cost this year will be fifty or fifty-five millions or even more. The total expenditures this year on social services, excluding war pensions but including borrowings for the unemployment fund, will be about £193,000,000, or 34.4 per cent of all state expenditures, excluding interest on the debt and war pensions. The state expenditure on social services apart from unemployment has increased £21,000,000 in five years.

An important factor in the development of this expenditure is, of course, the increase of unemployment due to the business depression from which all the world is suffering. But the government actuary estimates that during a period of ten years as serious a factor has been extensions of relief not considered or expected in the original scheme, and for which therefore no provision was made. Of such claims payments to part time workers are important items, as to coal trimmers, who earn a high per diem and work two or three days a week; women who have a week-end employment and prefer it to working steadily at other jobs, especially domestic service. These are well advertised weaknesses of the dole system, and in the aggregate probably are demoralizing, both financially and socially.

Our own ardent proponents of public aid for anything that ails us will not bother about these difficulties. But congress, which finds itself persistently assailed by demands for public expenditures on behalf of one plausible cause or another, might recognize some duty to study the British experience. We seem to be going in for national aid on an ever expanding scale, but there is as yet little evidence that our representatives in politics have any understanding or interest in where we are going or what we are going to do when we get there.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Sun.]

In the opinion of Nature it is highly probable that in a few years "much of our electric lighting will be done by incandescent gases in luminous tubes instead of by incandescent filaments." The luminous tube is familiar in advertising signs; while neon is the gas most frequently referred to, others are in use. Georges Claude of France has taken the leading part in developing this method of illumination. More than a hundred companies in various parts of the world are using his patents, and they are in agreement to pool their technical information as it accumulates.

Originally the voltage used in these tubes was 32,000. It has been reduced to 1,000, and laboratory tubes have been made to function on 300 volts. Luminous tubes are now used largely to mark airplane routes and to signal pilots. The lighting engineers are seeking means to develop commercially a tube giving light suitable for domestic uses; when it is available it will open new fields for illuminating engineers, for architects and for interior decorators.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By H. I.

MARCH! 'TIS SPRING!
'TIS SPRING!

It is to laugh! Why, we haven't had anything but spring since last summer. Yet, here it is the second day of March, and March is commonly regarded as the first of the spring months. But the only ice we've had to speak of this winter was in the cocktail shaker.

It's a good thing we learned how to make ice not so many years ago. If we hadn't people would be having a hard time nowadays for mixed drinks and highballs. There hasn't been enough ice this winter to slip down on. And as for snow, we've forgotten what it looks like, except it's a sort of fleecy white stuff that used to shake down on the sidewalks and had to be shoveled off.

This is spring all right, being the second day of March, but how can we make much whoopee about it when it's been that way since Thanksgiving day? Everybody went swimming in the rivers and lakes on Christmas and New Year's, and a lot of people got sunstrokes. People that loved an old-fashioned winter had to go out to a packing house and sit around in the refrigerating room.

College boys who insisted on wearing their big fur overcoats from habit had an awful time. Time and again the firemen had to dig right into a fur overcoat and drag the college boy out and use a pulmotor on him. It was so hot inside a fur overcoat that the man wearing one was liable to be overcome by the heat in less than five minutes.

Geese and tourists went to Florida from habit, but they were awful mad when they found that Florida was as cold as Greenland's icy mountains and the roses were blooming out in the yard up north and the cherry trees came out with new blossoms every other week. So today we can't say spring is here again. We can just say it's still spring. Or maybe it's summer. Or early fall. Nobody knows.

THE FLEDGLING.

When I have stopped to rest awhile,
From fruitless dreams a moment free,
My daughter climbs the garden stile
And perches there to talk to me:

Your quilt is pretty, mother;
The flowers are pink and blue.
But when I have one I want the sunshine shining on it
And the little beans growing in the garden,
And the baby chickens looking for worms, and the baby children
Playing with their spades in the sandpile.
They can see the birds;
They can see the blue birds and the black birds and the orange birds
Holding on to the trees when the wind blows the leaves back,
And hurrying after each other out of the sky.

My little one! my little one!
Already is the quest begun,
And far across your widening view
The colored birds are flashing too;
The colored birds against the sky,
So beautiful, so aching high!
Never an hour shall bring you peace
From the long winds that never cease;
From the deep winds that take the day
And blow the colored birds away.
Never an hour shall lay you down
Soft-bedded in a sleepy town,
But you will start awake and mark
The surge of wings against the dark,
And in the stillness of the night
Will take your unforgettable flight—
A moment flung outside the world,
A moment into heaven hurled,
A moment blind with ecstasy
Too sharp to bear, too bright to see;
A moment for the pitiless flight
To quiver past you out of sight,
And then the silence, and the grief
That heaven can be so brief, so brief. . . .
And then the silence and the tears
That follow after through the years.
Ah, you will walk amid the throngs
That spend their hearts in little songs—
You who have always been to me
My song made flesh for all to see.

So be it, darling; who can tell
You will not find the magic spell?
But if your little feet should stand
Some day upon the shining land
Alone, where I have never been,
I shall not try to follow in;
There is no whisper, no caress,
Can reach across that loneliness.

DOROTHY KISSLING.

SEATS for the opening performance of Charlie Chaplin's new movie in London are selling for as high as fifty dollars. Charlie should worry about being knighted; there's dukes and knights and baronets and other titles selling newspapers and apples on the Strand right now.

PAUL WHITEMAN, the king of jazz, has sued for a divorce on the ground of desertion. And yet we all would have thought that all was lightness, mirth, and sunshine in the home of a jazz king. Maybe an atmosphere of jazz gets just a little tiny boresome day in and day out, when you have it with the soft boiled eggs and the toast for breakfast, as well as with the soup and roast at dinner.

A DOG smuggled into a classroom at Northwestern was discovered and given the bum's rush when he groaned loudly during a lecture on "Psychology and Its Relation to International Affairs." And yet some people will still insist that dogs lack human intelligence.

THE U. S. IS GOING to spend thirty million dollars to elevate the big guns on three battleships. Well, if we ever have another war and don't look after our airplanes and submarines and cruisers and things, the hard-boiled old enemy will elevate those guns for us free of charge. And the battleships, too.

LAGNIAPPE.

LOTS OF GREAT financiers in Wall street are worrying themselves sick for fear the veterans will spend all their bonus money the minute they get it buying all sorts of foolish things. We know several things, however, the vets won't spend their money on——apples, apple pie, candy apples, and applesauce.

JAKE PARALYSIS' BIRTHDAY.

It will soon be one year since the outbreak of jake paralysis and it is time to take stock of the situation. It seems to be reasonably well established that it was caused by triorthocresyl. This substance is an ingredient of certain varnishes. A manufacturer conceived the pious idea of adding some of it to alcohol, of adding a few other ingredients, and marketing the product under the name of Jamaica ginger. He made business arrangements in various sections of the country under which the product was to appear to be made in many factories and to be loosed on the market at all of them at about the same time.

While the labels varied slightly in the story they told, they were about the same in essentials. The stuff was medicine, it was to be given in about a certain dose, and for about the same disorders. The percentage of alcohol was stated. The sales price was fixed so that a man could get a small sized jug for one at a small figure as compared with the price of the lowest grade booze. The organization for sales distribution seems to have been magnificently planned. Where the manufacturer fell down was in failing to get proof that his dope was safe.

All of the many thousand cases distributed widely throughout America developed in a period of a few weeks. It could not have been four weeks from the onset of the first case to that of the last. The splendid plans of the organizer went up in smoke within two months after the plan was launched because of this one defect. The government is now trying to get at the man behind the guns. Back of the consumer to the merchant, back of the merchant to the fronts carried in the labels of the booze, back of these fronts to the manufacturer who got up the poisonous dope and who planned the organization for selling it.

Meanwhile, many thousand persons have suffered from partial paralysis for almost a year. Some of them have been able to make a living in spite of their incapacity. Most of them have not. Under rest and the use of massage and passive movements some have improved. Most of them have had no more improvement than could be expected from learning to walk with a set of muscles and nerves not used much, as a rule, in walking. How much they will improve in the second year remains to be seen. Meanwhile, thousands of patients are holding the bag.

CRAZY WITH THE ITCH.

Mrs. M. L. writes: 1. Please tell me what to do for welts that appear all over my body and drive me nearly crazy with the itch. It started about five years ago and is getting worse.

2. If a girl of 24 had a cancerous gland removed from her neck, can she live past 40?

3. Is it safe for her to have children?

4. Can a child be born with it? I have heard of such a case.

REPLY.

1. This is urticaria or nettlerash. You are exposed at times to some cause for this disorder. If you will find the cause and avoid it, cure follows without treatment. No treatment is satisfactory if the cause be allowed to continue.

2. She may.

3. Yes.

4. Congenital tumors, including malignant tumors, have been reported. There is no proof they were inherited.

RICH BLOOD.

F. D. writes:

1. How can a person tall if his blood is very rich?

2. Will taking yeast clear up the complexion when a person's blood is rich?

3. Is yeast a body builder?

REPLY.

1. By an examination made with blood measuring instruments.

2. Probably not.

3. It is rich in vitamin B complex and, therefore, is of service whenever there is need for this vitamin.

WEAKNESS IS THE CAUSE.

Mrs. C. A. H. writes: Can you give cause and remedy of fallen arches?

REPLY.

A better name for fallen arches is weak foot. The most important cause is weakness of the muscles, tendons, and ligaments of the foot. Toeing out is an important contributing cause. This makes the foot roll and the main arch flatten. Obesity is a contributing cause.

Among the cures are: Walking pigeon-toed, building up the muscles of the foot and lower leg, losing weight.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

$15 WEEKLY MINIMUM.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a married man earning a salary of only $14 a week be held to the lease on a $45 apartment? He owes no back rent and wants to give up the apartment because if he remained longer it would be impossible for him to keep up payments. 2. Does it make a difference if his wife works if she did not sign the lease? She is supporting an aged mother and father who live with them. C. M.

1. His wages would not be subject to garnishment, but you do not state that he has any other assets.

2. While they are occupying the premises the rent is a family expense, so that the wife would be liable, regardless of whether she signed the lease.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CHANGE OF PARTY POLITICS.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If I voted last election at the primaries for a Democratic ticket can I vote and change my politics by asking for a Republican ticket?

2. Do you have to stay away from voting at primary elections a certain time before you can change your politics?

3. Also does a candidate for mayor need a university education before he can be a candidate for such high office as mayor? F. L. W.

1. No, as to the primaries. Yes, as to the election.

2. Yes.

3. No. Recent history of the office pretty well demonstrates that high capacities are not a requisite.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 2, 1915.

LONDON.—Fort Dardanus in the Dardanelles straits finally has been silenced. After continuous bombardment for twenty-four hours the allied fleet silenced the Turk guns and leveled the stronghold. A storm is raging and until it abates Vice Admiral Carden will not attempt to engage forts farther up the straits. According to Athens dispatches the panic which seized the people of Constantinople when the outer forts fell continues and rioting in the streets is a common occurrence. Troops have been called out to quell the mobs. Turkish losses to date due to the bombardment of the Dardanelles total 5,000.

PARIS.—The Temps asserts that an agreement has been reached between France, Great Britain and Russia regarding the future status of the Dardanelles, which will give Russia free passage of the straits.

CHICAGO.—Night and day work is in progress in "Streeterville" in preparation for new apartment houses to cost approximately $750,000. Announcement was made that Dr. E. C. Dudley is to erect a ten-story fireproof duplex apartment building on Lake Shore drive, just south of the Oak street extension of the drive. No less than six of this class of buildings are either in course of construction or arranged for in "Streeterville."

PETROGRAD.—The Germans are continuing their retreat in northern Poland. The Russians assert the victory means the collapse of the invasion plan of the Teutons. It is stated that the Germans have abandoned large numbers of heavy and light guns and even have left behind slightly wounded soldiers in an effort to execute a hasty retreat.

CHICAGO.—Miss Irene Everett, daughter of Mrs. William S. Everett of 2118 Lincoln Park West, and George J. Harris were married by the Rev. Dr. J. G. K. McClure.

CHICAGO.—W. A. Wieboldt, the Milwaukee avenue merchant, has just closed a large purchase adjoining the Wieboldt & Co. store at 1279 Milwaukee avenue, north of Paulina street, from Herman R. Misch. It is thought the property will be improved and occupied by Wieboldt & Co.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 2, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Andrew Schultz, who came from Minneapolis three weeks ago, had a narrow escape from being hurt because of the wolfskin overcoat he wears. While driving to Evanston Schultz passed the home of Policeman Smith of the Rogers Park station. Smith has three well trained fox hounds, and when Schultz passed they scented his overcoat and immediately started after it. The hounds frightened the horses and they ran away, upsetting the wagon. Schultz was thrown on the ground and was pounced upon by the hounds, which almost tore his overcoat to ribbons before they could be stopped.

CHICAGO.—People who ordinarily ride in taxicabs rode in street cars yesterday. The reason was that the drivers of the electric cabs went on a strike, fearing a reduction of pay through the proposed system of giving salaries based on gross earnings.

CHICAGO.—Checks to an estimated face value of $75,000 have been stolen from various live stock firms with offices in the Exchange building at the stockyards. The banks have been ordered to stop payment on the checks, which range in amounts from $100 to $1,000. The police have been unable to trap the wary thief.

CHICAGO.—John Daly, lord mayor of Limerick, in Chicago to participate in the Robert Emmet memorial services tonight at Central Music hall, was entertained last evening at two receptions at the residences of Ricard O'Sullivan Burke, 614 West 61st street, and Mrs. David Corkery, 2625 South Canal street.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 2, 1881.

OTTAWA, Ont.—Col. Irwin, commander of the mounted police, has been instructed to proceed from Fort Walsh to Sitting Bull's camp at Woody mountain and urge upon him an immediate surrender to the United States authorities.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—While both houses of the legislature were in session this evening fire was discovered in the dome of the capitol, and in two hours nothing remained of the building but the walls and the smoking ruins. Most of the records were saved. Spectators in the gallery of the assembly stampeded in rushing for the exits. An incendiary is blamed for the catastrophe.

CHICAGO.—The police have learned that on Feb. 23 the residence of E. F. Smith, 2314 Michigan avenue, was entered by burglars, who, after chloroforming Mr. Smith almost to death, helped themselves to $2,000 in cash and a diamond pin.

CHICAGO.—Sig. Tommaso Salvini, the noted Italian tragedian, was feted at a banquet given at the Grand Pacific hotel by the Owl club. Many Italian dignitaries attended.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Ex-Gov. Bradford of Maryland died here. He was governor of Maryland from 1861 to 1865, and, though a Union man, was bitterly opposed to the emancipation of the slaves.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Figures just announced reveal that the public debt has been decreased $398,824,730 during the last four years. During the same period the annual interest charge has been reduced $17,557,708.

LIMA, Peru.—The riots in Lima and Callao finally have been quieted, but the cost has been heavy. The damage will amount to $6,000,000, it is stated.

STILL A TOMBSTONE BONUS.

Arlington Heights, Ill., Feb. 21.—The writer, having been compensated by our government for two and one-half years' service with a certificate [face value $1,577] the bonus bill as passed means that if the measure becomes a law I can borrow $789 and pay 4½ per cent interest compounded to apply on the balance of principal due in 1945. The veteran that makes a loan is simply giving back to the government in interest on his loan practically the other 50 per cent of his compensation.

So far as I can see, it still remains the tombstone bonus.

CHAS. J. HUCK.

BROWN EYES.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—It is interesting to note that the proposition, "two blue eyed parents cannot have a brown eyed child," has met with some disapproval in your column. It is also interesting to note that those who attack this phenomenon do so on the basis of their application of the Mendelian law. Let me, in brief, explain the true application of the law as it applies to inheritance of human eye color.

If a person has brown eyes the person has the potentiality or the power to transmit brown eyes to his or her offspring. However, such a person may fail to do so, and if this person mates with another brown eyed person, both parents may fail to transmit brown eyes to the offspring and such offspring will have blue eyes, blue eyes being an absence of brown pigmentation in the tissue of the iris.

Since a blue eye is a lack of brown pigmentation in the tissue of the iris, the person having blue eyes would lack the power to transmit brown eyes to offspring. If such a person did have what is termed a determiner for brown eyes in his germ plasm, it would necessarily follow that there would be present brown pigmentation in the tissue of the iris in that person's eyes. A blue eyed person mating with another blue eyed person resulting in offspring, the offspring would have nothing but blue eyes, because neither parent could transmit to the offspring that which is absent from his own germ plasm.

DR. CHARLES E. CLAPPER.

HOW ABOUT THIS FAMILY!

Elkhart, Ind., Feb. 26.—Our family group would put the Mendelian law to shame. My father and mother both have blue eyes, but they have three blue eyed sons and three brown [very brown] eyed daughters. Although mother's eyes are blue, there were plenty of brown eyes in her family, so we never considered it any mystery.

MRS. D. T. MATTHEWS.

FOR CERMAK.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Notwithstanding the fact that a majority of his party expressed their disapproval at the primaries Mayor Thompson is again renominated, thanks to their betrayal by the party leaders who refused to lay aside selfish interests for the benefit of their city and its people.

However, there is still an opportunity for those who favor the elimination of Thompson and the reign of corruption that have marked his tenure of office, and that is by the election of A. J. Cermak, a man who is eminently qualified for the place and who will fill it with dignity and honor.

Mr. Cermak's liberal views which he has openly advocated are a guarantee that he would not attempt to change Chicago to a 9 o'clock town, thus robbing the Thompsonites of their greatest rallying cry against Dever; and his constructive record as head of the county board shows his capabilities and his ability to give Chicago a businesslike administration.

Let no Chicago loving Republican listen to the siren voices of glory seeking "Independents" nor feel the urge of party loyalty toward one who no longer ago than last November deserted his own party to aid in the election of a Democratic senator from Illinois. Rather let all those who desire our city's virtues instead of her vices proclaimed throughout the world help roll up a Cermak landslide that shall bury the present city hall crowd so deep they will be forgotten long before they are dug out.

ROY SCHAFER.

RESENTMENT.

Wilmette, Ill., Feb. 26.—It is apparent that Mr. Deneen was the cause of Judge Lyle's defeat in the primary. Had he worked for him and not against him, eliminating his candidate, Albert, the judge would have licked Thompson handily. Chicago is Mr. Deneen's home, and it is logical to assume he would be interested in guarding it against the spoilers and wreckers who have it by the throat, but he was supremely indifferent. Illinois and Chicago have in the past been very kind to Mr. Deneen, giving him many honors; in fact, making him what he is, if that is any consolation to those people at this time. The people of Chicago will not soon forget.

J. R. GRAHAM.

AS IT LOOKS TO AN OUTSIDER.

Mount Morris, Ill., Feb. 26.—Now that Thompson has won the nomination because of a split Republican vote, there is still a very simple and effectual way for Chicagoans who want a change to defeat him. Let those who voted for his Republican opponents vote for Cermak, who will at least bring some dignity to the office of mayor when it is most needed during the Fair. How can Thompson consistently find fault with Republicans voting for a Democrat when he left his party to vote for Ham Lewis? What is sauce for the goose is, in this case, sauce for the gander. We folks of other Illinois towns are also interested in good government in the chief city of this state. What a chance the decent people still have of licking Thompson to a frazzle at the April election!

H. E. ZIMMERMAN.

ADVICE TO MR. CERMAK.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—After all elections and primaries the pro and con discussions arise concerning what defeated So and So. The consensus of opinion is that Judge Lyle had Big Bill on the run until he fought back with mud slinging after Big Bill attacked his personal character, etc. Had the judge ignored Bill's attacks he would have defeated him hands down, but when both started to clown around, the public got disgusted and the judge lost ground fast. Let's all hope Mr. Cermak will continue his constructive campaign along the same lines as during the primary campaign and will not be trapped the same as the judge was, as Big Bill will attack him the same way. Ignore him entirely, Mr. Cermak. F. J. R.

FOR BUNDESEN.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—If either party had put up a man who would represent the people's interest instead of just their political friends, it would not be necessary for an independent candidate to run. They did not do it and the only alternative is Bundesen on an independent ticket, and there are enough people who feel the same as I do about it to elect him. MABEL MONTGOMERY

MUSCLE SHOALS.

Hillsboro, Ill., Feb. 25.—I have just read your editorial, "Muscle Shoals, War Baby." Why don't you tell the people the truth about Muscle Shoals? Why don't you tell the people that the average price for electricity in Alabama cities is 4 cents a kilowatt on account of Muscle Shoals; that the government is now getting a revenue from Muscle Shoals of 3 to 4 million dollars a year from the Alabama Power company; that about 30 men is all that it takes to run this plant as it now is? If we had a Muscle Shoals in Illinois we would not be paying 11 cents a kilowatt here.

BOARD TO RULE THIS WEEK ON CHRISTIE TANK

Meets Thursday to Weigh Evidence of Tests.

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—A special board consisting of officers from the general staff and the infantry, cavalry, and ordnance branches will meet Thursday to decide whether the latest model Christie fighting tank is a success. A long series of experiments with this machine, during which it was subjected to the most grueling tests ever asked of a combat tank, were completed at Camp Meade, Md., yesterday, and the machine moved to the Aberdeen proving ground pending the results of the deliberations of the special board.

This latest Christie model was designed by Walter Christie and manufactured by the United States Wheel and Tracklayout corporation of Rahway, N. J. Should it be found a practical solution of the light tank problem the plan is to ask congress next year for appropriations to purchase several of these machines.

It was learned today that the new Christie, a 10 ton, armored, wheel, and tracklaying machine, operating either on rubber tires or caterpillar tracks, successfully negotiated some of the hardest tests laid down by the army. The machine broke down a number of times, but according to its manufacturers this was to be expected of a new product.

The Christie passed one test which required that the machine travel on tracks across rough country at the rate of 20 miles on hour for seven hours. On another test it traveled 13 miles an hour over hard roads at above 24 miles an hour. It developed a road speed of above 40 miles an hour.

The test which proved most difficult was the 140 mile across country test. On another occasion the vehicle broke down after traveling less than 30 miles. On another it broke down after 50 odd miles. Later, however, after certain changes, the vehicle romped over the 120 mile course at an average of 21 miles an hour.

Infantry officers are enthusiastic about the performances, pointing out that no other tank has been developed in this country which could approach the Christie in speed. Ordnance officers were represented today as somewhat doubtful of the stability of the tank.

The new machine weighs 16 tons with armor, and is about 7 feet in height. It has a spring suspension which makes for easy riding and accurate shooting, it is asserted.

THOMAS O. WALLACE GIVEN MEDAL FOR RESCUE OF TEACHER

Thomas O. Wallace, clerk of the Circuit court, has been awarded the President's medal of the national safety council in recognition of his feat in saving a Chicago school teacher from drowning in Lake Michigan last summer.

Upon the recommendation of the Chicago safety council, Mr. Wallace was awarded the medal for rescuing and resuscitating Miss Hattie P. Koch, 1851 Nagle avenue, who had been stricken with cramps while swimming in the lake at Muskegon, Mich., where Mr. Wallace has a summer cottage. He heard her screams and ran to her aid.

The medal will be presented on Thursday night at the banquet of the ninth annual midwest safety conference at the Stevens hotel.

MUSCLE SHOALS, IMMIGRATION ON CONGRESS SLATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—Muscle Shoals and immigration promise to furnish the major controversies of the closing days of the 71st congress, which comes to an end at noon on Wednesday. A veto of the Muscle Shoals government operation bill is expected from President Hoover, either tomorrow or Tuesday. There is little likelihood that the bill will become law as the house is almost certain to sustain the veto, even if the senate, which will act first, fails to do so.

The advocates of this bill, which the President, in a statement yesterday asserted has become "a political symbol," which is being used to exploit the power issue, fully expect to obtain its enactment in the next congress if they fail to do so at this time. In the 72d congress, the radicals will hold the balance of power in both houses.

Resume Battle Today.

The house was fighting over immigration legislation when it adjourned last night and will renew the battle tomorrow. The proposal is for a two year reduction of immigration to aid the employment situation in this country. The bill, as reported from the house committee on immigration, makes a 90 per cent cut in immigration from European quota countries and provides that from nonquota countries of the western hemisphere, such as Canada and Mexico, the number of visas issued by consular officers in the last fiscal year shall be considered the quotas from which a 90 per cent cut will be made.

While the bill has the backing of the American Federation of Labor, and the department of labor and is not objectionable to the state department, it is strongly opposed by various groups. Members of the house from cities with large foreign populations are leading the fight on the bill. Business interests have protested against any immigration restriction legislation without more mature consideration.

Filipinos Are Eliminated.

The original bill placed a ban on the immigration of Filipinos, but this section was eliminated in committee, thus removing one source of controversy.

The bill is being considered in the house under a suspension of the rules, which means that no opportunity for amendment will be offered, but a two-thirds vote will be necessary for passage. If it should be passed tomorrow it will be rushed to the senate, where Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] is ready to champion it.

With all of the regular appropriation bills ready on the statute books, congress has only the second deficiency bill to dispose of to complete the necessary legislation of the session.

Hundreds of bills will die on the calendars of the two houses.

One in danger of defeat is the Chindblom-Deneen bill to authorize the appropriation of $1,750,000 for government participation in the Century of Progress exposition at Chicago in 1933. The bill was passed by the senate, but has not been reached on the house calendar. Representative Carl R. Childblom [Rep., Ill.] will make an effort to obtain action under a suspension of the rules.

Labor Protests Jobbing of Federal Contracts

Officials of the Chicago Building Trades council have appealed to Secretary of Labor Doak in protest against the letting of government contracts to certain contractors who act as brokers in subletting the work to other contractors. Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the Chicago trades council, in a telegram sent to Secretary Doak advocated the adoption of "some stringent method which would shelve this unfair competition."

GRILL EX-MATE OF SLAIN VICE QUIZ WITNESS

Detectives Learn Nothing from Bischoff.

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—Police questioned two important witnesses today in their investigation of the strangling of Vivian Gordon, vice quis character, but failed to gain any tangible clews to the murder—so far as made public.

The two men grilled today were the woman's former husband, John Bischoff of Washington, and Andrew McLoughlin, a patrolman attached to the police vice squad.

Bischoff was expected to be able to throw much light on the slain girl's life, but he is understood to have claimed that he had not seen her in more than a year and knew nothing that would explain a motive for the crime.

Find Letter to Bischoff.

A letter from Miss Gordon had been found in Bischoff's home, advising the husband that she was about to "spill" a batch of information to Referee Seabury's vice investigation, and that she would "tell plenty" about Bischoff. Bischoff said he had been away from home and had not even seen the letter.

McLoughlin was instrumental in having Miss Gordon convicted of immoral charges in 1928 and sent to Bedford reformatory. The girl asserted she was victim of a police frameup and just five days prior to her death had volunteered information to the Seabury investigators. She had threatened to reveal evidence involving the police in frameups and blackmailing and her story is supposed to have listed McLoughlin as one of the prime movers against her.

Returns from Bermuda.

McLoughlin returned today from a short trip to Bermuda. He said the first he had heard of the Gordon murder was when New York City newspapers wirelessed him aboard ship for comment. He said he did not even remember having arrested the girl, and knew nothing that would help unravel the mystery of her slaying with a clothes line in Van Cortlandt park.

Referee Seabury continued his investigation in the belief that the Gordon girl was slain because she knew too much against the police. Commissioner Mulrooney, however, refused to commit himself. He was asked the direct question if the girl had been killed to close her mouth and shield members of the vice squads. "That is something we cannot determine as yet," he replied.

Dear Lieut. Kressel,
I have some information in connection with a "frame-up" by a police officer and others, which I believe will be of great aid to your committee in its work.
I would appreciate an interview at your earliest convenience
Very truly yours

Vinton, Ia., March 1.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. George Redington, who were married at Greensburg, Ind., in 1857, will celebrate their seventy-fourth anniversary here on Tuesday. They are believed to have been married longer than any other couple in the state.

ASKS CZECHS TO MAKE BILLS FOR BOOZE ILLEGAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, March 1.—A new method to combat drunkenness has been proposed in the Czecho-Slovakian parliament by a deputy of the nationalist party.

The deputy offered a bill which would make it illegal to collect debts incurred through the sale of alcoholic beverages. In his speech the deputy pointed out that almost every restaurant and innkeeper of the country allows his guests to run up debts on beer, wine, and stronger drinks. Quite naturally, the deputy declared, the creditor, if unable to collect the money, goes to court and the debtor is obliged to pay. Thus it would stop the innkeepers from granting credits to their guests, if the law, making any such debts void for once and all time, is accepted. Parliament appointed a committee to study the bill.

FRENCH FLYERS SET NEW CLOSED CIRCUIT RECORD

ORAN, Algeria, March 1.—(AP)—The French aviators, Lucien Bossourot and Aime Rossi, today broke the record for duration flight in a closed circuit by remaining in the air 75 hours and 23 minutes and covering a distance of 5,470 miles.

The Frenchmen, who took off Thursday morning, bettered the record established last June by Italian flyers, Maddelena and Cecconi, who remained aloft 67 hours and 12 minutes and covered 5,037 miles.

Bossourot is a veteran French pilot and also holds an altitude record for having flown 3,583 meters (about 11,755 feet) with a load of 5,000 kilograms (about 11,023 pounds). He attempted the first flight from Paris to Dakar, Africa, being forced down in Africa. He was lost for a week. Rossi formerly was a partner of Joseph Lebrix, another noted French flyer.

ORDER OF MALTA ENDS SUIT; MAKES PEACE WITH POPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 1.—Peace between the Vatican and the Sovereign Order of Malta was established when Pope Pius received Prince Ruffo della Scaletta, ambassador plenipotentiary of the order, to the Holy See.

A disagreement between the Vatican and this order, dear to the heart of the pontiff, arose when the order appealed to Italian courts to settle a dispute with the Order of the Holy Sepulchre over a question of rights and privileges. The Vatican was highly displeased at this appeal to a foreign court, holding that both orders were subject to Vatican jurisdiction. Severe strictures were passed on the Order of Malta in the Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano.

But with the reception of Prince Ruffo as new ambassador a settlement of the dispute is said to be forthcoming with the subject matter of the dispute having been withdrawn from the Italian courts and submitted to the Vatican commission on ceremonial.

SCORES BIG VICTORY OVER RIVALS IN ST. LOUIS TEST

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Himself

"We're from Missouri," wired the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. "Got to prove it to us . . .

"Bring out your black masks . . . and let's see if OLD GOLD can win the vote of this 'show-me' town."

Out I went. Bag and baggage. Black masks in my big black box. Bought a flock of the four leading brands of cigarettes in St. Louis stores. Wrapped 'em all . . . to cover up brand names.

Then set out. River boats. Clubs. Press rooms. Theaters. Business blocks and teeming factories. All told, 1041 smokers . . . sampled all four brands with the masks on . . . picked the one each liked best.

Result? Not even close! OLD GOLD, 334. Brand X, 264. Brand Y, 237. Brand Z, 206. More proof that you can't hide OLD GOLD'S better tobaccos; nor its superior throat-ease.

MAJORITY READY TO VOTE REPEAL, CURRAN INSISTS

Cites Heavy Wet Gains in November Elections.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against Prohibition, today reported to the directors and the 360,000 members of the organization that a majority of the American people now stand ready to vote for repeal of the 18th amendment.

Making his annual report on the prohibition situation, Mr. Curran stated that the dry cause had not advanced an inch during 1930, while the wet movement had registered important gains. He asserted that the November election doubled the wet representation in the house and raise the senate wet group from 15, two years ago, to 22 at present. Mr. Curran said the house now has a wet vote of 160, compared with 76 in 1928.

Assails Hoover's Stand.

In discussing the Wickersham report, which he termed a "damning indictment of prohibition," Mr. Curran assailed President Hoover for his handling of the findings and recommendations of the committee. He asserted that the President's message transmitting the document to congress showed him "to be opposed to repeal, opposed to revision and in favor of more laws and more money for more attempts at enforcement."

"The Wickersham report overshadowed every other feature in the prohibition annals of 1930," Mr. Curran said. "The official summary of the 'conclusions' read like a 'dry' brief, but the main text of the document, including the commissioner's individual opinions, painted the 'noble experiment' as a dismal failure and the amendment as an unenforceable measure.

Up to Voters to Decide.

"The report had not been made public before President Hoover sent it to congress with an instant rejoinder in which he virtually tore to pieces the painstaking findings and recommendations of the commission. Such a situation, in our opinion, compels the anxious concern of every thoughtful American.

Whether the commission's report can be capriciously thrown out of the window because it presents a damning indictment of prohibition, remains to be seen."

Mr. Curran cites what he terms important political gains made during the 1930 calendar year.

Window at Indoor Golf Course Shattered by Rock

Several minutes after some one had hurled a small rock through the plate glass window of the loop indoor golf course at 218 South Wabash avenue, early yesterday, the entire window crashed to pieces, showering jagged bits of glass on the sidewalk. Twenty-five players were inside at the time. According to Larry J. Haberger, 819 Eastwood avenue, the manager, the course rates were reduced two weeks ago.

PAINTS GERMANY AT WAR WITH FRANCE IN 1932

Paris Paper's 'Forecast' Causes Sensation.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 1.—The next war, when it will break out, how it will be fought, what will be its results—this is the entire contents of the latest copy of the French illustrated weekly, "Vu." Already this war number of "Vu" has created a great sensation and editorial writers are either praising or condemning the stunt.

Facing the frontispiece, which shows a modernized Madonna and child wearing gas masks, is an article by Paul Painlevé, former premier. While predicting remarkable and varied development of aerial warfare, M. Painlevé declares he believes the land forces will remain the deciding factor.

Following M. Painlevé's article are composite pictures showing Berlin going up in flames after an air raid and a pessimistic analysis of the origins of the next war by Bertrand de Jouvenel, in which the writer finds the present hostility between the two opposing blocs of European nations moving steadily towards a crisis.

Pictures Air Raids on Paris.

Then comes a photograph of the chamber of deputies with its columns crumbling to pieces under the jar of high explosive bombs and a visualization of the scene on the inside of the chamber following the declaration of war with the deputies all wearing gas masks and debating in a thick cloud of poisonous vapor.

Beneath the picture is an article entitled "The First Night," by Pierre Dominique, well known playwright. He tells how he is awakened in the middle of the night by exploding bombs and survives a surprise air raid by the whole German aviation fleet in which tons of bombs filled with mustard gas, phosgene, cynogen gas and Lewisite, varied with a few hundred incendiary bombs, are dropped on defenseless Paris.

Dawn finds the enemy squadrons driven back with heavy losses, but the streets are littered with the bodies of thousands of men, women and children.

Pictures Russia Neutral.

Even more impressive is a series of "communiques" from the French and German general staffs reciting the progress of the war. It breaks out June 1, 1932, as a result of a quarrel over the Polish corridor, in which German troops are massacred by a mob. France and her allies suddenly find themselves in a war against Germany, Austria, Italy, Hungary, while a committee of the league of nations is futilely trying to untangle the dispute.

The war starts with a series of sensational air raids on opposing capitals with heavy loss of life among civilians, then developes into a stalemate on the Flanders front. Poison gas becomes the principal arm.

The end, of course, comes after a couple of years when both enemy groups have ruined themselves and soviet Russia decides to intervene. Two million Red soldiers, highly trained and equipped with the most modern weapons, sweep over all western Europe while the two large neutral powers, England and America, look on helplessly.

HALTS HIS AUTO SALES TALK TO END OWN LIFE

Henry Weyel, 60 years old, a veteran automobile salesman, interrupted a sales talk he was giving a prospective buyer of a Lincoln yesterday afternoon in the Triangle Automobile company display rooms at 2229 South Michigan avenue, stepped over to a desk, and scribbled a note and then committed suicide by shooting himself through the head.

The scribbled note stated only that an explanation would be found in letters he had left in his apartment at the Broadview hotel, 5540 Hyde Park boulevard. The notes, all of which were sealed, were kept unopened by the police. Weyel's sister, Miss Helen Weyel, with whom he lived, could advance no definite motive for his act. One of the notes was to her, the second to a Masonic lodge, and the others to friends.

SPENDS 16 CENTS A WEEK ON PIPE—HIS SOLE LUXURY

And Supports Family of 6 on $13.05 a Week.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 1.—An allowance of 16 cents a week for "tobacco and other luxuries" all that one British trainman, whose family budget has been submitted to the national board of wages, can allow himself—and he is still unable to live inside his pay.

The expenditure, that of "Mr. A——," was noted in a family budget submitted voluntarily before the board hearing evidence on railroad proposals for wage reductions amounting to $55,000,000 annually. The unions are pressing counter-proposals for increases aggregating from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 a year.

Wife Makes Up Deficit.

"Mrs. A——," in common with the wives of many other railway workers, sent voluntary statements of family finances to the board, and several were presented by J. Marchbank, representing the railwaymen's union. "Mr. A——" is a station lampman on the London and North Eastern railway. He earns $10.80 a week. He also works one Sunday in five and receives $2.70, so that his average income is $11.32 a week.

"Mr. A——" spends $13.05 to support his wife and four children, aged six, eight, ten and twelve, leaving a weekly deficit of $1.73. This is covered by his wife taking in work. Here is the "A——" family weekly budget for its six members:

Rent	$ 1.80	Cocoa	.13
Coal	.54	Sugar	.48
Lighting	.36	Rice	.08
Soap, soda, and polishes	.48	Shoes	.96
Bread	1.40	Clothing	1.20
Flour	1.12	Insurance	.32
Meat	.60	Tobacco, luxuries	.16
Margarine	.60	Matches, firewood	.34
Milk	.92	Garden, etc.	.12
Eggs	.28
Lard	.34
Cheese	.56	Total	$13.05
Tea	.40

No Money for Doctor.

The next budget placed before the board was that of a porter on the Great Western railway earning $10.04 a week. His family consists of himself, his wife, and one child of 16 months. The budget expenditure exactly matched the wage, with no reserve for doctor bills or other emergencies.

Another weekly living table concerned that of another porter with a wife and three children. The weekly wage averaged $10.48. The budget total fell just 6 cents inside the wage limit. Meat was bought at 16 cents a pound.

"It must be horseflesh," remarked C. T. Cramp, a member of the board.

There was no allowance in this budget for fish, butter, eggs, coffee, vacations or entertainments.

The unions are demanding a minimum wage of $14.50 per week. Mr. Marchbank submitted a table presenting in detail how a family could live inside that margin provided it comprised no more than man and wife, and three children. It allowed about 75 cents more a week for rent than the "A——" family can afford, raised the coal allowance a few cents, cut the "A——" soap allowance in half, and added 50 cents for furniture renewal.

By saving a few cents on tea, cheese, and sugar, he managed to find small sums for butter, jams, bacon, and a little more for meat.

Consider Three Big National Forest Units for Wisconsin

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—The authorization of three large national forest units in Wisconsin is under consideration by the national forest reservation commission, though final action will probably not be taken until next fall.

The largest of the three is known as the Namekegon unit and consists of 327,000 acres in Washburn and Douglas counties. The second in size is the Oconto unit, 204,800 acres in Oconto and Langlade counties, and the third is the Mondeaux unit in northern Taylor county and consists of about 172,000 acres.

The Oconto unit contains portions of the Oconto, Peshtigo and Wolf rivers. The soil varies from light to heavy sand loam and is very stony. Only a small portion is swamp. The secretary of agriculture reports that the territory included in the unit is forested, cut-over or denuded and that "the control and management of said lands by the federal government will promote the production of timber thereon."

Requires Some Restocking.

The principal varieties of trees found in this territory are jack, Norway and white pine and mixed hardwoods. About 75,000 acres are not restocking and would probably require planting.

The land, which has an average price of $1.75 an acre, is traversed by the Chicago and North Western railroad and by state and county highways.

About 10,000 acres of land is owned by the counties; 170,000 acres by large owners, and the remainder by small owners. Because of the almost complete exhaustion of original timber supply the lumber industry has been reduced to a very low point, the department of agriculture reports after a survey, and agricultural development is limited.

Adds Supervisor Unit.

The department recommends that the establishment of this unit be approved. It states that the creation of the Oconto unit and of the other two proposed units, Namekegon and Mondeaux, will necessitate the establishment of one additional supervisor organization.

At its meeting last week the national forest reservation commission authorized the purchase of 21,191 acres of land in northern Wisconsin forest units for a total expenditure of $35,040.75.

Of the total, 11,252 acres are in the Flambeau unit and will cost $16,075.60; 6,775 acres in the Oneida unit and will cost $13,535.21; and 3,168 acres in the Moqual unit will cost $5,379.94.

Too much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine, prescribed by doctors for conditions due to excess acid. It is always a liquid; it cannot be made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' and the word genuine in red.

THREE MOTHERS IN DESPERATION PLEAD FOR JOBS

Ask Sally to Help Their Families Get Food.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Out of the welter of mail that covered her desk, Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE yesterday laid aside three letters for special attention. Each was the outpouring of the troubles of the mother of a family and a plea for help in the shape of a job for the breadwinners.

"I am the mother of seven children, ranging in age from twenty-one months to seventeen years," said one letter. "My husband has been out of work nine months, and my boy has been laid off since October. We are without food and most of the time I cannot even get milk for the baby.

"We owe six months rent and have been told to have some money soon or move out. I don't know which way to turn. My husband is 36, big and healthy, and has worked as blacksmith, boilermaker, and on moving vans and coal trucks and as building laborer. My boy would like a place as delivery boy or messenger."

A Family in Desperation.

Mrs. E. C., the second mother, apparently wrote under a great mental strain.

"Miss Brown," she wrote, "I detest doing this, but circumstances force me to it. My husband has had no work for twenty-five months. We have four children (a new born baby), and we are desperate as to how to feed them. We never have had to ask charity before, but we lost our home, furniture and insurance and are now living with my widowed mother, who can't help us any more. Our debts are piling up and I am almost insane from worry."

The father of this family was a plumber but would do any kind of work to support his family—a 12 year old boy, two girls, 9 and 7 years old, and the baby.

First Appeal for Help.

"We have never had to ask for help," read the third appeal. "I am sorry to think I must turn to you at this time. But my husband is out of work nigh on to a year, and I am unable to get work. We have two children and now are forced to move. We are both experienced in the printing trade. He is a paper ruler and can take charge of a bindery, and I am an all around bindery girl. Can also handle a switchboard and do typing."

All jobs reported to Sally Joy Brown are dispensed through the Illinois Free Employment Service at 116 North Dearborn street. Call Sally at Superior 0100 if you know of any available work.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: New Hope

HULL FIRES NEW BROADSIDES AT WET DEMOCRATS

Denies Committee Has Power to Act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—Representative Cordell Hull [Dem., Tenn.], senator-elect and former chairman of the Democratic national committee, continued today attacks of southern drys against the proposal to commit the party to opposition to prohibition at the meeting of the national committee on Thursday.

REPRESENTATIVE CORDELL HULL.

In the absence of any denials from Chairman John J. Raskob, it is assumed that he desires the committee to recommend to the national convention of next year adoption of a plank for repeal of the 18th amendment and restoration of control over the liquor traffic to the states.

Full Attendance Likely.

Word that Alfred E. Smith and James M. Cox, former Democratic presidential nominees, both of whom are wet, will attend the meeting has strengthened the impression that an effort will be made to obtain the adoption of a resolution opposing prohibition. It is probable there will be a full attendance of members of the committee, with both wets and drys ready for a fight. A plan for raising the deficit of more than $600,000 will be one of the important subjects to come before the meeting.

"The Democratic national committee has no authority, express or implied, to prescribe issues for the Democratic rank and file of the nation," said Mr. Hull. "To assert this authority would constitute a broader assumption of power by the committee than that of selecting party candidates for the presidency and vice presidency. Naturally, if this course is to be undertaken, which I am loath to believe, it would be in order at the same time for notice to be given that the formality of a Democratic national convention next year would be dispensed with.

Crusade for Revival of Party.

"Never during peace time have such opportunities for service and such manifold economic and other problems vitally affecting the welfare of every individual citizen challenged the Democratic party. The Democratic party should conduct a great crusade for a new birth and revival of the ideas, ideals, doctrines, and spirit which underlie popular government."

BISHOP GARLAND OF PENNSYLVANIA IS DEAD AT 64

Philadelphia, Pa., March 1.—[Special.]—The Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Garland, bishop of the Pennsylvania diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church, died of pneumonia this evening at his home in this city. His death, in his 65th year, came as a shock to associates. His widow, the former Miss Elizabeth McKibbon of Pittsburgh whom he married in 1892, was at his bedside when he died.

A native of Belfast, Ireland, Bishop Garland was elevated to the episcopacy on Jan. 22, 1924, and was installed on May 1 of that year as a successor to Bishop Philip M. Rhinelander of this diocese. He turned to the service of the church at the age of 21, after he had launched himself into what promised to be a highly successful business career.

SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

ROOSEVELT'S FRIENDS OPPOSE RASKOB'S WET MOVE IN COMMITTEE

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—Friends of Gov. Franklin Roosevelt are fearful of the result of the meeting of the Democratic national committee at Washington on Thursday, it was learned today, and are opposed to the plan of National Chairman John J. Raskob to get the committee to pass a resolution declaring for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment or to adopt a wet policy.

Friends of Gov. Roosevelt were reported to regard Mr. Raskob's plan for a party declaration on prohibition at this time as highly inexpedient, and have expressed doubt that Mr. Raskob will be able to command a wet majority in the national committee. The view of some of Gov. Roosevelt's supporters is that the national committee has no power to commit the party to a policy or make a declaration on an issue, which in their opinion is the function of the national convention of the party.

BOY, 17, BEATS WEALTHY WIDOW WITH HAMMER

Haverhill, Mass., March 1.—(AP)—A high school honor student, who, on Sundays, taught a Sunday school class, sat in a cell at police headquarters today accused of an attack with a hammer on a wealthy widow.

The boy, Russell Noble, 17, confessed that he entered the boudoir of Mrs. Clara E. C. Ellis early on Wednesday and beat her into insensibility. Mrs. Ellis has not regained consciousness. She is in a critical condition.

Noble said he was short $6 in his accounts as treasurer of the senior class book committee at the high school and needed $10 to pay for his class pictures. He went to Mrs. Ellis' home, hoping to steal the money he lacked. He took a watch from Mrs. Ellis' bureau, and when she awakened he beat her with the hammer.

Parris Island, S. C., March 1.—(AP)—The Los Angeles, giant navy dirigible, cut loose from her mooring mast here at 11 o'clock last night and headed for her home hangar in Lakehourst, N. J.

Reports of poor visibility in the vicinity of South Pass radio station, near New Orleans, and Jupiter radio station, Fla., caused the ship's officers to abandon plans to calibrate the stations.

14 FOOT COBRA HIS BEDFELLOW ON TRAIN TRIP

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(AP)—A night in a Pullman berth with a fourteen foot king cobra, the world's most poisonous snake. Such was the experience of Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the New York Zoölogical park.

Yes, he knew the snake was there. It came about in this manner: The serpent, owned by the national zoo, but a guest at the New York zoo, was needed as the chief attraction at the opening last night of the new and elaborate reptile house of the former institution.

Time was short and to solve the transportation problem Dr. Ditmars placed the snake in a canvas bag, tied the drawstring, and placed the bag in a suitcase. Then, to avoid the possibility of losing the valuable specimen, he placed it in his berth.

"It was cold on that Pullman," the scientist said in relating the experience in an address here tonight, "and naturally I didn't want the snake harmed, so I just pulled the covers over the suitcase and myself, and the snake and I enjoyed a fairly comfortable trip to Washington."

THE SIXTH JOURNEY

BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect, returning home to England from Cape Town, meets Hilary Revel, author of travel books, on shipboard. They both desired seclusion. John has a daughter, Judith, born of a café singer while he was a soldier. John's wife, Sylvia, adopted the child. After his wife's death his sister, Gertrude, took charge of Judith.

INSTALLMENT VII.

SOLITARY SOULS.

Two days out from home! Every one called it that, though most of the passengers would soon see England for the first time. It was a land of legend to them, of chilly skies and chillier people; a land, of course, terribly behind the times and lacking in progress, and yet a land of pageantry, of kings, queens, courts, the trooping of the color, the changing of the guard, Ascot, Henley, lords! You never saw the sun in London, where it was always raining unless eclipsed by fog; peaches were thirty shillings each, grapes so precious they were exhibited in the shop windows on beds of cotton wool; gardens were unknown. From the Englishman's pride in painting his own country in dismal views strange legends grow, and Falconer and Miss Revel had heard some surprising things, to which they added colorful touches now and then with secret mirth. For their separate schemes to sit aloof throughout the voyage had not materialized. Young Tim de Morreville and the girl Angela, having established communication with them, seemed to feel themselves privileged thereafter. Between games, seated perilously astride the rail, they would repeat in ribald fashion all the gossip of the day.

Inevitably they were joined by other bright spirits until the retreat of the two "misanthropes," christened Park Lane by Tim in a fond belief this was still a compliment in England, became at times the most noisy corner of the ship. De Morreville, an Australian of distant French and more recent English ancestry, was going up to Oxford. Angela, dragged unwillingly from school in Melbourne to see the world, suspected anything so educational and envied Tim his Oxford bitterly in comparison. The other girls of twenty traveling alone, proposed to buy a car and drive themselves through Europe, afterwards selling the car at a very slight reduction. Careless yet purposeful young devils all of them, thought Falconer, at first irritated but presently resigned to the noisy company. Much to his own surprise he found it rather amusing to play the fool. As for Miss Revel, it seemed to him she was flowering beneath his eyes.

"Thank heaven, you've come," he said. "The prevailing riot has driven me to the verge of suicide."

"You're the biggest kid among them," he chaffed her once.

"It must be a case of arrested development, or perhaps I meant retrogression," she replied. "I seem to have been old for so long."

That told him more of her life with Hugh than she had ever put into words, though she had talked of their wanderings often enough. He knew, too, she was returning to a home she had only seen twice for brief intervals of the last ten years, and he could never rid himself of a sense of something forlorn in such an adventure. Ten years, and in a world of people wrapped up for the most part in their own concerns! She might very easily be as solitary as he was.

Now the voyage was almost at an end and what had been for many weeks and many thousands of miles a settled, self-contained community broke into chaos and disintegration. Games were forgotten, trunks packed and repacked; at table people eagerly exchanged addresses, gave advice, prophesied fogs in the channel, planned meetings in London, Paris, Rome. Crowds besieged the radio board for news, and the wireless room with messages for friends ashore.

Falconer, retreating after luncheon to his own end of the ship, leaned over the side moodily gazing out to sea. He hated this turbulence about him. Why couldn't people keep their balance? He felt now no pleasure in getting home and his spirits had sunk to a flat depression under the enthusiasm that flowed about him. To what was he returning but a dull grind of work with no purpose and no end? If he went overboard at this moment it would matter to nobody very much. Gertrude, he supposed, would be indignant and wear mourning and talk a great deal of twaddle about his career, but that was merely a word—a fetish—to grind him on the wheel. And Judy? Had he any identity in his daughter's eyes? She called him Uncle John when prompted, but never with any great conviction. Gertrude sent for the child if he asked to see her, but always with an air of reproving surprise. "Judith, come and say how d'you to your Uncle John." And Judy said how d'you do politely, but he knew he had never had speech with her or exchanged one illuminating glance.

A step paused beside him and he came back to the present with a rush of relief as he looked at Hilary Revel, her elbows on the rail, her gray eyes a little absent, and yet companionable as no one he had ever known. Three weeks ago he had not yet seen her; even now he knew little about her in the material sense, nor she of him, and yet all of a sudden in a world of shadows she was real.

"Thank heaven you've come," he said. "The prevailing riot has driven me to the verge of suicide."

"It does rather," she agreed. "I stopped to write out a telegram. I thought I might as well let them know we should definitely be in tomorrow."

Panic seized him as he seemed to see her walking out of his life as simply as she had walked into it, leaving him to desolation. The quick play of her mind, her laughter, her easy silences had become part of the day and he could not lose them. Fighting for time, he asked:

"Will your people meet you at Liverpool?"

She looked hopeful all at once, and then said with an uncertain smile: "I don't know. Perhaps my young brother Steven—but of course it's a long way."

She didn't know. She was not sure of anything, possibly even afraid, and at once his concern shifted to her and he said:

"Come and sit down out of the wind. You live in London, don't you? Look here, this isn't going to be just the usual shipboard friendship, Miss Revel. I couldn't bear it, and that's flat. I shall want to see you."

"You shall see me," she promised with a smile. "Perhaps too much of me. Do you realize you are practically the only friend I have? I'll give you the address in Cromwell road. My step-father's work is at the South Kensington museum, and I suppose we are on the telephone. It will be under Ferguson, not Revel, remember. Hugh and I were the first family."

"Then I may ring you up and you'll dine with me—soon, I hope? I know it's a good deal to ask when you've been away so long, but I am as friendless as you and determined to be selfish. One loses touch with people. I shall be living at my club. I sold the house at Hampstead when I lost my wife—hated the sight of it, somehow. And my daughter is living with her aunt."

"Have you a daughter?" exclaimed Hilary in complete amazement. "And yet why not, except that you never happen to have mentioned her."

Falconer, with an odd smile, remarked:

"I've never told any one before." He realized with astonishment that this was true, and had a curious sensation of coming out of a nightmare into a normal world.

"I should like to tell you Judy's story," he said.

Presented at the Rialto theater.
THE CAST.

Freddie	William Janney
Tommy	Eddie Nugent
Dean	Winter Hall

Bobby Cruikshank	Emerson Treacy
Harriet Mundy	Martha Sleeper
Sue Street	Addie McPhail
Joe	Jerry Mandy
Jimmie	Ray Cooke

By Mae Tinée.

This picture's selling point is its cast. Peppy, personable and talented young folks compose it, and you like them so well that you don't much mind the exaggerated drawing of their activities. It's one of these collegiate numbers with a lot more rahs than it needs.

Virginia Cherrill [who plays opposite Charles Chaplin in "City Lights"] is the heroine. She's the lovable blonde type and is an excellent foil for the dark, boyish, delightfully mannered John Wayne who, you will remember, was featured in "The Big Trail."

The film is, really, musical extravaganza stuff—without the music. In places it is rather vulgarly sex-y—note kissing experiment in the college phychology laboratory. It descends to broad farce and despiseth not hokum—but the enthusiasm of its players consistently sugars the dish.

The slight plot concerns a battle between co-eds and eds in a co-educational college that the latter don't want that way. The Spartans, a branch opposed to women, makes things hot for the girls, whom it would throw out. The girls—need it be said?—in due time have the Spartans hopping about like turkeys on hot coals. You probably guess the rest?

"MY PAST."

Directed by Roy Del Ruth.
Presented at the Oriental theater.
THE CAST.

Doree Macy	Bebe Daniels
Robert Byrne	Ben Lyon
John Thornley	Lewis Stone
Marian Moore	Joan Blondell
Consuelo Byrne	Natalie Moorehead
Lionel Reich	Albert Gran
Miss Taft	Virginia Sale
Mrs. Bennett	Daisy Belmore

Speaking of casts—here's another splendid one. And we mourn a bit over the waste of so much acting power on such a punk story as "My Past" certainly is.

The principal characters are an actress; an elderly bachelor who has loved her for years; his young married partner who falls for her and to whom she gives her heart; the chill and beautiful wife of the young married man who doesn't understand him, and in truth, yearns to supplant him with another, and a friend of the actress. Considerable grief is gone through before a Paris divorce irons out matters. To your satisfaction? Well, that depends. Who'd you rather see happy—Lewis Stone of Ben Lyon?

The production has some stunning sets and costumes and photography and sound are satisfactory. Direction would probably have been better had the poor man at the megaphone had a bit of inspiration from his script.

If tempted to pass up the movie, still bear in mind the thought that Rudy Vallee and his Yankees are crooning at the Oriental this week. The Sedative of Syncopation—that's Rudy. His voice has a glass of hot milk beat AND conquered!

See you soon.

8 Yankee Firms Sending Exhibits to Fair at Lyons

LYONS, France, March 1.—(AP)—The United States will be well represented at the 18th annual fair of the City of Lyons, which opens here tomorrow.

Eight American firms already have installed their exhibits, and a number of others which have permanent representatives in France will display their products in a slightly more modest way. Ohio and Massachusetts have the strongest representation.

In addition, a sizable number of American buyers is expected, drawn principally by the Lyons silks, laces, food products and art objects that always feature this exposition.

Hopi Indians Make Einstein Colleague as the Great Relative

Albuquerque, N. M., March 1.—(AP)—The North American Indian, confronted by the theory of relativity, had to do something about it.

It happened yesterday at the Grand Cañon of the Colorado river in Arizona, where the Hopi Indians made Prof. Albert Einstein a chief of the tribe.

The Indian council, which has honored Presidents and other notables, was unable to assign a name to a scientist of Einstein's caliber.

"What's his business?" the redskins asked.

"He invented the theory of relativity," they were told.

"All right," the redmen replied, "we'll call him 'Great Relative.'"

Details of the ceremony were made known here today after the professor and Frau Einstein arrived for a 40 minute stop en route east after a visit in California.

With Cobblers' Evolution Revealed by Exhibits.

Even though he's gone in heavily for cement of late, the cobbler no longer sticks to his last. Progress has parted those proverbial inseparables. For one thing, electric, motor driven equipment is a trifle dizzying for such close application to business. For another, the genus cobbler is now a rare breed, fast becoming extinct, in whose place we have up and coming shoe rebuilders doing a half billion dollar business a year in this country.

Over on the mezzanine floor of the Hotel Sherman, where the fourth annual Shoe Repairers and Dealers exposition opened its doors yesterday, some five thousand pairs of "rebuilt" footwear demonstrate the superiority of the machine apparatus over the older and slower hand methods. One shoe of each pair was left "as is," the other renovated to rival a brand new shoe. Sizable silver loving cups await the champion shoe repairers responsible for the most expert work.

"We hope the public will come to see these exhibits," W. L. Gill of the association stated yesterday. "All sorts of developments have been brought about in this trade within the last two years about which people haven't the slightest idea. For instance, down in New York, the theaters, which have hundreds of shoes whose color must be changed each week to fit into different stage settings, are using energetically a sand blasting machine—just like those used on buildings. It takes the top off even a black shoe so that it will take the lightest sort of dye. Heretofore it has only been possible to make a light shoe dark—not a dark shoe light.

"Another thing that has boosted business is the waterproof cement we are now using. Originated in Germany just after the war, it takes the place of either nails or sewing on a woman's halfsole, or is used with some stitching on a heavier, man's sole. It waterproofs the shoe and makes it as firm and smooth as new, so that women, who objected to the clumsy feel of a nailed sole, find it a real boon."

Speaking at a Detroit convention recently, Gill added, the governor of Michigan estimated that the number of shoes on closet shelves in homes of this country totaled 1,200,000, or more than those on the shelves of retail stores. Hard times have inspired people to resurrect these worn shoes, creating much business for the shoe rebuilders, explained Gill, and the public gets value received since the repairers are conceded to purchase the best cuts of leather.

"You can pay either seventy-five cents, one dollar, or a dollar and a quarter for a pair of half soles," he advised. "The best cuts of leather are those which cover the best cuts of meat. Thus for the highest price you get the best leather, the 'bend,' or back of the animal. The medium price gives you the shoulder piece, and for the lowest price you get the inferior, belly leather, which is softer and less durable."

Shoe manufacturing has fallen off about eighteen per cent during the depression, convention delegates said, while shoe repairing has increased by almost an identical amount.

LEGION GUEST

MRS. R. L. HOYAL.

Today the American Legion auxiliary, department of Illinois, will entertain Mrs. Robert L. Hoyal of Douglas, Ariz., national president, at a 12:30 luncheon in the red lacquer room at the Palmer house. The luncheon will be attended by women from all over the state of Illinois and several guests from other state departments.

THE STAGE

CARROLL'S "SKETCH BOOK."

First annual edition of a revue staged by Earl Carroll; given at the Garrick theater March 1, 1931, for a return engagement. Dialogue written by Eddie Cantor; lyrics and music by B. G. Harburg and Jay Gorney.

THE COMPANY:

Will Mahoney	William Demarest
The Three Sailors	Gracie Worth
Don Reveaud	Omar
Dorothy Carroll	Irene Ahlberg
Omar	Grace Du Faye
Nadia Lovsky	Violet Lovsky

And others.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

MR. CARROLL'S "Sketch Book" revue, which was recently the subject of a legal argument between the moderniats of Randolph street and the mediaevalists of the city hall, returned to Chicago last night to prove that it is not only a "first annual," as its program announces, but also a hardy annual. The Garrick theater is now the scene of its high-spirited endeavors to entertain the customers, who spent the intermission telling one another, "I can't understand why they arrested this show."

Not a detail has been changed. The Gideon Bible remains in the scene where Mr. Mahoney and Mr. Demarest hold their intoxicated revels among the twin beds; the graceful nymphs of the chorus wear their close-to-nature costumes as usual, and Gracie Worth still is the cleanest soubrette who ever took a bath in public. And it all seems to be rousing fun for adult audiences. The "Sketch Book" is, at times, an outspoken show; it is frequently a rough-and-ready show; but its tone is healthy and its humor is honest.

Mr. Mahoney, the bantam burlesquer, seems to be the people's choice hereabouts, whether he is telling Scotch stories or dancing himself into a tailspin, or clogging a tune out of a xylophone. To acknowledge his plaudits last night he went into a monologue in German dialect, but this proof of his versatility was hardly necessary. Mr. Demarest, who appears as his iron-jawed accomplice, evoked high glee with his serious-minded use of the slapstick or its equivalents.

A line of praise for Gracie Worth, in or out of the bath tub, and especially when she sings "You Beautiful So-and-so." Another for Grace Du Faye, pretty practitioner of a highbrow phase of contortionism called "slow control." . . . A lively and a likable troupe, these "Sketch Book" performers; they entertain copiously.

Phi Beta Chi Session.

Lent Day by Day

THE FACE OF JESUS.

Dr. Morriston Thomas.

[Pastor Ravenswood Congregational Church.]

Eusebius, Christian historian of the early fourth century, states that he saw a statue of Christ at Cæsarea Philippi; but in any case it was soon lost to the world. Possibly the image of the Master done by the cunning hand of some ardent Greek disciple may yet be recovered from the débris of the centuries. Thomas Carlyle said he would gladly give all his worldly goods "for an authentic portrait of the Son of Man."

The face is the apocalypse of personality. In Hawthorne's "Twice Told Tales" is the story of a minister who wore a veil over his face for many years and walked in an atmosphere of awe and mystery to the end of his days. How fortunate we are to possess good and true portraits of Lincoln and Washington! And yet we have no authentic picture of the face of Jesus. It appears to me that the true quest of Lent is to bring into personal relief in the chambers of imagery, the radiant face of Jesus. In Melrose Abbey, in the keystone of the great outer arch is a beautifully carved idealization of Jesus, and the knights of the crusades saluting it going and coming. Let us put his image in the keystone of the arch of life. The face of Jesus is like the face of every man; and the light and knowledge in the face of Christ are the epiphany of the face of God.

PRAYER.

O God, may what I see in the face of Jesus also irradiate mine.

NOON DAY SERVICES

Lenten services at 12:10 today will be held in the following centrally located places:

Garrick theater.

Holy Name cathedral, State and Superior streets.

St. Patrick's church, Adams and Des Plaines streets.

Cathedral Shelter, Washington and Peoria streets.

Three Women Quit Congress; Six Remain

Ruth H. McCormick and Others Tell Plans.

Washington, D. C., March. 1.—(AP)—Three of the nine women members of the house will go out of office when congress adjourns next Wednesday.

One is Ruth Hanna McCormick [Rep., Ill.]. She ran for the senate and was defeated by James Hamilton Lewis, a Democrat. The others are Pearl Peden Oldfield [Dem., Ark.], who is retiring voluntarily, and Katherine Langley [Rep., Ky.], defeated for re-election by a Democrat.

The remaining six of the feminine house contingent will return for the next session.

Mrs. Langley declined to talk as she gathered her things today to return to Kentucky, but it is understood she is planning a campaign for reelection.

Mrs. McCormick silently looked back on her vigorous fight for the senate, then glancing to the future, said: "I don't know. Nothing could induce me to get into the next race. What is beyond——." She did not finish.

"I am crazy to go home," Mrs. Oldfield said. "My successor will be here Monday. I will be glad to turn over the helm.

"My district has honored the Oldfields for a quarter of a century and I am conscious of the debt of gratitude we owe.

"Because of this I have endeavored to cast my votes as carefully as if on each depended reelection."

She will remain here through the summer heat out of consideration for her octogenarian mother before returning home.

Somewhat rested though not yet back to the fighting trim in which she began the senate contest, Mrs. McCormick looked eagerly toward Easter vacation. At that time she will take her 15 year old son, Medill, from his Colorado school to Mexico.

Later she and her debutante daughter, Katrina, and her younger daughter will go back to their farm in Illinois. She will center her efforts chiefly on her two newspapers.

"I'm going to dig in on those papers," Mrs. McCormick asserted. "I'm going to pay close attention to details of the operation and of the editing."

Shaw Calls Americans Slow to Understand Proper Talkie Making

LONDON, March 1.—(AP)—Americans do things very well, says George Bernard Shaw—after the British show them how.

A Bournemouth theater manager sent the noted Irish playwright an American clipping calling the talking picture of "How He Lied to Her Husband" the world's biggest flop.

"There's not a word of truth in it," Mr. Shaw wrote in reply. "American experts insist on frequent changes of scene and long intervals of silence during which the film is a movie and not a talkie.

"I have repeatedly challenged them to produce my plays on the screen just as they are produced on the stage. They declared it impossible, they could work only on condition of being allowed to adapt the play to their technique instead of adapting their technique to the play.

"British International Pictures accepted the challenge and achieved the feat that Hollywood found impossible. 'How He Lied to Her Husband' was selected because it pushed the test to the utmost. But Americans will do it very well when they've got over the first shock. They always do when shown the way."

In making public this letter Mr. Shaw said he was perfectly satisfied that in serious dramatic work conditions are essentially the same for the screen as for the stage.

"Hollywood doesn't think so," he said, "but we have proved it. Real dramatic entertainment in the talkies must conform to the same rules as on the stage. Some technical conditions are different. You can spend money on the screen you can't on the stage. But finally the test is whether the play is a good play or a bad one."

Mr. Shaw said he had no present plans for making talkies of any other of his plays but he has no objections to the talking pictures.

Hairdress Can Be as Individual as One's Clothes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I notice among the latest hairdress affectations that a few careless wisps are allowed to blow half way across a cheek or up hat brim way. On a young thing it gives a piquant, schoolgirlish touch. The importance of the deliberately planned "carelessness" is that it be worn only with a fresh, fresh young face.

One young miss, walking the hotel foyer, awaiting her college boy date, the other Saturday p. m., portrayed the style quite daringly and on her it was adorable. She had the vivid freshness of skin and eye of the sun on a recently rained-on landscape. Her tricorne hat was perched further back on her head than any I have yet seen. She was most awfully chic —and young. Perhaps this move on the part of the independent young style setters is to get just as far away as possible from the sophisticated, which never served the young ones well, whatever it does for the older girl.

But it has its dangers—the flying of careless wisps—and is only clever when everything about the girl spells "finish." On a young woman whose clothes, or hat, or makeup were put on carelessly it wouldn't do at all. It's rather like the proper grammarian from whom a bit of slang comes as a humanizing touch. But from a girl whose conversation is inelegant, slang lends no piquancy.

However, the fad revives the early season predictions that you can take all kinds of liberties with your hairdressing at this moment, providing you do with it the thing that is becoming to you, your silhouette, your clothes style, and your own, very distinct personality.

A debutante rather sturdier built and more forcefully featured than the type who can wear the careless wisps was advised by her expert hairdresser to play up her lovely brow and eyebrows with a pompadour effect. Not the old type pompadour, of course, but one suggested in the way the hair was waved high off the face, giving dignity to a countenance that reflected good breeding and poise.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A. L.: IT IS NOT POSSIBLE TO fatten the face by massage alone. You need to add to your weight generally —the face taking on its share of the increased weight. Eat fattening foods, drink milk, and remember that the extra pat of butter will help to add weight.

MRS. D. N.: TO HEAL CHAPPED hands use a lotion made of equal parts of glycerin and spirits of camphor. Apply it several times during the day. My booklet on hands may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

P. B.: TO SOFTEN HARD WATER put one pound of bran into a muslin bag and place in four quarts of water. Boil about fifteen minutes. Add enough of the bran water to the bath to make it milky in appearance.

This and That Keep Society in Steady Whirl

BY THALIA

"GOING On to Something" should be the theme song of this particular social era. Hardly any one ever regrets an invitation nowadays. They just say, "That would be perfectly lovely. Does it matter if I'm a little late, because I must drop in at Cyril-and-Marie's tea first," or else "I'd simply adore to. You won't mind if I rush off right after dinner, because I promised Mrs. Murgatroyd I'd come in to her musical—she's having that marvelous Tasmanian guit-fiddler, you know."

Week-ends are particularly that way because they're a sort of continuous merry-go-round of affable sociabilities. This last Saturday there were the lovely tea Mrs. Karen Nielsen Stevenson gave at her apartment at the Ambassador, the large party Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daniel Frey gave, for which they took over the entire lower floor of the Tavern, and a buffet dinner that the Erich Gerberers gave for the cast of "Latch Key," which was given at the Goodman last Monday night, and for the others who assisted with the production of the play.

Subscribers to the Civic Music association, which is now conducting a drive for $10,000 to carry on its philanthropic work, include Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Walter Borden, Mrs. Forsythe Sherfesse, Mrs. Joseph N. Eisendrath, James Simpson, Martin Ryerson, Walter H. Wilson, Edward J. Kelly and William V. Kelley. The association has been giving vocal instruction to thousands of poor children in park field houses, and community centers and has been the active factor in the conduct and promotion of the civic orchestra under Mr. Stock. Members of that organization have graduated into the Chicago Symphony orchestra and symphony orchestras in other cities.

Have you been beguiled with the tale of the chivalrous young man who accompanied Mrs. Pat Campbell to her train after a dinner party the other night? She was making her departure for Nashville, where her next lecture engagement was, and after she and her seven pieces of luggage had been installed [3 of them, she insisted on keeping with her in her berth], she asked: "Which way is this train going?" Told that it was headed south, she exclaimed, with a touch of the famous Campbellian dramatics, "Heavens! I'm never going to be taken anywhere head first." Whereupon, there being no porter about, the obliging youth set to and made up the berth so the lady's feet would point toward the engine.

New Opera House Included in Plan for Rockefeller City

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Provisions for a new opera house are made in a model of the $250,000,000 "Rockefeller City" which is expected to be placed on exhibition within a week.

John R. Todd of the engineering firm in charge of construction for the Rockefeller and allied interests denied tonight that contracts had been entered into with representatives of the metropolitan house.

He said, however, that R. Fulton Cutting, chairman of the board of directors of the opera house, would return to New York from a southern trip soon. Cutting has handled negotiations for the opera house.

"Terrible attacks of acidity were so severe that they began to get on my nerves," says Charles Loreman of Rochester, Pa. "Then I tried ACIDINE. One dose proves it enough. I feel so relieved and better in every way. I wish everyone who is suffering acidity would try ACIDINE."

Almost everyone who takes ACIDINE raves about it. More than two million packages have been sold. It's absolutely amazing the way this new prescription succeeds when other known remedies fail.

ACIDINE is the only known remedy which contains Jantase, that in laboratory tests dissolves 800 times its weight of certain fiery, starchy foods which cause trouble. It neutralizes burning acids, soothes irritated stomach linings, stops sour belches, sleeplessness and nervousness. No other known remedy combines this combination to end acid stomach. ACIDINE also fortifies you against colds by reducing acidity.

Jaunty French Suits Anticipate Spring Days

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Suits are just the top of the style heap for early spring wear. All the Paris couturiers are featuring them and women have eagerly returned to this simple, youthful type of costume, after a slight surfeit of romantic, overdecorative winter clothes.

But pretty, feminine girls need not feel downcast, for there's nothing hard and fast about the new suit rule. Suits are tailored, yes, but they are pretty and easy to wear, and their severity is relieved by many charming details.

The jaunty jacket has a youthful round collar turning into two free ends and buttoned with two shiny black buttons. Two larger buttons, rimmed with white, fasten the coat lower down. Incrustations of stripes make cuff effects on the sleeves.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Booed at a Stranger.

I had a dinner date with a boy friend, and as we both worked late, it was agreed that we should meet at a certain drug store corner in order to save time. It was past the time I was to meet him, and I was hurrying as fast as I could to get there, so we could get to a certain café before the evening rush began. As a hurried toward the drug store I thought I saw him on the corner—in fact, I knew it was he; the same soft hat, gray overcoat, one hand in his pocket, and teetering up and down on his toes—a habit he had when waiting for some one. He had his back toward me and did not see me coming. I hurried up behind, then jumped around in front and said "Boo." Imagine my surprise at finding this man a total stranger. G. S. H.

KREUTZBERG, GEORGI SHOW DANCING ISN'T QUESTION OF TOM TOMS

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Harald Kreutzberg and Yvonne Georgi may derive their dancing art from Mary Wigman, but their recital at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon showed that they have gone far beyond an imitation of what she does.

It was the difference between two great artists and a cult. Important as she is to the modern dance, they have a sense of beauty that she would seem to have missed, also a sense of humor that she has entirely omitted from her scheme.

The encore that they did to music by Debussy just after the first half of the program was as lovely a thing as has been seen since the Diaghileff company was here, a masterpiece of design, execution, and costuming. Mr. Kreutzberg's "Three Miniatures in the Spanish Style" were a deft satire on all Spanish dancing. The "Three Parodies" at the end, somewhat elaborated since they did it two seasons ago, were comic burlesques on the gymnastic drill, the ballet, and the national Russian dance. The "Pavane," to Ravel's music, was another charming bit of flowing line. "Bad Dreams" could not have been better named.

They use good music, their numbers have a definite pictorial significance, and they have utterly refused to lose themselves in any philosophical mist of choreography.

Guy Maier and Lee Pattison gave what is probably their last recital for two pianos in this city at the Studebaker. It is a pity, for such flexible interplay, such accurate brilliancy will not be heard soon again. All seems perfectly easy and offhand with them, as when Mr. Maier stopped in the midst of the first number, a set of Mozart variations, and told the audience that he could not go on until the tuner had made an adjustment on his piano. But there is nothing simple about the way they toss the musical ball to and fro. It is a marvel of timing, of foreknowledge, of execution exact to the smallest fraction of a second.

Elly Ney, appearing at the Civic theater, played a program of Beethoven works, and I never liked her so well in any of her appearances here. Always a personality of the piano keyboard, she has in times past sometimes projected spirit at the expense of accuracy. Yesterday she continued to be quite as much of a personality and was an expert at putting the right note in the right place as well. Three sonatas were on her program, opus 111, opus 27 No. 2, and opus 57. For lighter relief she scheduled the six variations, opus 34, and the Andante Favori.

The German Grand Opera company closed its brief engagement at the Civic Opera house last night with a performance of Eugen d'Albert's "Tiefland," a work whose artistic allure has been and still is something of a secret to me. Its book is, as all operagoers know, the play "Marta of the Lowlands," and it is set to a score that shows constant signs of breaking out into full four-square melody, but seldom realizes its promise.

Nevertheless its performance was quite on a level with the other performances of the German company, bright, alert, and fully competent down to small details. One can hardly call it sprightly because it is not that kind of an opera, but this is not the fault of the company. Margarethe Baumer, Carl Hartman, Hans Hey, Max Roth, and Laursns Pieroth were some of the cast, and Hans Blechschmidt made his first and only, but successful, appearance as conductor.

Reliable Sources Speak Favorably of New Generation

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Yesterday's article was written for the pessimistic or discouraged parent. There was not room to give two interesting extracts which I had for the encouragement and optimism, not only of fathers and mothers, but of those many people who are crying out so loudly against the new generation.

The first of these quotations is from the White House conference on child health and protection.

The final report of the section on education and training began with this statement:

"The American people are intensely interested in the welfare of their children. Loose statements are commonly heard that the youth of today are running wild, and that agencies for their education and training are ineffectual.

"The studies made for this conference give no ground for such pessimism. The problems which youth faces are trying, and have many new phases due to the rapidity of social changes.

"However, agencies for child education and training are in general alert and managed by competent, self-sacrificing men and women. Naturally, socially institutions like the school, home and church, which are nation-wide in their scope, make changes and adjustments slowly, but in practically all of them, there are places where the promblea are being solved effectively."

"The conduct of modern youth is already considerably better than that of their parents and grandparents, if various lines of statistical evidence that are available are to be trusted.

"The amount of juvenile delinquency has been decreasing steadily for many years, as shown by the children's bureau [many alarmists to the contrary notwithstanding."

Palette and Chisel Club Has Display of Art

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An exhibit of etchings by members of the Palette and Chisel club has recently opened in the club gallery, 1012 North Dearborn street, and the prints make an effective showing. Honors must go to Othmar Hoffler for the delicacy, beauty, originality, and inspiring qualities of his three etchings, "Europa," "Phryne," and "Sea Gulls," in the last of which is one of the most exciting sailboats you could ever wish to see. The swiftness of its flight thrills you and the beauty of its lines, the sturdiness of its body against the rushing break of the waves, enchant you. The "Europa" is sensitively handled and lyric in quality.

Leon R. Pescheret, whose etchings of Chicago are among the finest that have yet been printed, shows five stunning views. Frank Raymond has several excellent portraits and a lovely "St. George Street, St. Augustine, Florida." N. P. Steinberg offers two good character studies, one of women in the street market, "Maxwell Street, Chicago," and the second a familiar guest at many backdoors, the "Any Old Clothes" man. Oscar B. Erickson offers two interesting prints and Karl C. Brandner shows a tranquil frosty episode of road and snow and disappearing wagon in "Winter." Oskar Gross has three spirited engagements in an Indian game of ball.

Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art institute, is anxious to have news of the approaching Scammon lectures reach all serious students. The lectures wil be delivered by Dr. Harman Voss of the Kaiser Friedrich museum of Berlin. Dr. Voss is an authority on the High Renaissance and one of the world's most distinguished students of seventeenth and eighteenth century Italian painting.

Vacillating Gal Irritates This Poor Husband

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Is this you, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Smith, or one of your neighbors? Are you the woman "Downhearted" just can't understand? When you make up your mind do you stick to your decision? Or do you change your mind on the spur of the moment?

If you answer "Yes" to the latter you're the woman that's got a good man all discouraged. There are so many of us to whom the charge might apply, not Browns, nor Jones, nor Smiths, nor any one Mrs. at all. It is such a common ailment that it comes as a bit of a surprise that it's brought up in connection with a woman. I thought men had kinda got used to accepting the quick mental changes along with the critter, herself, whenever he took one of us on. But it now looks as if they accept, hoping for the better, the better being "Yes," when we say it.

Anyway "Downhearted's" plaint gives an idea of what some poor trusting souls suffer when they take on one whose "Yes" may mean a couple of other things. He adores the fair creature, five years his junior. Nevertheless, there are times when that love sours his system, and such times are when he says to his wife, "Let's go to a show tonight."

She says, "Yes, let's." They get dressed to go when all of a sudden she says, "I'd rather go skating, dear."

He says, "O, all right." So they get on their clothes for skating and they get to the door, and she says, "I believe I'd rather go to the show after all."

What he says inside is something for the recording angel to report on later. Other men, however, do not register the same control under similar circumstances when women act on their so-called prerogative. They've been known to give vent to dire expressions. And with righteous indignation, even one of the vacillating sex must admit.

But this wife adds to her tantalizing trick another, also bound up with woman lore. When "Downhearted," who says he wants to make everything easy for his wife, explains that he doesn't like her changes of mind she starts to cry and apologizes.

Food Talk.

In the last few weeks we have had a number of requests like this; "My cakes always stick to the pans. Please tell me in your column how to avoid such disasters."

Cake sticks to the pans for two reasons. The cake batter itself may be at fault. An excess of either sugar or baking powder often causes the cake to stick. If the batter is one which produces a satisfactory cake and the cake sticks to the pan, it is the pan that is the source of trouble.

Too many cooks abuse their cake pans. I have had experienced cooks who could make the lovellest of cake but who would, in spite of me, ruin my perfect pans. Sometimes they leave the cake in the pan and cut it with the sharpest knife that can be found, and this always mars the pan. After an accumulation of several cuts and scratches, cake will stick, even though the pan is well oiled. Such a cake pan has to be lined with paraffin paper. When this is necessary, do not oil the bottom of the pan. Set the pan on a piece of paraffin paper and mark around the pan with a pencil. With scissors, cut inside the circle. This circle of paper should lie perfectly flat in the bottom. Rub the perpendicular sides of the pan lightly with butter.

A pan whose surface is in perfect condition needs only a thin film of oil on the bottom and sides. I prefer to oil the tins with butter and my reason for using butter is this: When one puts cake into the mouth the crust is likely to come in contact with the taste buds first and the flavor of the fat first detected is the one that impresses us most. I use other fats to make the cake—usually half butter and half hydrogenated fat, but I am extravagant to the extent that I oil my pans with butter.

Some cooks prepare their cake tins in this manner to prevent sticking: They first oil the pan thoroughly and then dust the oiled surface thickly with flour. This usually keeps the cake from sticking, but it also gives a thick solid crust, which, to my mind, spoils the cake. I like a delicate, fragile crust in any cake and this we get when the cake tin is lined with paraffin paper or is brushed over lightly with fat.

TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS OPENS TONIGHT

ROOKIE ROMNES ENJOYS THRILL OF TWO GOALS

Chicagoans Tighten Hold on 2d.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Blackhawks, who have not been seen in these parts for some days, celebrated their return to the Stadium last night by unseating the Ottawa Senators, 5 to 0, before a crowd of approximately 11,000. The Hawks' victory made their tenancy of second place in the American division of the National Hockey league more secure, as it gave them a lead of 3 points over the pursuing New York Rangers, who were idle last night.

A promising young man by the name of Doc Romnes staged a personal celebration in connection with the Hawks' triumph, scoring two of their goals and assisting Johnny Gottselig in the manufacture of the last one. Frank Ingram and Lola Couture contributed the remaining pair of goals.

Big Night for Romnes.

Last night was a large one in Doc's life, since those two goals were the second and third he has scored during his Blackhawk career. He appeared to extract considerable personal satisfaction from the achievement, and after making the goals returned to the center of the ice with much grinning and flourishing of his stick. Romnes is young in the business and the manner in which he performed indicates that he will be heard from often.

The Hawks' new front line trio of Gottselig, Couture, and Romnes played hob with Goalie Connell for the first three minutes of the opening period. Couture executing one unescorted movement which nearly produced a goal. Lola took a long shot and missed the rebound off the Ottawa defense man's stick by inches.

The Hawks nearly lost the services of Goalie Gardiner after a scramble in front of the Chicago cage following the banishment of Bostrom to the penalty box. Chuck crouched to meet a pair of Senators, and in the ensuing crash his head went against the iron corner post of the cage. He fell to the ice stunned, but returned to duty after a time out.

Romnes extracted considerable personal satisfaction in making the goal, it being the second time in his major league career he has had the pleasure.

The new front line connected for the Hawks' second score at 16:40, when Couture and Gottselig, who had been having hard luck, collaborated in front of the net. Gottselig took the puck from Bostrom and passed to Couture, who banged in the puck. Harold Starr of the Senators drew a major penalty and the Hawks lost what would have been their third goal when Starr tripped March in front of the goal.

Ingram Shoots One In.

The Senators took advantage of this idleness, with Bill Touhey and Hec Kilrea dropping down the ice for visits to Gardiner, but Chuck would have none of them. The crowd was irked when Graham was told to sit in the penalty corner after a little difference with Joe Lamb, the visitors' bad boy. Justice prevailed, however, for Lamb presently was caught in the act of roughing Gottselig against the boards and Joe was given a major penalty after some warm words with Referee Wagner.

Ingram and Wentworth got together to make it 3 to 0 in the Chicagoans' favor, Frank taking Cyclone's pass to make the goal. The time required was 16 minutes and 45 seconds.

The last period was only 50 seconds old when Romnes came through with his second goal. Doc did it all by himself, his shot flashing by Connell so fast that Alex didn't know it was in until the scoring light blinked.

Stew Adams of the Hawks and Finny Finnigan of the Senators carried on a stick brandishing argument which looked promising for a time, but finally came to naught. Johnny Gottselig scored the last Chicago goal on a pass from Romnes.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 1.—Rogers Hornsby's regular Cubs this afternoon terrified the Goofs in the first full baseball game of the season, winning, 6 to 4, by virtue of 10 hits which they made and six errors which the frightened enemy perpetrated. All of the Goofs' runs were earned, while only two of the Regulars' were in that class.

The game was a very serious affair in which four of the Cubs' headline pitchers were called upon to bear down with all they had. Malone worked the first five innings for the Goofs and all the runs of the Regulars were made while he was performing. Bob Smith finished and shut out the premier fellows. Bush and Root were the pitchers for the Regulars and each was nicked for two runs.

No Dividing of Stars.

Unlike the practice in previous years, there was no attempt [and there will be none] to balance the two teams for intraclub games. The Regulars lined up just about as they are expected to on opening day and, aside from the pitchers, the Goofs were composed of those who are scheduled to furnish the Cubs' reserve strength throughout the season.

The game afforded professional observers their first real opportunity to study the physical condition of Mr. Hornsby, who has announced that he's going to play every game of the season at second base. His sprightliness was a revelation, both afield and on the base lines. He made two hits and reached second on a throwing error on another occasion, and all three offensive opportunities gave him a chance to show off his speed. Furthermore, he went farther into right field to capture a potential Texas leaguer than any one has seen him go these last three years. Rogers may become spavined later on, but his showing today brought great cheer to the camp.

Malone in Mid-Year Form.

Malone put on a midseason exhibition of going berserk after errors. In the third inning Hartnett and Bell reached base on bad errors by Jurges and Barton, and Pat forthwith ran a high fever. The result was familiar. A single and two doubles followed in succession, and three runs went over the plate. Another error by Barton, and one by Blair, mixed up with singles by Hornsby, Wilson and Stephenson, gave the Regulars their other flock of three runs.

Root walked two men the first inning he performed, but was saved from trouble by striking out two. In the eighth inning, however, Barton knocked a triple between Stevie and Hack and Blair picked the same spot for an in-the-park homer.

Jones, Free from Title Worry, Gets Joy Out of Golf

Hollywood, Cal., March 1.—(AP)—Robert T. Jones Jr., still champion of golf champions in spite of his retirement from competition, reached Hollywood tonight to start soon on a new golf game. In a few days he will begin work on the first of a series of 12 motion pictures, showing how golf shots should and should not be played. The newest Hollywood star said he had played more golf since his last championship match than at any period of the same length and enjoyed it more.

"Why," he grinned, "I have even played two rounds with steel shafted irons, something I never dared to do when I was trying to win championships."

A new golf bag was noted in his baggage.

"Yes," he said with another grin, "the old superstition again. You know my old bag was really too disreputable to carry on a course, but I didn't dare change when I was playing seriously."

There could be no doubt that Jones at last was really enjoying his golf.

"O, yes," he said. "I'll try anything now. I'm making experiments all the time and you bet it's a lot of fun."

He was reminded that he said in an interview a few years ago he thought he would be able to play "pretty good golf" until he was 40 years of age. Asked if his retirement from championship play might extend his golf expectancy a few more years, he said:

"I don't know about how long I may be a useful golfer, but I believe I'll live longer playing for fun than I would trying to win championships."

Bricklayers Win Soccer Semi-Final, 4-1

The Bricklayers' soccer team yesterday advanced another step in their march toward a national championship by defeating the Swedish-Americans 4 goals to 1 in the western semi-final of the United States national challenge cup competition at De Paul field. Yesterday's victory was the fifteenth straight for the Brickies.

Although the Swedes pressed for the first few minutes, the Brickies soon opened an offensive that culminated in Davie Coutts scoring a goal from about 20 yards. The Swedes tied the score after 20 minutes through Carlander, and although the Brickies were on the offensive during the remainder of the half the score remained a tie because of the brilliant play of Grandquist, the Swedes' goalkeeper.

The Brickies were continually in the Swedish half of the field during the second period, and even Grandquist could not prevent the downfall of his team. When Greenlees put the Brickies in the lead after 12 minutes the result was never in doubt. Clem Cuthbert scored the Brickies' third goal, and Hughie Hill, who was sent in as a substitute for Greenlees, scored the fourth.

The Swedes tried hard as a team, but the superior play of the more experienced Brickies was an obstacle they could not overcome.

The Ben Millers of St. Louis defeated the Cleveland Slavias, 3 to 1, in another western semi-final game. The Millers and the Brickies will play the first game for the western championship next Sunday at St. Louis.

RUMOR LABELS CARL REYNOLDS AS SOX HOLDOUT

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 1.—There is beginning to be a sneaking suspicion that Moe Berg, a holdout, will be joined by another member of the White Sox 1931 baseball party. Only four men, Berg excluded, are missing after an unexpected influx of athletes today, but among the half dozen unaccounted for is one lobby whisperers claim is unsigned. His name, according to unreliable reports, is Carl Reynolds, who last season was rather efficient as a hitter. The young man must be here by tomorrow noon to escape the holdout charge, which, logically, is not disgraceful.

Reynolds just now is enjoying life over at Austin, which is so close that he could get here in a hurry if he or the club should have a change of heart. He has been playing ball in the capital town, so it is obvious that he is serious about his work, when he gets to it. An idea of Reynolds' value can be gained from the fact that last season he hit .359, which rated him fourth in the league. Babe Ruth did no better in the averages, but, of course, he whacked a few more home runs.

Others Who Are Missing.

The other lads who weren't sufficiently enthusiastic about their life's labor to get in on the ground floor are Thomas Willingham, a Texas leaguer who plays both third base and the outfield; Smead Jolley, the left fielder, and Outfielder Simmons, who recently was purchased from the Louisville club. Simmons is at home recovering from a tooth extraction and the jovial Jolley today wired Manager Bush that he would be a couple of days late because of a boil which at this time would make train riding from Oakland, Cal., painful. Just why the others shouldn't be there is puzzling.

The drill today developed into something unexpectedly worth while. There was more rain this morning, and Bush decided that he would have to confine the work to a few sprints around the quarter mile cinder path which skirts the playing field. But when the athletes got into uniform the sky suddenly cleared, so the manager stretched the workout into a three hour affair that included all possible varieties of training labor.

Kamm Goes to Work.

Among those participating in the extensive practice was Willie Kamm, whom Bush was willing to trade early this winter. Willie hasn't changed much from last fall, except that the shower baths have washed a few more hairs out of his head. He walked right out to third base, and during the infield practice handled himself as if he had been playing all winter. Evidently the adverse criticism heaped on him since last season has stirred him up to the point where he is determined to discourage all aspirants for his job.

The infield practice in which Kamm participated was shared by Radcliffe at first base, Mulleavy, Kerr and Cissell at second base, and Blondy Ryan at short. Kerr played ball on the coast during the winter, so he didn't monopolize the position for more than a few minutes. Mulleavy worked there at the suggestion of Bush, who wasn't satisfied with his shortstopping last season. Mulleavy doesn't know just what second basing is all about, but he hopes to learn.

Appling Due Today.

Tomorrow's exercises will give Bush his first chance to work out what he hopes will develop into his regular infield. This will be made up of Radcliffe at first, Cissell at second, Appling at short and Kamm at third.

Bob Fothergill took his first training spin today and it was a simple matter to spot him among almost 30 uniformed employés. He made great effort to scale down his weight before arrival and managed to reduce to 228 pounds, which is considerable.

Help! Fighters of Lafayette Forget Trunks

BY FRENCH LANE.

There was great embarrassment over at Kid Howard's gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

The Golden Gloves team from Lafayette, Ind., came to town and marched to the gymnasium for a workout. The boys stripped and stepped on the scales. All made the proper weight. Then orders were issued for them to step out on the gymnasium floor and go through light exercises.

Then the Lafayette team managers discovered they had brought everything along but the fighting togs for the Lafayette boys.

For a time it looked as if the lads from Lafayette would have to stage their final workout in a barrel. Kid Howard rustled around and found some towels, trunks, etc., so they could appear in public.

An automobile loaded with the missing fighting togs was dispatched from Lafayette early last night and is scheduled to reach Chicago this morning.

Jack Dempsey, in town between trains, spotted the Lafayette fighters soon after they reached the Golden Gloves headquarters at the Congress hotel. He showed the boys something about a left jab and a right cross, and he gave each lad a pat on the back with so much encouragement that those Lafayette lads may be hard to whip.

Buzz Green, the butcher boy heavyweight from Davenport, was such a hit in Peacock alley last night that the trainers in charge of the Davenport team had quite a job on their hands getting him into bed on time. Adam Smith, the heavyweight baker from Rockford, joined Buzz for a couple of trips up and down the famous alley.

BRUINS LOSE TO FORT WAYNE FIVE, 25 TO 11

Fort Wayne whipped the Bruins, 25 to 11, in the first of the three game series to decide first place in the second half race of the American Pro Basketball league last night at Broadway armory. Victory for Fort Wayne on its home floor tonight will place the Hoosiers in the finals with Brooklyn.

It was an even affair for the first five minutes, but after that the Hoosiers gradually asserted their superiority. Their long shots were landing in the baskets while the Bruins found it difficult to score from any angle. The score at the end of the half favored Fort Wayne, 16 to 8.

It was about the same story in the second session. In fact, the only point registered by the Bruins in the first 19 minutes came on Borgeman's free toss. Shortly before the game ended Wickhorst bagged a long field goal.

Capt. Ray Kennedy of the Bruins was on the bench with an injury, but even his presence in the lineup wouldn't have made up for the Hoosiers' all-around superiority. Lineup:

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Golden Gloves tournament of champions opens tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Coliseum. Six teams arrived yesterday and the other contestants from nine cities are expected this morning. These cities and Chicago have qualified 168 entries for boxing's greatest show.

Tonight, tomorrow night and Wednesday night this championship field will fight for the right to participate in the finals at the Stadium March 11. Twenty-four of the 32 finalists will represent Chicago in the fourth inter-city bouts with New York at Madison Square Garden, March 30.

All Prove Their Mettle.

Tonight's contestants are champions, winners of out of town tournaments or qualifiers in the three metropolitan sections. Twenty-one boys will compete in each of the eight weight divisions. Four classes fight tonight, the flyweights, bantamweights, featherweights and lightweights.

Tomorrow night the remaining four-weight divisions, welterweights, middleweights, light heavyweights and heavyweights, are scheduled for preliminary rounds. The drawings are by lot.

Thus the best boxers may meet tonight or tomorrow night. The drawings will be made each night at 7 o'clock. The boxers will report between 4 o'clock and 6:30. The first bout will start at 7:30 each evening.

Take Chance in Draw.

In the Chicago sectionals, members of the same teams were separated in the drawings for the first round. Tonight this policy will be abandoned. Since each of the 15 invading squads has only one contestant in each division, Chicago's boxers [there are six in each weight] must take their chances in drawing their own teammates.

Twenty-three thousand watched Chicago's three qualifying tournaments. Thousands more, in the out of town meets in five states, saw their local favorites battle to championships. The Chicago tournaments broke attendance records on four of the seven nights they were held. The south section, the third night of the White City bouts, attracted 3,900 fans, an all time preliminary mark. Such is the appeal of Golden Gloves.

10,000 Seats Available.

These amateur fights are boxing's greatest bargain. The prices for the Coliseum are $1, $1.50 and $2. Ten thousand seats are available.

Fifty-two bouts tonight. Each round will be three minutes. Two rings insure continuous fighting from 7:30 until 11 o'clock. Add to these facts the thrills of stirring knockouts and the tense struggle of courageous lads, evenly matched. This is the picture of the battle for Golden Gloves and fame.

Lafayette, Ind., was the first team to arrive yesterday. Eight champions, managers, and coaches reached Chicago before noon. In the afternoon

NORTHWESTERN MEETS IOWA IN FINAL TONIGHT

Wildcats End Title Winning Season.

Big Ten Standing

	W.	L.	Pct.	Pts.	O.P.
Northwestern	10	1	.909	355	255
Minnesota	7	4	.636	322	296
Purdue	6	4	.600	290	239

Illinois	6	5	.545	307	269
Indiana	5	5	.500	264	275

Chicago	3	6	.333	293	290
Ohio State	3	7	.222	264	241
Iowa	2	8	.200	197	282

Iowa at Northwestern.
Illinois at Chicago.
Purdue at Wisconsin.
Indiana at Ohio State.

GAMES SATURDAY.
Ohio State at Chicago.
Michigan at Indiana.
Iowa at Purdue.

Although first place in 1930-'31 Big Ten basketball race has been clinched definitely by Northwestern, nine games still remain to be played before the teams finish their respective schedules. Four of these contests will be played tonight, three more Saturday night, and the last two next Monday night.

The championship was made safe for Northwestern Saturday night when the Wildcats conquered Ohio and Purdue eliminated the fast fading Minnesota quintet from all further title consideration. The Gophers' defeat threw the battle for second place wide open, with any one of five teams having a chance for runner-up honors.

Ten Won, One Lost.

Whatever the outcome of the Northwestern-Iowa engagement at Patten gym tonight, the Wildcats cannot be dislodged from first place. Their record show ten victories and one defeat, while Minnesota, holders of second place for the time being, possesses seven wins and four defeats.

Purdue has a chance to move into a tie for second position with Minnesota by defeating Wisconsin in tonight's encounter at Madison. Two other games will be played tonight, Illinois meeting Chicago at Bartlett gym and Indiana taking on Ohio State at Columbus.

The game with Iowa tonight will ring down the curtain on the conference basketball scene as far as the Wildcats are concerned. Should Coach Dutch Lonborg's athletes defeat the Hawkeyes, an event which is quite likely, judging from the record of the two teams, the Purple will have a season's record of 16 victories and one defeat, the lone licking having been administered by Illinois at Patten gym two weeks ago tonight.

Last Game for Two.

Two members of the Northwestern quintet will play their final cage game tonight. They are Bert Riel, forward, and Frank Marshall, guard. Riel has been a regular with the Wildcats for the last three years, while Marshall was out of school last year, returning last fall to play his final year.

Bob McCarnes, center, and Bus Smith, guard, both are juniors and will be back for one year more, while Joe Reiff, forward, and high point scorer in the conference, is a sophomore with two more years of competition coming.

Between the halves of tonight's game Walter W. Dwyer, former basketball star and donor of the Allerton cup, will present the silver trophy, which is emblematic of the Big Ten title. Three championships are necessary for permanent possession, and Purdue leads with a leg and a half.

One for Lonborg.

Like Dick Hanley, the Wildcats' football coach, Dutch Lonborg won a conference championship in his fourth year after coming to Northwestern. Both started with the Wildcats in 1927 and both, peculiarly enough, came from Kansas. Hanley having been grid coach at Haskell Indian institute, Lawrence, Kas., and Lonborg having been basketball coach at Washburn college, Topeka, Kas.

Since taking over the reins at Northwestern, Lonborg has won 72 per cent of his games. In 1927 and '28 the team won 12 and lost 5 games each year. Last year the Wildcats had nine victories and eight defeats.

WALTON ARROWS CAPTURE OPAL A. A. SKATE MEET

Featured by an impromptu fist fight by two young participants on a corner of the hockey rink, the Opal A. A. in a skating derby at the Stadium last night, thrilled more than 8,000 who remained after the Blackhawk victory to watch the races. The Walton Arrows won the meet with 140 points.

The fight occurred between Paul Fierce of the Opal A. A. and Don Thompson of the Norwegian-American A. A. Fierce fouled Thompson in a heat of the race for boys under 16, putting him out of the race. Thompson then cut across the track and exchanged several blows with Fierce before officials reached them.

Helen Bina of the Charles V. Barrett A. C. captured the class A women's event. Al Nusser of the Henry A. A. won the feature class A race for his first victory of the season in that division.

SMITTY—BAD NEWS

KING LEVINSKY PUTS HIS BEST FOOT FORWARD

Tuffy Griffith yesterday resumed training for his fight with King Levinsky at the Stadium Friday night. His workout in a loop gymnasium followed a two day layoff which led Levinsky followers to believe that he had overtrained.

Levinsky boxed four rounds against Ed Wills and Tom Jones, but did no road work. Griffith, on the other hand, engaged in considerable tramping through north side parks yesterday morning.

What little indication there was of betting yesterday favored Levinsky. Followers of the Maxwell street fish peddler point out that Griffith has only met three hard right hand punchers. One of these, Stribling, waged a cautious fight and the tough one went the entire route.

Point Out Knockouts.

The other two, Jack Gagnon and James J. Braddock, knocked out Griffith in six and two rounds respectively: Levinsky is believed to have a better right hand than either of these men. With this contention influencing their judgment, fans shifted their wagering to favor the King.

Griffith has not given any evidence of accepting Levinsky as a qualified foe. He has seen the King rise from a preliminary boy to windup fighter in seven months but believes that he is nothing more than a false alarm.

Scozza Due Tomorrow.

This is a point in favor of Levinsky. With a natural hatred and superiority complex Griffith may let his better judgment run amuck in a desire to overlord it on the night of the bout. Such a policy would be disastrous, Levinsky backers contend. Unless Tuffy fights as smart and careful a fight as he did against Stribling the deadliness of the King's right hand stands a better than even chance of exerting itself before the end of ten rounds.

Lou Scozza, Buffalo light heavyweight, who meets Battling Bozo, Alabama bad boy, in the eight round semi-final, will arrive here tomorrow. Scozza, a murderous puncher, boxed in Boston last Friday, beating Lou Schucca in a warmup bout for Bozo. Scozza will train at Mullen's gym with Levinsky. Bozo has been training here for a week at Howard's Arcade gymnasium.

Golden Gloves Champions to Clash Tonight

Davenport, Ia., Springfield, Ill., and Peoria, Ill., were the next arrivals. Danville, Ill., came in later, and the eastern Illinois champions immediately went to Jim Mullen's Loop gym to work out. Kokomo's squad appeared early in the evening.

Chicago's qualifiers well may consider seriously the threat offered by these champions. They are much superior to the lads who fought against the city boys last year for places on the intercity squad.

Golden Gloves headquarters have been established at the Congress hotel. Talent tickets for each team for the Coliseum bouts will be given out at the hotel today.

There are hundreds of excellent seats available for tomorrow and tomorrow night. These will be on sale today until late afternoon at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, Madison and Dearborn streets. After that they may be purchased at the Coliseum box offices.

Teams from the following cities will arrive this morning: Fort Wayne, Ind.; Gary, Ind.; South Bend, Ind.; Michigan City, Ind.; Benton Harbor, Mich.; Vincennes, Ind.; Rockford, Ill.; Streator, Ill.; Milwaukee, Wis.

Don Gonzales and Ken Disch of Cleveland, O., who qualified in Chicago's south section in the featherweight and lightweight divisions respectively, arrived yesterday by motor. Manny Robins, their coach, accompanied them.

THOMPSON WILL MEET FREEMAN IN TITLE BOUT

Cleveland, O., March 1.—(AP)—Managers of Tommy Freeman, world welterweight boxing champion, and young Jack Thompson of California, former champion, have virtually agreed upon articles for a 15 round championship bout to be held here probably April 14, it was announced tonight.

MIDWEST LEAGUE TO MEET.

A meeting of the Midwest Baseball league will be held tonight at the league headquarters, 210 West Madison street. Plans will be made for the annual baseball night celebration.

WHAT'S THIS? TY COBB WINS GOLF TOURNEY

Augusta, Ga., March 1.—(AP)—Ty Cobb won a golf tournament, incidentally the first one in which he ever played, after having refused to accept victory by default.

R. H. Daniel of Augusta, won the right to face the former baseball star in the finals yesterday of the annual Bonair-Vanderbilt Cup tournament. Ty was on hand and waited three hours until a telephone call explained Daniel was tied up by business and would have to default. That wasn't Cobb's idea of victory. He insisted on a later date.

Today Daniel showed up and Cobb demonstrated how golf should be played on the tough hill course of the Augusta Country club, winning 2 and 1. His medal score was 83 for 18 holes.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Frank (Becky) Koeller, shooting games of 245, 246 and 216 for a 707 total, yesterday won the singles event of the Union Printers' annual bowling tournament on the Congress-Bensinger alleys. In the all-events Koeller's dynamite ball knocked over 1,867 pins, but he was nosed out by five pins by H. De Lorme.

THE TRIBUNE Orphan Annies put together a 2,793 series to land top prize in the five man competition. Frank Nessinger and Oliver Wollett piled up a 1,189 count for the doubles championship.

BIRKS GAIN IN MATCH.

High scores were registered last night when the Walter Birks and the Quaker Oats clashed in the second match of their 12 games series at the Clark-Wilson Recreation. The Birks totaled 3,140 to the Oats' 3,101 and reduced the city champions' margin to 74 pins.

Only Hein of the Walter Birks failed to crack the 600 mark, while three members of the Quaker Oats were well over that figure. Lellinger turned in the best series, 668, despite a 174 game. The scores:

WALTER BIRKS (3140).				QUAKER OATS (3,101).

his home in Ladoga, Ind. On Saturday night he grabbed another free trip from Ladoga to Lafayette. The freight train on which he rode into Lafayette was late, so the Lafayette team got away to a late start on the journey to the tournament of champions.

A couple of the Springfield boys looked so hard boiled that Ray Barrett of the Congress pleaded with them not to meet him anywhere in a dark street during the next three days.

Harry Canada, the fighting football captain from Carbondale, Ill., who is a member of the Springfield team, was the first out of town fighter to arrive. He was accompanied by a sports writer from his own home town and a trainer. Harry fights in the 160 pound division and from the way southern Illinois is taking an interest in him he must be a somebody.

The Fort Wayne team will not arrive until 10 o'clock this morning. Some of the Fort Wayne boys are said to be real battlers. "We'll not be satisfied with anything but a team trophy," was the way Bob Reed, the boss of the Fort Wayne team, put it last night just before his team started on the trip to Chicago.

Ralph Carnegie was an early arrival from Benton Harbor. He reached the finals in last year's tournament. Carnegie fought in the recent western Michigan amateur show and lost a decision which all the experts at the ringside claimed was one of those "bad decisions."

Northern Bass Fisherman Is at Home Here

BY BOB BECKER.

Any northern fisherman who has caught the white bass or silver bass in Illinois, Indiana, or Wisconsin lakes when these fish are working in great schools on top of the water, feels right at home in southern waters if he runs into a school of sea trout. This salt water game fish, if found feeding on a school of minnows, puts on a show that reminds one of the silver bass, because both of these gamey fish kick up the surface with their strikes to secure food. In fact, the water literally boils with many swirls as the minnows are gobbled up.

Last week we were reminded of our experience with the white bass in Freeman lake, Ind., when we got into a school of trout in the Peace river, just above the town of Punta Gorda on the lower west coast of Florida.

They're Fast Ones.

The wind had died down, leaving the broad river calm and glassy. On one side of the stream, fairly close to the bank we could see the smooth surface broken by swirls and rings indicating where the fish were coming to the surface in their chase for minnows. The entire school was making a fierce raid on the luckless minnows, some of which leaped above the water in their efforts to escape.

The guide stopped the boat right in the middle of the school. Then we started in with a bass casting outfit and a white, underwater plug. Paul Davis, a Chicago fisherman, started shooting from the stern of the boat, while we stood up in the prow.

Come Up for Minnows.

Inasmuch as the sea trout is a very fast fish and will strike only a rapidly moving lure, we had to make our retrieves pretty snappy, giving the wabbling plug many jerks as it was reeled in. For a few minutes nearly every cast meant at least a strike. Standing on the short front deck of the small launch in which we were fishing, we could see the fish dart up from below the lure and hit it.

Sometimes you would feel three strikes on one cast before getting a good one that enabled you to hook a fish. Another cast might snag a fish as soon as your plug started moving. In a very short time we had 16 trout in the fish box. Not until a school of tarpon invaded the party did the trout give up their minnow raids and scatter.

LOYOLA, DE PAUL MEET TONIGHT IN SECOND GAME

Loyola and De Paul universities will meet tonight in the second game of their basketball series at the Loyola gymnasium. De Paul won the first game last Wednesday, 22 to 21.

Loyola followers are confident that the Ramblers will stage a comeback in tonight's battle to even the score.

Both coaches are expected to change tactics tonight. Last week's battle was a hard fought all the way but was marked by cautious, defensive play. Coach Jim Kelly of De Paul plans a wide open, aggressive drive from the opening tipoff. Coach Lennie Sachs will send the Ramblers out on the floor full of attacking energy. They played defensively last week and seemed lost when coming out of the zone positions. But with the tall Joe Wagner controlling the jump, and Kavanaugh and Schuman shooting the Loyolans figure to make it a high scoring game.

TRADE ENTERS THIRD MONTH IN LOW GEAR

Approach of Spring Brightens Hopes.

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Business and trade have come through to the start of the third month of the year still in low gear, but having achieved as much acceleration as is normally expected for the middle and latter part of winter. In addition automobile output has been expanded to a volume exceeding expectations early in the year.

The approach of spring and open weather is expected to lend impetus to motor sales and to building construction. The volume of building as reported for the third week of February showed some shrinkage from the substantially increased amount of the earlier half of the month, but the figures now available indicate that the month will show the normal seasonal increase of about 6 per cent over January. Heavy construction projects upon which work is to be started within the next few weeks are extensive.

Retail Trade Outlook.

The mercantile reviews have not as yet reported anything very encouraging in the way of pickup in retail trade, although the last week has seen some improvement in the west and far west. The approach of Easter has brought a little improvement in wholesale buying, and jobbers state that frequent reorders from merchants indicate that February clearance sales have reduced stocks to strictly hand-to-mouth levels.

The steel industry still suffers from the dearth of orders for railway equipment and rails, but continued improvement in buying by motor manufacturers and new orders for line pipe and structural material have caused a further gain in steel ingot output for the ninth successive week. For the Youngstown area alone, some letdown is expected next week Iron Age last estimated the output for the entire industry at 52 per cent of capacity, up 1 point from the previous week. A firming of steel scrap prices was an encouraging development but less talk is heard of higher prices for finished steel.

Copper in Demand.

In the nonferrous metal markets, copper continues to meet good demand and a further price increase next week is forecast in trade circles. Tin prices have also moved up a little on virtual completion of arrangements to restrict exports from producing countries. Silver has fluctuated uncertainly, after the first impetus of recent recommendations for international action to stabilize the metal.

Despite the fair tone maintained by metals, the last week brought a further sag in aggregate commodity prices, with farm and food products notably lower. The news that the farm board would sell 35,000,000 bu of wheat in the foreign markets was interpreted bearishly and caused reactionary tendencies in wheat futures.

Reports from the textile industry continue of a cheerful tenor. This applies particularly to cotton goods. One of the largest distributors of cotton goods reported last week the heaviest sales on record. Prices of cotton fabrics are firmer. A troublesome development in the woolen industry was a strike in the mills of the largest producer.

More Cheerful Tone.

A somewhat more cheerful tone to analyses of business conditions abroad has been a gratifying development of late, lending support to the belief that the world-wide depression is at its fag end. Coöperation between the Paris and London money markets, and developments leading to the hope that the Franco-Italian naval differences may be shortly composed, have been reassuring.

McGraw - Hill's Business Week characterizes current conditions in Europe as indicating "a broader upward movement than at any time since the depression began.

LUMBERMEN'S MUTUAL SHOWS 28.9% GAIN IN ASSETS OVER 1929

Cash assets of $15,001,456 are shown by the Dec. 31, 1930, financial statement of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company of Chicago, it was announced yesterday by President James S. Kemper. This is an increase of more than $3,300,000, or 28.9 per cent, over the previous year. Net cash surplus is over $2,100,000, in addition to which there is a reserve for contingencies of $1,000,000.

JAMES S. KEMPER. [Tiffany Studios.]

Earnings of the company for 1930 amounted to $2,657,014, an increase of 15.2 per cent over 1929. Of this amount $2,283,866 was returned to policyholders in dividends, $100,000 added to voluntary reserves, and $273,148 put into net surplus.

Premium income of the Lumbermen's and its associate company, the American Motorists' Insurance company, for 1930, was over $16,700,000, as compared with $1,700,000 in 1921.

The American Motorists had as of Dec. 31, 1930, cash assets of $3,414,013, an increase of 25.1 per cent over 1929, and surplus to policyholders of $1,010,187. Premium income increased 22.4 per cent during 1930.

"The investment results of both companies," said Mr. Kemper in commenting on the statements, "were on the whole satisfactory, showing, as they did, a net appreciation of over $50,000 in market value of invested assets. This was in addition to interest income and other banking profits of $495,974."

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE TRADE SHOWS BIG GAINS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 1.—Trading on the New York stock exchange last month was the heaviest of any month since last October. Sales, as compiled by the New York Times, totaled 64,145,320 shares, compared with 42,543,435 shares in January, and with 68,732,210 shares in February, a year ago. The heaviest day's trading was 5,300,020 shares on Feb. 24, and the heaviest Saturday trading, 2,436,740 shares, on Feb. 21.

The trend of prices last month was steadily upward with the exception of the final two days of trading, and the market for the month, as measured by the combined averages, made the largest gain of any month since August, 1929. The advance for fifty stocks for the month amounted to $14.39, bringing the net gain for the year to date to $23.

Chicago Automobile Sales Make Gain Over January

Springlike weather and improved business conditions are credited with being largely responsible for an increase of new automobile sales in Illinois in February as compared with January, according to the monthly statement from the Illinois Chamber of Commerce listing February sales at 9,772 cars, an increase of 416 over the January total. This is the third consecutive month in which an increase has been noted.

Niagara Hudson Earning Approximates That of 1929

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Common share earnings of the Niagara Hudson Power corporation and subsidiaries for 1930 were 1 cent per share less than in 1929. The annual report, issued today, showed consolidated net income for 1930 of $15,558,345, equal to 60 cents per share on the common stock, compared with $15,558,539, or 61 cents a share, for 1929. During the year the company spent more than $49,000,000 in new construction.

Meet Today to Discuss Fixed Trusts

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Representatives of some sixty corporations sponsoring and distributing fixed and unit type investment trust shares will convene in Chicago today to discuss the problems that have risen in their young and growing industry.

The conference was called by the Chicago Curb exchange which has pioneered in the listing of this type of security. Sessions will be held in the Stevens hotel and will continue throughout today and tomorrow.

The growth of the fixed trust idea in the last eighteen months has developed in the wake of the deflation of security prices. The popularity of the discretionary type of investment trust had waned with the depreciation in their portfolios and investment bankers found it necessary to turn to a new type of security which the public would receive more favorably.

Has Shown Success.

Though the fixed trust has not by any means been unanimously adopted in investment circles there can be little doubt that it has been remarkably successful in a year when the investment business had to scratch for profits. After nearly two years it is still a contentious question in financial circles.

It is estimated that the amount of money invested in this type of security today is around a $1,000,000,000. While the estimate may be high it gives an approximate idea of the growth of the industry.

Not only outside of the fixed trust field has there been controversy but there has also been a lack of harmony within the ranks of the investment trust sponsors and distributors. This condition has been aggravated by the intense competition. Now it appears that these organizations dealing in the securities feel that they have certain common aims which can be reached only through greater coöperation.

To Set Up Standards.

Friends of the fixed trust believe that if abuses are allowed to grow it will endanger the popularity of all fixed trusts in the same way it has done for certain other types of securities in recent years. To them the setting up certain standards for the industry is an immediate necessity. Among the problems which the industry is confronted are those of investment policy, sales methods, tax matters, publicity and legislation.

The question of legislation is causing considerable concern. It is pointed out that legislative bodies are prone to view new types of securities with distrust. In the past this attitude has led to restrictive legislation. In some states steps have already been taken toward enacting legislation governing the fixed trust. Furnishing of disinterested information to legislative bodies therefore becomes a paramount problem for the fixed trust interests.

May Form Association.

The forming of an association of fixed trust distributors and sponsors is one of the things that may grow out of the present convention. The convention will be in the hands of the delegates after the organization and election of a chairman. Six committees will be formed to deal with separate problems of the industry. The committees will include, legislation, organization, taxation, qualification, collateral and publicity.

GENERAL BUSINESS TONE MUCH BETTER, GOTHAM BANK FINDS

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Further improvement in the general business situation and a decidedly more cheerful sentiment during the last month are noted in the current survey of business issued by the National City bank of New York.

"Business men no longer feel that they are looking down a black hole," the survey says, "but that they have taken the measure of the depression. Not that they are expecting an early or easy recovery to normal, but simply that they have seen the worst. Once people come to this conclusion, they do not need the promise of a rapid recovery to enable them to pluck up courage."

Pointing out that the action of the stock market is responsible "in no small degree for the improvement in sentiment," the survey says that opinions will differ as to the significance of the current rally.

"The business recovery itself has proceeded unevenly," the survey says, "as was to be expected at this stage, but nevertheless encouragingly. Some upturn, of course, is inevitable at this season, and has to be allowed for in judging the trend, and it is not yet clear that the gain in production has been of more than seasonal proportions.

"Some of the various indexes that are computed currently to show business after allowance for the seasonal factor showed a further slight decline in January, while others advanced. One does not expect complete agreement in these indexes, but the fact that for the first time in many months there was a good representation of gains suggests that the general decline has at least been checked, which is the first step toward recovery."

Chicago Building Gains; February Total $7,877,000

Chicago made a forward stride in building in the month of February by registering heavy gains over the previous month and the same month a year ago. A total of 126 permits issued aggregated $7,877,000. The February volume represents a 177.5 per cent gain over the January total of $2,838,400 and a 46.5 per cent gain over the February, 1930, total of $5,442,500, according to comparisons made by the building survey department of S. W. Straus & Co.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO EARNINGS FOR 1930 DECLINE

The general business depression last year, coupled with increased competition from motor buses and trucks and inland waterways, reduced earnings of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The annual report, issued by President Daniel Willard last night, shows railway operating revenues were $306,660,436, a decline of $38,758,340 from 1929. However, operating expenses were $153,142,375, a decrease of $27,427,659.

Net income for 1930 was $21,423,770, equivalent after preferred dividends to $7.44 a share on the common stock. After paying $7 in dividends on the common stock, a balance of $1,128,555 was carried to surplus, which now stands at $109,361,329. Net income for 1929 was $28,767,908, or $10.30 a share on the common stock.

President Willard says a total of $24,230,687 was invested last year in property used in transportation service, which includes more than 3,300 cars. The report also mentions the acquisition of the Chicago and Alton and purchases to increase its holdings in the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh; Buffalo and Susquehanna, and Reading railroads.

Denies Reported Plan for Simmons-Hartman Merger

Reports originating in New York regarding prospective consolidation of the Simmons company and the Hartman corporation were denied yesterday by Edward G. Felsenthal, vice president of the latter company. Mr. Felsenthal said there are no negotiations for a consolidation under way nor have there been. Mr. Felsenthal said that the misunderstandings may have arisen from a statement which he made that his company had been negotiating with a minor firm.

PUBLIC SHOWS LITTLE DESIRE TO BUY GRAINS

U. S. Plan for Wheat Stirs Traders.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bearish conditions dominate the grain trade, with prices the lowest in years, corn for nearby deliveries touching a new low for the season on Saturday and other grains close to the low point.

There is little inclination on the part of professional traders or the public to invest in grains, although they have participated in the buying of securities of late, making a higher market, while grains have been relatively neglected.

Action of the farm board in announcing its intentions to enter the world markets and dispose of 35,000,000 bu of wheat held at the Atlantic, gulf, and north Pacific coast ports, in a position to be exported, has given traders something new to think about and expectations are that with the United States competing with southern hemisphere wheat buyers in European markets foreigners will be able to dictate prices, and low figures will result.

Losses Are Expected.

That there will be losses entailed is expected, even though recent prices have been around 43@46c a bu lower than a year ago, to say nothing about the high priced wheat bought early in the season. Some of this wheat is understood to have been disposed of at different times, but the trade does not know exactly how the farm board stands. It has millions of bushels of wheat to sell and farm board leaders express themselves as confident of their ability to market a good portion before the next harvest.

The trade today will have two important factors to consider, March deliveries of cash grain, and private estimates of farm reserves. An impression prevails that they will make a bearish showing, but how much of it has been discounted in present price levels is a most important factor.

Speculative trade is more professional than at any time in years and operators lean mostly to the bear side.

Farm Reserves and Deliveries.

Private estimates on farm reserves of grain March 1 as given by Chicago statisticians are expected to be bearish, and March deliveries are to be liberal. The following table shows range of estimated farm reserves compared with official figures a year ago, and estimated deliveries:

DIVIDEND PAYMENTS IN FEBRUARY SHOW DROP FROM LAST YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 1.—Dividend payments announced in February, as in recent months, showed a marked contraction over a year ago and reflect the lower earnings of corporations during 1930. The total for 372 corporations making declarations of dividends in February was $438,894,750. This amount is above a year ago when payments in February aggregated $435,621,972 for 627 corporations, because of the greater number of corporations in the total for 1931.

Since an exact comparison is lacking, due to the fact that more corporation payments are included this year than a year ago, it is nevertheless evident from the comparison of the various groups, that the disbursements to shareholders last month were smaller than last year.

Groups showing a smaller total of dividend payments in February were banks and insurance, coppers, mail order, motors, motor equipment, oils, railroad equipment, steel, and tobaccos. Payments were greater in chain store, department store, food and packing, public utilities and railroads.

Special dividend actions voted in February also showed curtailment of payments. There were 70 reduced payments compared with 9 last year; 35 dividend omissions contrasted with 24 in February, 1930, and 24 stock dividends against 32 last year.

THOMPSON FINDS CAFE BUSINESS GOOD DURING 1930

Business of the John R. Thompson company, which operates a chain of estaurants in Chicago and other cities, held up well last year in spite of depression. Sales totaled $14,943,317, compared with $15,742,600 in 1929, and income from operations was $1,276,585, compared with $1,494,344.

Net profits for 1930 were $1,126,585, equal to $3.75 a share on 300,000 shares of capital stock. Net profits for 1929 were $1,584,836, including a profit of $339,441 on sales of leaseholds, and they were equal to $5.28 a share. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1930, shows surplus of $8,297,674, compared with $6,847,524 at the end of 1929.

Week's Municipal Issues to Aggregate $115,346,539

New York, March 1.—(AP)—New municipal financing scheduled for award this week aggregated $115,346,539, compared with actual offerings of $21,-023,000 in that classification last week. The outstanding event in the municipal bond market will be the sale on Wednesday of $100,000,000 City of New York 4¼ per cent bonds. Issues to be awarded represent the needs of 63 communities. An issue of $4,204,000 State of California bonds will be awarded Thursday.

BUSINESS LOOKS BACK INTO 1930 FOR TRADE SIGN

Find Conditions Differ This Year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 1.—Last week had the retrospective interest created by the fact that it was in that week of February, 1930, that the illusive signs of trade recovery, which until then had prevailed here and there in the producing markets, began to disappear.

Production of steel in particular, which had risen since New Year's week from a capacity rate of 35 to one of 52, turned downward in the last days of February, and every one of the five ensuing months recorded a progressive shrinkage.

Sales in the textile trade continued to increase into March, though still far below 1929, and the 14 cent price for copper was maintained until April, but it was evident that stocks were accumulating in both industries. The end of February was the date when close watches of business affairs became aware that renewed reaction was impending, and that there would be no "spring revival."

This chronology of 1930 adds particular interest to the course of events in the industries during the next few weeks and months. It will not be less interesting because the adverse signs in trade, at this time last year, did not affect the stock exchange. Between the beginning of last year and the end of February stock market "averages" had risen nearly 9 per cent, in the next six months they went 9 per cent higher still.

Persistence of Advance.

Whether the stock market's persistence in the rise until April 10, when the year's highest average was reached, was due to blindness in the face of the steel trade's warning, whether it was still believed that arrival of spring would bring belated revival, or whether the unfortunate prediction from the White House on March 7 that the worst effects of the autumn crash would be over in sixty days had superseded all other arguments, there was at any rate an unhappy awakening.

When the copper producers threw up their hands in the middle of April and cut their prices nearly one-fourth overnight, Wall street itself could no longer misjudge the illusion in which it had been living. It then began to see how powerful were the forces working for drastic readjustment. The dismal picture of the seven ensuing

4½% Water Works Revenue Bonds

Dated October 1, 1930 Due serially October 1, 1931-1970

Principal and semi-annual interest, April 1 and October 1, payable in gold at the National City Bank, New York City. Coupon bonds in the denomination of $1,000.

Paducah, the fourth largest city in Kentucky, is located in the western part of the State on the Ohio River. The estimated actual value of all taxable property is $35,000,000 and the assessed valuation, 1930, $25,750,625. The net bonded debt is $1,099,999—approximately $33 per capita. Paducah has no separate School District indebtedness. Tax collections for the fiscal years 1925-1929 averaged 97.7%. The population, U. S. Census, increased from 24,735 in 1920 to 33,541 in 1930.

These bonds, part of an authorized issue of $2,400,000, are valid and legally binding obligations of the City of Paducah, payable solely from the revenues of the water works system. A statutory mortgage lien has been created and granted to and in favor of the holders of the bonds and the water works plant is to remain subject to this statutory mortgage lien until the payment in full of the principal and interest on all of the $2,400,000 bonds. The City, in accordance with the State law and by ordinance, irrevocably covenants, binds and obligates itself not to sell, lease, mortgage or in any manner dispose of the water works plant or extensions and additions that may be made thereto until the entire issue has been fully paid. The City further covenants to maintain such rates as will raise sufficient revenues to pay principal and interest on all outstanding bonds and expenses of operation and maintenance. The constitutionality of the statute under which these bonds are issued has been upheld by the Court of Appeals of Kentucky, the highest Court of the State.

EXCHANGE OFFER

The Cuban-American Sugar Company

To the Holders of:
First Mortgage Collateral Eight Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, of The Cuban-American Sugar Company:

The Cuban-American Sugar Company hereby offers in exchange for each One Thousand Dollars, ($1,000), principal amount, of the above Bonds, with the March 15, 1931 coupon attached, $990 cash, and, in addition, $300, principal amount, of its First Mortgage Collateral Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, 6% Series due 1936, promptly to be issued and hereinafter referred to as the "new Bonds" as distinguished from the bonds now outstanding which are referred to as the "old Bonds". Of the aforementioned $990 cash payment, $150 will constitute payment of principal, $60 will constitute payment of accrued interest to March 15, 1931, and the remaining $780 will represent a 10% cash discount with respect to the $780 principal amount, of new Bonds, Old Bonds, without the March 15, 1931 coupon, may also be exchanged, but the interest represented by such coupon will be collectible only upon presentation thereof.

The new Bonds will be direct obligations of The Cuban-American Sugar Company (hereinafter referred to as the "Company"), and will be issued under a Trust Agreement, with City Bank Farmers Trust Company as Trustee, authorizing the issuance of not exceeding $5,000,000, aggregate principal amount, of bonds, of which $3,000,000, principal amount, will be presently issued as the 6% Series due 1936 and will constitute the sole funded debt of the Company presently to be issued. Other bonds will be specifically covered by the pledge of the same First Mortgage Bonds of subsidiary companies which are now pledged as security for the old Bonds, which First Mortgage Bonds are now or will be secured by direct first mortgages on practically all of the fixed property now owned or hereafter acquired by the said subsidiary companies. The sold fixed property is carried at total book values of over $43,000,000 (of which over $11,000,000 represents land), and at such book values aggregating over $26,000,000, after deducting depreciation. The Trust Agreement will contain appropriate release provisions. The new Bonds will be dated March 15, 1931, will mature March 15, 1936, and will be callable, as a whole at any time, or in part on any interest payment date, upon 30 days' notice, at 104% of the principal amount thereof if redeemed on or before March 15, 1932, and thereafter at 103% if redeemed within six months thereafter, in each case plus accrued interest. Interest will be payable semi-annually without deduction for the normal Federal income tax up to 2%. The new Bonds will be issued in coupon form in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, registerable as to principal only.

The Cuban-American Sugar Company is incorporated in New Jersey and controls, through 100% stock ownership, subsidiary companies which own and operate six raw sugar producing properties in Cuba having an aggregate capacity of 2,160,000 bags of raw sugar per annum, and two refineries, one in Cuba and the other in Louisiana, having an aggregate daily melting capacity of 1,875,000 lbs. of raw sugar, of which 1,350,000 lbs. daily capacity is represented by the Louisiana refinery. The two principal raw sugar properties, viz: Chaparra and Delicias, are operated as a single unit and constitute one of the largest sugar estates in the world.

Upon completion of the present financing operation, the consolidated capital structure of the Company and its subsidiaries will be:

*Loss.

The loss indicated for the last fiscal year was occasioned by the unprecedented low prices of sugar then obtaining. As previous periods as well the Company has encountered adverse conditions but has nevertheless always paid interest on its funded and other obligations. Its raw sugar properties are among the best in Cuba, and its refineries in Cuba and the United States are first-class.

Since the latter, in March, 1921, of the old Bonds, of which about $6,000,000, principal amount, are now outstanding in the hands of the public, the Company has paid an aggregate of over $14,000,000 in dividends on its Preferred and Common Stocks, and has increased its investment in fixed assets by about $6,000,000. Upon completion of this financing operation, the new Bonds will be issued at the extraordinarily low rate of less than $1.30 per bag of normal annual output of raw sugar, and the consolidated Net Current Assets of the Company and its subsidiaries (not including planted and growing cane and advances to planters) will amount to substantially more than twice the principal amount of new Bonds outstanding.

This Exchange Offer is occasioned by the fact that, although the Company and its subsidiaries have consolidated Net Current and Working Assets of over $17,000,000, and Net Current Assets (excluding planted and growing cane and advances to planters) of nearly $12,000,000, the management does not consider it wise to deny or curtail capital to such an extent as would be necessary to discharge the entire amount of old Bonds now outstanding without resorting to any long-time financing. The management deems it proper that the new issue be first offered to the holders of the old Bonds. The Exchange Offer has been underwritten by the Company's bankers who have agreed to purchase from the Company, at 90 and accrued interest, a sufficient amount of the new Bonds to make up any deficiency.

Bondholders desiring to take advantage of this Exchange Offer may do so by depositing their old Bonds with City Bank Farmers Trust Company, 22 William Street, New York City, which will issue, in exchange therefor, its Certificates of Deposit, which will be exchangeable on and after March 15, 1931, for cash at the rate of $990 and for new Bonds (when issued) at the rate of $300, principal amount, for each $1,000, principal amount of old Bonds deposited with the March 15, 1931 coupon attached. Copies of the Deposit Agreement, under which the Certificates of Deposit will be issued, may be obtained from the Depositary, City Bank Farmers Trust Company, upon request.

Day Nearer When Demand Must Be Supplied.

The fact that no emphatic and visible recovery of trade is in sight today, yet that the stock market, on the average, has risen 21 per cent since the year began as against only 12¼ per cent advance in the corresponding period last year, may suggest to some minds that we are merely repeating the futile demonstration of a year ago.

Situation Differs.

That doubts are entertained is evident, at least to the extent that the stock market may be "discounting" more than is likely to materialize in early trade recovery. But it is equally evident that the situation differs in many important respects from that of a year ago. We have had, since then, twelve months of continuous liquidation of debt and reaccumulation of private capital through drastic economies. We are at any rate twelve months nearer to the gate of necessary replenishment of supplies in the hands of merchant and consumer.

If the action of staple prices is still uncertain, at least they are lower by 17¼ per cent than they were at this time last year. With all the upward movement of the two past months, "averages" even on the stock exchange are still some 30 per cent below where they stood at the beginning of March, 1930. It hardly needs argument to show that the situation as a whole is not what it was a year ago. There were reasons at the moment for expecting distinct improvement in industrial activity with the approach of spring; twelve months ago there was no ground for such expectation.

Extravagance on the stock exchange will often mar an otherwise gratifying outlook. Even last year, the worst mischief was done by the speculation after February, which raised the average of stock market prices 19 per cent above the previous year's closing and carried brokers' borrowings $850,000,000 higher. It is always wisest, at a time like this, to remember that the story of revival after an era of trade depression, even when the tide sets strongly towards more prosperous business, never proceeds without interruption.
